PREFACE

 HIS compilation is founded upon the work done by James Riker, Jr., in his Annals of Newtown, 1852; the Early Settlers of Trenton and Ewing, by Dr. Cooley, 1883; upon various articles by Charles B. Moore, late Secretary of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, and upon a manuscript history by Frederick Scholer, of Philadelphia. Dates have been verified, as far as possible, by reference to the original documents, and many additions, from sources at that time inaccessible to the above writers, have been made. New lines have been introduced, and special attention has been paid to descent on the female side. In the latter case, where lines are not brought down to date, sufficient data are noted to identify the persons named. Cheerful aid has been given by so many persons that it would be invidious to specify particular ones, and impossible to name them all here. Public records, as well as private, have been examined, and their contents utilized. In a work of this character errors are inevitable, but frequent verifications by different persons, it is hoped, have prevented serious discrepancies. The compiler will be glad to receive corrections and additions.

A HINT ON DATES

THE Dutch in Newtown reckoned time according to new style. The month of March, old style, commenced ten days earlier than by the new style; on and after March 1, 1700, eleven days earlier. On September 3, 1752, the old style ended, and the next day was called 14th, new style. Riker, in his Annals, always begins the year with January.

INTRODUCTION

THE FAMILY OF MOORE is wide-spread. In whatever way the name is spelled, the English families are said to have their origin in Thomas de More, whose name is enrolled in the ancient list taken at the embarkation at St. Valery, under William the Conqueror, in 1066. Thomas de More's name also appears in the list of those who survived the battle of Hastings, fought on October 14, of the same year, in which battle he held a command.

The name has different forms: de la More, de More, More, Mora (Latinized form), Moir, Moor, Moore, Muir, Mure, the last two in Scotland. The unabbreviated form was frequent, and persisted for many years. In Domesday Book, completed in 1086, several places called More are mentioned. As early as the reign of Henry III., 1216-1272, the land registers of England show the name More, Sir Henry de la More being a notable example. Later, Richard de la More, of Eldland, in the Parish of Bitton, Gloucestershire, who died 1292, was knight of that shire in 1290. Sir Thomas de la More, or Moore, the alleged chronicler, flourished between 1327 and 1347. Sir Thomas de la More, of Mora or Moor, now Northmoor, in southern Oxfordshire, sat as knight of the shire of Oxfordshire in the first two parliaments in 1340, and was re-elected in 1343 and 1351. Sir Thomas de la More, in 1370, was Constable of Porchester Castle, under the Earl of Arundel. There was a Berkshire family of de la More or de la Mare. Towards and during the reign of Queen Elizabeth, 1559-1603, the name was shortened to More. When the English family extended to Scotland and Ireland, a change took place in the spelling of the name. In 1213 Adam de la More was sent by King John, of England, 1199-1216, to the King of Scotland, with a gift of gervaleons. During the reign of Edward I., 1272-1307, there were "de la Mores" in Ayrshire and Lanarkshire, among whom was Adam de la More. In 1391 this man is referred to as Sir Adam "More." In the same year the name becomes Mure. Andrew Mure, the king's uncle, is mentioned as the brother of Elizabeth More, of Rowallan, who married Robert the High Steward of Scotland, who afterward became King Robert II., on the death of David II. without issue. Before this time Reginald de la More, the favorite of King Robert Bruce, was Chamberlain of Scotland, 1329-1341. In Flint County, England, the family was known as More. After the Wyatt insurrection, 1584, many of the family went to Ireland, where the name was spelled Moore. Later, this became the usual method of spelling in England. In America the name appears early. John Moor was a sailor on the ship of Hendrick Hudson, 1609. In 1749 a deed of November 15, 1621, is printed in "Documents relating to the Colonial History of the State of New York," I., 42, in reference to the title of a grant, in the signature of Johan de Moor.

* The family of More in Scotland, by name, date, and place, are given in the "Scottish Genealogical Dictionary," 1892, by George MacDonald.

Rev. John Moore and his descendants invariably use the double o and final e. No signature has been discovered by the compiler spelled otherwise, although in the body of legal instruments it has been spelled More, Moore, Moor, often two or three ways in the same document. Difficulties have been met in investigating early colonial records from the frequent change of the German Mohr to Moore. Families occupying contiguous plantations, in New Jersey particularly, frequently spoke different languages, although bearing the same name. One valuable work on the genealogy of a section of New Jersey has included some of the descendants of Rev. John Moore among the Germans. These descendants are really of pure English stock.

As to the meaning of the name, various conjectures have been made. In Northumberland and Cumberland Counties, in England, there were lands called "The Moor," and their occupants were called "de la Moor." If the family is of

of the Name

French origin, de la Moore would suggest that their ancestors came originally from Morocco, the country of the Moors. The assumption of the Saracen's head as a crest would also suggest this origin, but it was not uncommon to select a symbol for the family crest as a play on the name. The Moor's head would naturally present itself as appropriate. Other families, of whose origin there could be no doubt, used the same sign, and it was a frequent indication of a house of entertainment. If the name is of Anglo-Saxon origin, it may be derived from māre or more, greater in any way, or from mōr, a hill, meaning in one case, great, tall, large, and by an extension of meaning, chief, mighty, great, and in the other case, an inhabitant of the hills. But all these conjectures have little value on account of the great antiquity of the name. In looking into the history of the Scotch family, it is well to avoid the error of supposing that the suffix more, as in Angus More, Fergus More, McCallum More, is a surname. It has no other significance in these names than in Ben More, Loch More, Glenmore, and simply means great.

Kent County is claimed by the family as the original English home of the ancestors of Rev. John Moore. The compiler of this genealogy has not entered into an investigation of this subject. The particular family claimed* had its headquarters from 1400 to 1554 at Benenden, Kent County. Wyatt's rebellion against Queen Mary and Philip, of Spain, had many adherents in Kent. Many residents were banished or removed to Ireland. In 1554 John More sold his place at Benenden, and with his sons removed to Ireland. The following, condensed from Burke's Peerage, will help to follow the argument of Mr. Moore:

Thomas Moore¹, Esq., of Benenden, Kent County, married and had John², Esq., who married Margaret, daughter and heir of John Brent, Esq., and widow of John Dering, Esq., of Surrenden. Sir Edward³, the eldest son, and Sir Thomas⁴ (of Croghan), settled in Ireland in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, the former receiving the Abbey of Mellifont, in County Louth, married Mildred, daughter and co-heir of Nicholas Clifford, Esq., of Chart, Kent County, by whom he had Sir Edward⁵, Kt., eldest son, of Mellifont, Member of Parliament for Dungarvon, 1613, created Baron Moore of Mellifont, July 20, 1616, Viscount Moore of Drogheda, February 7, 1621, married Mary, daughter of Sir Henry Colley, Kt. of Castle Carberry, County Kildare, and died November 9, 1627. Charles⁶, the eldest son, second Viscount, was killed at Montlester, County Meath, in the service of Charles I., August 15, 1643, having had as wife, Alice, the youngest daughter of Sir (Rev.?) Adam Loftus, Viscount Ely.

The arms claimed by the descendants of Rev. John Moore belong to this house. There are branches of the same old family in Northampton County and in Norfolk County, and it is reported that the Chancellor's family† arose from it; he left some descendants in Oxford County and some in Yorkshire.

* Charles B. Moore

† Life of Sir Thomas More, by his grandson

It is in connection with the Loftus family that an effort has been made to show the descent of Rev. John Moore from the Kent County family.

"Catharine, a daughter of Sir (Rev.?) Adam Loftus, an English family in Ireland, of seventeen children, connected by marriage there with the English family of Moore, married Arthur Bostique or Bostock, and had a daughter Margaret. One sister, Letitia, became the first wife of Richard Parsons, son of Sir William; another, Ann, married Richard Parsons, son of Sir Lawrence.

"Arthur Bostock was too unusual a name to be possessed by many at the same time. One of that name appeared early at Southampton. By report he came from Cheshire, England, which was near Ireland. On 29 May, 1643, two acres of land 'upon the plain' were ordered for Arthur Bostock, to lye 'against Robert Bond's west' and against Mr. Gosmer's 'eight acre lot north'.

"Upon the division of the town, when it had forty-four male inhabitants, into wards of eleven persons, bound to furnish two men from each ward to watch for and assist in securing any whales driven on shore: R. Gosmer, Arthur Bostock, Henry Pierson, John Hand, Thomas Hildreth, John Mulford, John Moore, Ellis Cook, Robert Bond, Palke Davis, and Mr. Howe were named in the third ward. The date, as written, was 7 March, 1644, before East Hampton was granted. In 1645 Arthur Bostock had been appointed with Messrs. Stanborough and Barret to lay out the eight and ten acre lots upon the great plain. It seems he challenged Mr. Stanborough to fight a duel, and it is probable he was thereupon arrested and required to give bail. Mr. Cooper of Southampton, and 'John Moore' became bound in 1645 'unto the body of this town,' conditioned 'that Arthur Bostock doe appear at the next quarter court to the Pollen Court bar.' On the entry of the record of this, with no date, it is noted that Arthur Bostock made his appearance according to the recognizance."

"On 6 October, 1646, 'Arthur Bostock was censured by the Court of Magistrates for challenging Mr. Stanborough to fight with him, and to pay for the s^yd offence unto the Towne Ten shillings."

"This is a slight indication that John Moore was of the Irish family. Many from Kent County gathered on that branch of L. I. Easthampton was first called Maidstone. There were several at Southampton who came from Ireland, nearly all Irishmen, and probably Thomas Halsey and Richard Barret, called kinsman of Halsey's son Daniel, were of the number, as well as Hugh Gelston, Nathaniel Donmy and John Kelly."¹

The genealogy of the Loftus family shows the relationship attempted to be established. Edward Loftus¹,² of Swineshead, County York, had two sons, Robert⁴ and Rev. Adam⁴, Archbishop of Armagh, January 20, 1502-3, Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, 1578, and Lord Chancellor of Ireland, who died April 5, 1605, aged 72 years. Robert⁴ had a son Adam⁵, who was Lord Chancellor of Ireland, 1619, and Viscount Loftus of Ely, 1622. Arthur⁵, grandson of Adam⁵, died November 6, 1735, without male issue, leaving a daughter Jane⁶, who married Charles Moore, Lord Moore, Earl of Drogheda.

Rev. Adam Loftus⁴, who died in 1605, married Jane Purby, by whom he had twenty children, thirteen of whom survived, five sons and eight daughters. Of the daughters, Alice⁵ married Viscount Charles Moore; Dorothy⁵, Sir John Moore⁶, who died 1633, of Croghan (Sir Thomas⁵, John⁶, Esq., Thomas⁷); Catharine⁵, Arthur Bostique, who had a daughter Margaret.

The family of Loftus was also connected with the family of Gorges (George, Gorgas). Robert Gorges, D.C.L., married Jane Loftus. He was Secretary to Henry Cromwell. His descendants still live in Ireland. He had a sister Elizabeth, who died in 1668.⁸

Sir William George¹, Knight, of Wraxall, married and had a son Robert², of Batcombe, in County Somerset, who married Ann Webb, of Batcombe, and had Edward³, Mary³, wife of John Moore, Henry³, living in 1623, Christian³, Joyce³, Ann³, Margaret³. Robert George came to New England, as Governor, in 1623.⁹

Sir Arthur Gorges, Chelsea, knighted in 1597, died 1625; married, as second wife, Lady Elizabeth, daughter of Henry, Earl of Lincoln, by which marriage Sir Arthur became possessed of the house of Sir Thomas Moore, which in 1619 he conveyed to Lionel, Lord Cranfeld.*

Riker, in his "Annals of Newtown,"† assigns the arms of the Kent County family to Rev. John Moore. Burke, in his "General Armoury," gives the arms of about one hundred and fifty families of the name of Moore. The heraldic description of the family arms of the Newtown Moores is:

Arms of the

Moore Family

Per fesse indented or and az three mullets in chief gu.

Crest: Out of a ducal coronet or, a Moor's head ppr. wreathed about the temples ar and az.

Motto: Fortis cadere, cedere non potest.‡

In gathering materials for this book the compiler has been surprised at the unanimity displayed by all branches of the family in claims as to their origin in Kent. Many copies of arms have been sent to him from different branches in different states, and from collateral families, and they all agree. Napkins, with the arms woven in, seals, large pictures in colors, are in the possession of various members of the family, some with histories, but the majority simply labeled heirlooms.

The immediate family of Rev. John Moore remained at Newtown, with the exception of Joseph⁴, who settled at Southampton, Long Island. His grandsons took part in the great movement which resulted in the establishment of new States. The sons of John² removed to New Jersey, John³ appearing at Chesterfield, Burlington County, as early as 1695. Thomas³ probably removed to some place in New Jersey, but his identity has not been established. There were Moores of the name of Thomas at Elizabethtown and at Woodbridge. The sons of Captain Gershon² removed to New Jersey. Of the sons of Captain Samuel², some remained on Long Island, others settled in Trenton, Maidenhead and Hopewell townships, in Hunterdon County, N. J., Nathaniel³ appearing at Queenstown (Pennington) in 1708. Of the New Jersey families many went to the South and West, but every effort to discover the connecting links between them has failed. As will appear in the genealogy given later, some of the families disappear at the fourth and others at the fifth generation. The French and Indian Wars will account for the former, and the Revolution for the latter. In 1710 there was a movement of population from Hunterdon County, New Jersey, towards the Southwest, under the leadership of Col. Borden, after whom Bordentown, N. J., was named. At Harbortown, near Lambertville, N. J., there is a graveyard in which there are many of the Moore name buried. The people in the immediate vicinity have no knowledge of these families, and there has been discovered no way of identifying them. We do know, however, that "The subject has interest, as no doubt it was the prime cause of the separation of West Virginia from Virginia at a critical time in our national history. The same families aided largely in making Ohio a free state from 1785 and later, and keeping Kentucky and Tennessee practically in the Union in 1801. There seems to have been a prominent family of Moores in Anwell."§

Some of the family, after the French War, removed to the West Indies. The descendants of Samuel⁴ (Samuel⁴, Capt. Samuel²) cannot be located, although they were residents of New York City. After the revolution some of the name removed to Nova Scotia, others settled "the Genesee Country," others removed to Ohio, and from thence, carried by the stream of emigration, spread over the far West and South. The war between the States caused another distribution, and descendants are found everywhere.

The history of the Church of New England is the history of the Colonies. Ministers with their congregations were the founders of the Colonies. In 1636 Thomas Hooker and his congregation came to build Hartford; the Dörchester The Moore congregation migrated to Windsor, Ct.; the Watertown congrega-Family and tion came to Wethersfield, Ct.; Southold was founded by the
the Church New Haven Colony, and Southampton by colonists from Lynn. In some colonies none but church members could vote and hold office. New Haven was an example. The magistrates were "the pillars of the Church." When New Haven was annexed to Connecticut many of its inhabitants removed to Newark, N. J., and founded that town, 1665-7. Connecticut was more liberal in her views, and allowed non-church members to vote and hold office.*

In the matter of church government in New England, in early times the Independents or Congregationalists were pre-eminent, but later many Presbyterians came from Great Britain to escape religious persecution, and mingled with the early settlers. The Church of Newtown, Long Island, was not distinct from the town, and Rev. John Moore, its first minister, who was "permitted to preach in New England," was an Independent. The people of Newtown were "mostly Independents," although there were "many other Inhabitants, Presbyterians," who were "not able to maintain a Presbyterian preacher."† Rev. Mr. Urquhart, in a letter dated as late as July 4, 1705, says that "the Inhabitants of this county (Queens), are generally Indepen^{ts}."

It is certain that up to the time of Mr. Pumroy's call, February 18, 1709, ordained November 30, 1709, close intercourse was maintained with the Congregational Church of New England, and that all ecclesiastical business was transacted by the inhabitants in public town meeting. It was not until September 13, 1715, when Mr. Pumroy made application to the Presbytery of Philadelphia for admission, that the church of this persuasion began in Newtown. Indeed, the distinctive feature of its church government was not established until June 28, 1724, when Content Titus, Samuel Coe and James Renne were made ruling elders. It seems to have been about this time that the Moore family divided in their ecclesiastical relations—a step of tremendous importance, made evident sixty years later, at the beginning of the revolution.

Injudicious methods pursued by the authorities, which the people resented, prevented the establishment of the Church of England in the province of New York for many years. Lord Cornbury, in 1702, ordered that Domine Freeman be not called to the Dutch churches at Kings; summoned the church wardens of Jamaica, all non-conformists, to appear before him, among whom were Thomas Willet, John Coe, Content Titus, Joseph Sackett; directed the rioters, that is, dissenters, there to be prosecuted; commissioned Rev. Mr. Honyman to be minister of that place; ordered the sheriff to eject Mr. Hubbard from the parsonage, and put in Rev. Mr. Urquhart; directed the minister's money to be paid to the latter; ordered a public tax to be levied for the support of the minister; and finally fined the church wardens and vestrymen of Jamaica for refusing to obey his orders, March 31, 1705.‡ This "true nursing father to our infancy here," would not tolerate "The Inhabitants of this County (who) are generally Independents, and what are not so are either Quakers or of no professed Religion at all, the generality averse to the discipline of our holy mother, the Church of England, and enraged to see her Ministry established among them."*

The governor commissioned Rev. Mr. Goodhue to be Presbyterian minister of Jamaica, forbid Rev. Mr. Hubbard to preach in the church at Jamaica, and declared that it belonged to the Episcopalians. This "noble patron of the Church" failed in his efforts to force Episcopacy upon the people. The stormy pastorate of Rev. Thomas Poyer† followed, and it was under the ministrations of Rev. Thomas Colgan that the Church of England commenced to flourish. In 1733 a deed was drawn up for a part of the town lot for the location of a church, signed by ninety freeholders. Joseph Moore secured these signatures. In 1735 work was commenced upon the building, and five years passed before it was completely finished and furnished. The distribution of the pews gives the names of the prominent members:

"James Hazard, Esq., on the right hand as you go in at the door, number one; Joseph Moore, number two; William Sackett, number three; Benjamin Moore, number four; Richard Alsop, number five; this in the first quarter. The second quarter is the northeast corner of the house: Joseph Sackett, Esq., his seat is number one; John McDonnaugh and Charles Palmer and Thomas Morrell's seat is number two; Samuel Washburn and Samuel Moore Younger's seat is number three; Samuel Hallett Jun's seat is number four; Captain Samuel Moore's seat is number five. The third quarter is the north nor'west part of the house: William Moses Hallett's seat is number one; John Hallett's seat is number two; Thomas Hallett's seat is number three; Jacob Blackwell's seat is number four; Joseph Hallett, Esq., his seat is number five. There's no more seats nor ground taken up in the church."

In 1761 Newtown wished to have its own minister, apart from Jamaica and Flushing, and on September 2, of that year, petitioned Lieut. Governor Colden, in Council, to grant them an act of incorporation by which they might be empowered to call a clergyman. This petition was signed by thirty-four members of the communion. They were:‡

In the letters patent, James Hazard and Richard Alsop were appointed wardens; Samuel Moore, Jacob Blackwell, William Hazard, Jacob Hallett, Richard Alsop 4th, and William Sackett 3d, vestrymen, to serve till the annual election should occur. This was the origin of the separate existence of St. James's Church.

The emigrants from Long Island to New Jersey carried with them the idea of the church and schoolhouse. A deed§ dated March 18, 1698-9, recites the conveyance of one hundred acres of land by Gov. Basse and Thomas Revell, "for the erecting of a meeting-house and for burying ground and school house" to "Ralph Hunt, John Bainbridge, Johannes Lawrenson, William Hixson, John

Many of these names represent Newtown families. It is supposed that the first meeting house was erected at what is now Lawrenceville. Rev. Jedediah Andrews, of the First Presbyterian Church, of Philadelphia, administered the rite of baptism at Maidenhead, N. J., in 1713 and 1714.* Rev. Robert Orr, the first pastor, was installed October 20, 1715. The present churches of Ewing, Pennington and Trenton were in Hopewell Township, that of Lawrenceville was in Maidenhead.†

The Hopewell Church is suggested in two deeds, dated April 20, 1703.‡ The ground is about three miles from Trenton (Old Church). The Episcopalians occupied this site and sold the land in 1838. About 1709 the Hopewell Presbyterians took measures for the erection of a church within three miles of the one just mentioned. After the formation of the township of Trenton (1719-20), it was called the "Trenton First Church," and when Ewing Township was formed was named "The Ewing Church." The destruction of one of two ancient white oaks in the Ewing churchyard, June 3, 1852, suggested to Mrs. Esther Rodman McIlvaine the following lines, addressed to her grandchildren:

Thou venerable oak, the churchyard tree,
With deep regret thy broken form we see;
Two hundred years or more the storms thou braved
Unharmed, while round thy head the tempest raved.
A faithful guard through all that time thou kept,
Above the throng that 'neath thy shadow slept;
The wild tornado's breath hath o'er thee past,
And prostrate on the earth thou liest at last.

In time remote two white oaks had their birth,
Destined for many an age to grace the earth;
And here they stood when our forefathers came,
To build an altar to their Maker's name.
Men from afar—perchance beyond the deep,
This place they chose, their Sabbath rest to keep.
They built an altar of materials rude,
Unhewed the stone, and roughly dressed the wood;
'Twas blessed of Him, whose promised dwelling place
Is where His people meet to seek His grace.

Once in three weeks the stated pastor came,
With gracious message in his Master's name;
Reciprocated all the greetings kind,
Rejoiced in health and peace his flock to find.
The morning service o'er, beneath your shade
They ate their bread, and kind inquiries made—
How fared it with the brother pioneers,
What were their prospects, what their hopes and fears?
What news from home—afar beyond the sea?
Fight Hampden, Cromwell, still for liberty,
Or to his kingdom is King Charles restored?
Has promised, but again to break his word?
Has Scotland sheathed the sword, or does she still
For conscience sake oppose her sovereign's will?
Worship the faithful still in caves and dens,
In forest deep, or wild secluded glens?
For Wales who strikes to put oppression down,
Who nobly dares to wear a martyr's crown?
One to the other thus the tidings bore,
Of clime and kindred they would see no more.

That duty done, once more to praise and pray,
 The church they entered — thus they spent the day.
 They sought religion first, man's greatest good,
 The path the fathers trod the sons pursued.
 Their children to the Lord in covenant given,
 They placed their feet in paths that led to Heaven.
 By precept and example, trained the youth
 In all the ways of honesty and truth.
 None caused their parents or their country shame,
 Of them no record shows a felon's name.
 When war's dark storm across the country came,
 Bravely they faced it in their Maker's name;
 With patriots' zeal their country's battle fought,
 Gained for posterity the boon they sought.
 That duty done, they left the camp and plain,
 And homeward turned to till their fields again.
 Time levels all; the old church passed away —
 It served a holy purpose in its day;
 And faithful men a new foundation laid,
 Offerings of patient toil and substance made.
 Well wrought, the building rose by careful hands,
 Memorial of their zeal the church now stands;
 And to this people, long the Lord hath given,
 Grace, food, and peace, the richest gifts of Heaven.
 Old Trees! when ye were young and small your shade,
 There at your feet a stranger form they laid:
 Now many others rest beside his bed.
 For many a mossy stone the names disclose,
 Of Hart, Reed, Scudder, Howell, Clark and Rose;
 Hunt, Burroughs, Reeder, Hendrickson and Green,
 Fish, Welling, Temple, Lanning, Moore and Deau;
 Cook, Chambers, Carle and Muirheid, Furman, Lott,
 And hundreds without stone to mark the spot.
 These slow processions in their sad array,
 From age to age have traced their mournful way.
 From this enclosure, consecrated ground,
 None shall awake until the last trump sound.
 One name on earth and one alone is given,
 Whereby this numerous host can enter heaven.*

The time of the origin of the Hopewell Church, at Pennington, is not definitely known. The meeting house is mentioned in 1725-6.

"In viewing the history of this church,† we see an illustration of the fact that the original colonists of any region give direction, tone and character to the people gathered into that community, for centuries. The old Presbyterian churches of Jamaica, Newtown, and Hempstead had the moulding of the families who settled here. They did not neglect infant baptism. They brought with them an open Bible and the Sabbath; they planted the sanctuary and the school house side by side, and called for the living preacher; and with divine grace in their hearts, they purposed to establish a free Christian home for themselves and their children. Through their constancy, their labors and their prayers, this has been a spot peculiarly favored with heavenly influences."

Before 1737 the Trenton people worshiping in the two houses, one in the city and one in the country, were organized into a separate congregation.†

One mile west of Pennington is a graveyard on land upon which stood a Presbyterian church. This was the New Side Church. Rev. James Davenport is buried here.

Education was not neglected by our ancestors. "Urged thereto by the founder of the independence of the Netherlands, William the Silent, Prince of Orange, the states general had adopted in the sixteenth century the system of

The Moore Family and Education universal education, which in our days the New England States claim as their creation. Hence we find schools mentioned and school masters at work from the beginning of New Netherland.

As early as 1663 we read of a Government schoolmaster who taught Latin and Greek.* Before 1540 the peasants in Holland could commonly read and write their own language. During the Sixteenth Century free schools supported by public taxation were subjects of legislation.† No surprise need, therefore, be shown that the subject was regarded of great importance, not only by the Dutch, but also by their neighbors, the English. The English may not have copied the idea of the public school from the Dutch, for as John Fiske justly observes: "One of the cardinal requirements of democratic Calvinism was elementary education for everybody."

The town house of Newtown was probably not only a church and the residence of Rev. John Moore, but also a schoolhouse. After the death of Rev. John Moore, in a petition to Gov. Stuyvesant, the petitioners say: "Whereas, God hath been pleased of late years to deprive us of Middelburg, on Long Island, of the public means of grace and salvation, and also of the education of our children in scholastic discipline, the way to true happiness."‡ Mr. Mills was the first schoolmaster who devoted his time entirely to teaching.

May 20, 1721,§ Joseph Hallett executed a deed admitting Samuel Hallett, Samuel Moore, Joseph Moore, Thomas Skillman and Isaac Bragaw as joint owners, with himself, of a lot and house "to be equally enjoyed by them and their heirs severally, and me and my heirs forever, having all and every of us our heirs, and every of them the same equal share, right and title to the above said land and school house, and full power and authority to send what number of children we shall see fit."

In 1734, at Hellgate Neck, several persons combined and built "a small house for a school to be kept in for the education of their children." For this purpose, February 24, 1735, John Lawrence gave a deed for "one square rod of land" to his associates, among whom was Joseph Moore.

"The people of Maidenhead and Hopewell," in New Jersey, made early provision for religion and education, in 1698-9, as already shown. The ground joining a part of the Pennington graveyard has been known from time immemorial as the school house lot.†† In 1731 mention is made of a proposed Latin school in connection with the purchase of a parsonage farm.‡‡ Wherever the family of Moore is found, they are represented in movements for the improvement of the moral and mental growth of the people.

It is difficult to look back and even imagine the social conditions and surroundings of our ancestors. Occasionally, through an old letter, we get a glimpse of their life. The Maryland loyalists were encamped several times at Social Life Newtown. On September 16, 1783, this regiment left New York of the Moore for the Bay of Fundy, in the transport "Martha." The ship F a m i l y was wrecked and more than half the corps perished. Some years after, the commanding officer in writing§§ to a friend, expressed himself in reference to his Newtown experiences:

"I felt great regret at leaving New York, where I had enjoyed the pleasures of social friendship amid a circle of worthy inhabitants—yes, I look back often with heartfelt satisfaction, on the delightful scenes, the heightened joys that filled up every day, even in the severity of winter months, in the sweet village of Newtown, on Long Island, where we frequently had our quarters and cantonments. I hope I may be indulged this small tribute of grateful remembrance and affection for many agreeable families of that place: to the *Moore*s, of that neighborhood, I am particularly indebted, a family ancient and respectable; to the charms of their company, to the hospitable intentions of their numerous connections, I owe many happy hours of festivity and innocent mirth. The Rev. Benjamin Moore had been long eminent in his pastoral functions, as a minister of the Episcopal church; he is a clergyman of most amiable manners, humane, benevolent, affectionate; as much revered in private life as he is admired and distinguished in the pulpit. You will pardon this honest warmth of a susceptible heart. I could not omit this small tribute of gratitude for numerous proofs of affectionate esteem conferred on me by a worthy people."

No better summing up of the characteristics of the old families of New Jersey can be made than that given by a writer in Harper's Magazine:*

"Placed in the geographical centre of the original States which were the germ of the Union, the people of New Jersey at this period united in an unusual degree the conditions requisite to the production of a faithful daguerreotype of our ancestors. They were free from the exceptional, and often transitory, local singularities or peculiarities of those living in the two extremes, and they shared those more numerous traits which formed the permanent substratum common to all. New Jersey was the highway of inter-communication by land between the other States, and there was constant social and commercial intercourse between its people and those of New York and New England on the one side, and those of Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, and Virginia on the other. Its eastern division, known as East Jersey, was largely peopled by settlers from New York and New England; and its western division, West Jersey, by those from the adjacent colonies on the west and south. It derived its tobacco and many of its domestic fruits and vegetables from Delaware, Maryland, and Virginia; its Quaker tenets, its phlegm and frugality from Pennsylvania; its Dutch cupboards, Dutch language, and sturdy Dutch Calvinism from New York; its jealous watchfulness for popular rights, its town-meetings, and much of its assorted variety of religious faiths, from New England; and so blended the features of the other colonies into a harmonious mean as to form a fair microcosmic representative of them all."

Although negro slaves were brought to New Amsterdam as early as 1625, perhaps the earliest suggestion we have of slavery on Long Island is found in a letter† addressed to the Directors of Amsterdam by the Magistrates of Gravesend, The Moore Family and Slavery dated September 14, 1651. The letter‡ of Rev. John Moore, from Heempstede, is dated September 25, 1651. A comparison of these two letters will not only show a great difference in literary style, but in the spirit moving the two writers. The Gravesend letter "humbly requests your Honors to expend, in Negroes or Blacks, whatever means you, in your wisdom, will deem prudent, . . . on condition of our paying you for the same, whatever you will order." And to make the request as strong and tempting as possible, adds "that your Honors will, thereby, have double profits; first, from what we shall pay for those Negroes; secondly, from the Tenth." The Heempstede letter suggests no such project, although the necessity of servants was as great in one case as in the other.

Slavery came, originating in the scarcity of white labor. It "extended not only to the Negro, but to the free-born Indian, brought hither from the South. None seemed to view it as wrong, and slaves were found even in the ministers' families. But while they were bought and sold as a chattel, and though several instances of brutality towards them are recorded, their lives were protected by law, and to the credit of our fathers be it said they usually treated their slaves with much humanity."§ In 1755 Newtown contained 91 male and 72 female slaves above fourteen years of age. Joseph Moore, Esq., Samuel Moore, Esq., Lient. Samuel Moore, John Moore, and Samuel Moore, son of Joseph Moore, Esq., are named in the census as owners of slaves at that time.

 Documentary History of New York, III, 845.

The history of slavery in New Jersey is similar to that of New York. Members of the Moore family owned slaves, and in several wills it will be observed that slaves were left to their children. The great awakening in reference to slavery is noted 9th mo. 2d. 1755, among the Friends of Kingwood Monthly Meeting in New Jersey. On that date we find the following record:

"Agreeable to the advice contained in the Extract of our Yearly Meeting the following Friends are appointed to visit those who hold slaves, neglect the attendance of meeting for divine worship, those who are subject to Drowsiness and those who violate our testimony against oaths."*

Later, as the conscience of the people recognized the unrighteousness of slavery, many voluntarily manumitted their slaves.

In all the early provincial wars, members of the family from New York and New Jersey are found fighting under their King. In the wars against the Indians, and in the French War, 1755-1762, members of both families served.†

The Moore Family in Colonial Wars and the Revolution we have Captain Samuel Moore and Ensign Gershom Moore; in 1700 Ensign Joseph Moore and Captain Content Titus; in 1715 Sergt. Jonathan Moore, Sergeant Benjamin Moore, Private Gershom Moore, Jr., and in New Jersey, Lieut. Nathaniel Moore, and Privates Samuel Moore and Jonathan Moore and John Moore. Later we find Captain John Moore, of New Jersey, and Samuel Moore, weaver, of Newtown.

At the beginning of the Revolutionary War all acknowledged their rightful sovereign, all recognized the injustice and oppression of the British Government, and all hoped that their grievances might be redressed by peaceful and constitutional means. When the time arrived for settlement by the terrible arbitrament of war, the people were divided into two parties, one clinging to the hope that a peaceful settlement could still be effected, the other boldly declaring that the sword could alone cut their bonds. The thought of separation from the mother country had not even then suggested itself clearly to those who were willing to shed blood. At this time brother was arrayed against brother, father against son, and a well-defined cleavage line ran through families. On Long Island a large and very respectable minority remained loyal to the King and suffered untold misery during the war, and afterward were banished to Nova Scotia. The "Loyalists" constituted a majority of the wealthy and highly educated classes. "The officers and clergy" (Episcopal), who formed the backbone of the Tory Party "received the support of the landowners and the substantial business men, the men who were satisfied with the existing order of things. The aristocracy of culture, of dignified professions and callings, of official rank and hereditary wealth, was in a large measure found in the Tory Party."‡

The branch of the family which settled in New Jersey, 1695 and later, were without exception adherents of the people's cause, and living at the center of military operations, were ravaged first by one army and then by the other. Their sufferings were only equaled by that of their relatives on Long Island. At Newtown the Committee of Correspondence, of which Samuel Moore was a member, adopted the following resolutions:§

"Queens County, 29th Dec., 1774.

At a meeting of the committee chosen by the freeholders of the township of Newtown, the said committee having seriously considered the consequences that must evidently flow from the several acts of the British Parliament to raise revenue in America; and likewise that of having power to bind the people of these colonies, by statute, in all cases whatsoever; that of extending the limits of the admiralty court, whereby the judges of said court are empowered to receive their salaries and fees from effects to be condemned by themselves, and his Majesty's American subjects deprived of the right of trial by jury; that of requiring oppressive security from the claimants of ships or goods seized, before they shall be allowed to defend their property; that of empowering the commissioners of customs to break and enter houses without the authority of any civil magistrate; that of stopping the port of Boston, and changing the form of government in Massachusetts Bay, and the Quebec bill;* all of which, as appears to us, are intended absolutely to deprive his Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the inhabitants of the American colonies, of their most inestimable rights and privileges, by subjungating them to the British Parliament, and driving them to the dire necessity of submitting to have their property taken from them without their consent; which we conceive is one of the most deplorable situations to which a free people can be reduced, and absolutely repugnant to the constitution of Great Britain; therefore,

Resolved, 1, That we consider it as our greatest happiness and glory to be governed by the illustrious House of Hanover, and that we acknowledge and bear true and faithful allegiance to King George the Third, as our rightful sovereign, and under his protection have a right to enjoy the privileges of the constitution of Great Britain, as founded on the Revolution principles, in as full and ample a manner as our fellow subjects residing there; that we consider ourselves, one people, connected by the strongest ties of interest and affection, and that we lament, as our greatest misfortune, any occurrence which shall have a tendency to destroy that mutual confidence which the mother country and her colonies should repose in each other.

Resolved, 2, That we conceive it to be a fundamental part of the British constitution that a man shall have the disposal of his own property, either by himself or representatives; and as we are not, and, from our local circumstances, cannot be represented in Parliament, we consider all acts, by them, imposing taxes on the colonies, as subversive of one of the most valuable privileges of the English constitution, and having a direct tendency to alienate the affections of the colonists from their parent state.

Resolved, 3, That it is our indispensable duty to transmit, unimpaired, to posterity, all our most valuable rights and privileges, as we receive them from our ancestors; particularly that most inestimable right of disposing of our own property, either by ourselves or representatives.

Resolved, 4, That as some mode of opposition to acts of Parliament, imposing taxes in America, has been, by the inhabitants of the different colonies on this continent, thought necessary, to secure our invaded rights and properties; which mode has been left to the determination of the delegates, sent by each colony, and met in congress, at Philadelphia, in September last; they having, among other articles of their association, recommended that a committee be chosen in every county, city, and town, whose business it should be to observe the conduct of all persons, touching said association; and as we are willing to establish harmony and union, we will, so far as our influence extends, endeavor that the measures adopted and recommended by said congress, be strictly adhered to in this town.

Resolved, 5, As we highly approve of the wise, prudent, and constitutional mode of opposition, adopted by our worthy delegates in general congress, to the several late tyrannical and oppressive acts of the British Parliament, we therefore render our sincere and hearty thanks to those gentlemen, for their patriotic spirit, in so cheerfully undertaking the difficult and arduous task; for their faithfulness in council, and great wisdom in drawing conclusions, which, through the influence of Divine Providence, we trust will be the means of securing to us our liberties and privileges, as freeborn Englishmen, and again restore harmony and confidence throughout the British empire, which is the hearty wish of all the friends to liberty and foes to oppression.

Signed, by order of the committee,

JACOB BLACKWELL, Chairman."

MR. RIVINGTON:—

Reading in Mr. Holt's last Thursday's paper, certain resolves signed by Jacob Blackwell, chairman, entered into by some inhabitants of Newtown, approving of the proceedings of the continental congress; you are hereby requested to inform the public that we the subscribers were no way concerned in those resolves, neither do we acknowledge any other representatives but the members of the general assembly of the province."

To this, among others, were attached the names John Moore, Jr., Nathaniel Moore, John Moore, Samuel Moore, Sr., Samuel Moore, 3d. In this manner the division was publicly made.

* Owing to the destruction of several cargoes of tea by the indignant people of Boston, the Parliament, in retaliation, passed the Boston Port Bill, an act precluding that port from the privilege of discharging or shipping any kinds of merchandize. By another bill they essentially altered the charter of Massachusetts, making the appointment of the council, justices, judges, &c., dependent upon the crown.

The Quebec Bill extended the limits of Canada so as to border on the western frontiers of the United Colonies; and was especially designed to prevent the Canadians from having any sympathy with the political movements in these colonies.

† Riker's Annals, 178.

At a meeting held April 3, 1775, to elect a representative to a convention to be held in New York City, April 20, to choose delegates to another General Congress, May 10, at Philadelphia, Captain Samuel Moore is one of one hundred freeholders who elected Colonel Jacob Blackwell deputy from Newtown. Every other town in Queens County voted against deputies. A comparison of the names signed to various documents will show how completely the division among families had become.

Voting against deputies finally resulted in the Provincial Congress summoning the inhabitants of the counties to appear before them, by committee. This action being of no avail, a direct summons of twenty-six persons, charged as leaders, was made. No attention being paid to the summons, December 21, the convention resolved that those who had voted against deputies had been guilty of a breach of the General Association, and ordered their names to be made public in printed hand bills. A list of the names was sent to the Continental Congress, at Philadelphia, with a request for advice and assistance.

January 3, 1776, the Continental Congress, at Philadelphia, took the following action:

"Whereas, a majority of the inhabitants of Queens county, in the colony of New-York, being incapable of resolving to live and die freemen, and being more disposed to quit their liberties than part with the little proportion of their property that may be necessary to defend them, have deserted the American cause, by refusing to send deputies as usual to the convention of that colony; and avowing by a public declaration, or unmanly design of remaining inactive spectators of the present contest, vainly flattering themselves, perhaps, that should Providence declare for our enemies, they may purchase their mercy and favor at an easy rate; and on the other hand, if the war should terminate in favor of America, that then they may enjoy, without expense of blood or treasure, all the blessings resulting from that liberty which they in the day of trial had abandoned, and in defence of which, many of their more virtuous neighbors and countrymen had nobly died; and although the want of public spirit observable in these men rather excites pity than alarm, there being little danger to apprehend either from their prowess or example, yet it being reasonable that those who refuse to defend their country should be excluded from its protection and prevented from doing injury:*

Resolved, That Colonel Nathaniel Heard, of Woodbridge, in the Colony of New Jersey, taking with him five or six hundred Minute Men, under discreet officers, do march to the western part of Queens County, and that Colonel Waterbury, of Stamford, in the Colony of Connecticut, with the like number of Minute Men, march to the eastern part of the said County; that they confer together, and endeavour to enter the said County on the same day; that they proceed to disarm every person in the said County, who voted against sending Deputies to the said Convention, and cause them to deliver up their arms and ammunition on oath, and that they take and confine in safe custody, till further orders, all such as refuse compliance. That they apprehend and secure, till further orders, the persons named as principal men among the disaffected in the said County, in a summons for their appearance before the Convention of New York, issued the 12th of December last; viz.: of Newtown, Nathaniel Moore, John Moore, Sr., Samuel Hallett, John Moore, Jr., William Weyman, John Shoals, Jeromus Rapalje, and others.† And all such other persons who shall be found in arms, or who shall oppose the carrying the above Resolutions into effect, as the said Colonel Heard or Colonel Waterbury may think prudent to detain.

Resolved, That it be recommended to the said Colonel Heard and Colonel Waterbury, to execute the business intrusted to them by the foregoing Resolutions, with all possible despatch, secrecy, order, and humanity.

Resolved, That the Committee of Safety of the Colony of Pennsylvania be requested to furnish Colonel Heard with two hundred pounds of Gunpowder.

Resolved, That the sum of five hundred dollars be forthwith transmitted, with certified copies of these Resolutions, to each of them, the said Colonel Heard and Colonel Waterbury, and that they, on their return, report to this Congress a true state of their expenditure and proceedings."‡

Colonel Heard left Woodbridge, N. J., January 17, and was joined at New York by Sterling's battalion of about three hundred. He crossed at Horn's Hook, near Hell Gate, on the 19th, and proceeded to Newtown, Jamaica, Hempstead, Jericho and Norwich to Oyster Bay, collecting arms, taking the declaration of the inhabitants, and arresting the principal men. No opposition was offered.

The following oath was administered :

"We, the subscribers, in the presence of Almighty God, do most solemnly and sincerely swear, that the fire-arms, side-arms, powder and lead, we respectively delivered up to Col. Heard and his party, or by them taken from us, are all that belong to us, or in our possession or power ; and that we have not destroyed, concealed or otherwise disposed of any of our said arms or ammunition, in order to evade or obstruct the execution of Col. Heard's orders from the Continental Congress, for disarming the inhabitants of Queens county, who are disaffected to the opposition now making in America against Ministerial Tyranny."*

Seven of the principal men having left their homes, only nineteen were arrested. These were sent to Philadelphia to appear before the Continental Congress, the action of which is appended :

"The Committee appointed to confer with Colonel Heard returned, and laid before Congress a list of the names of nineteen persons taken into custody by Colonel Heard, by order of Congress, and brought to Philadelphia ; also, two oaths, taken by a number of the inhabitants of Long Island, one upon delivering up their arms, and the other respecting their future conduct.

The names of the prisoners are Benjamin Whitehead, Joseph French, John Polhemus, Nathaniel Moor, Samuel Hallet, William Weyman, John Shoals, John Willet, Gilbert Van Wyck, Daniel Kissam, Jacob Mott, Gabriel G. Ludlow, Charles Hicks, Samuel Martin, Samuel Clowes, Thomas Smith, George Weeks, David Brooks, John Townsend.

Ordered, That the said nineteen Prisoners be sent to New York, and delivered to the Order of the Convention of that Colony, who are requested to confine or secure the said persons, until an inquiry be had by the Convention into their conduct, and report thereof made to this Congress.

Ordered, That the Committee confer with Col. Heard about the mode of sending them.† February 6, 1776."

In New York they were placed under guard of Colonel Lasher, at a house of their own selection and at their own expense.

The following petition from the persons arrested by Colonel Heard was presented to the Provincial Congress, but action was postponed :

"A Petition of John Willett, and fourteen other persons, praying to be relieved from their present confinement, was read. Debates arose thereon. Thereupon the question was put, whether the same should be taken into consideration immediately, and carried by a majority ; but being late, the same is deferred till to-morrow.

"To the Honourable The Provincial Congress for the Colony of New York, convened in the City of New York.

Whereas your Petitioners, on the 12th instant, presented a Petition to this honourable body, praying to be admitted to return to their respective families, upon parole of honour, but have been so unhappy as not to have heard anything relative to that matter, as yet, and are still in close confinement to the great prejudice of themselves and families ; they therefore humbly entreat this honourable body to take their case into consideration, and grant them such relief as to this honourable House may seem meet. And your Petitioners will ever pray.

The petition was considered later, and action taken as here indicated :

"The Congress took into consideration the Petition of John Willett, and others, Inhabitants of Queens County, now under guard in this City. Thereupon, on motion made,

Resolved, That the said John Willett, Benjamin Whitehead, Thomas Smith, William Weyman, Nathaniel Moore, Daniel Kissam, John Shoals, Samuel Hallett, Gilbert Van Wyck, John Townsend, John Polhemus, Charles Hicks, Samuel Martin and David Brooks, be released from their confinement, upon their giving sufficient security for their appearance, when required, before this or any future Congress or Committee of Safety of this Colony ; and, also, that they will in the mean time deport themselves peaceably, and make no opposition to the measures of this or the Continental Congress, nor instigate others thereunto ; and in their paying all expenses occasioned by their confinement. Thereupon, a draft of an Obligation, to be given with security by the said John Willett, and the other prisoners above mentioned, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit :

The condition of this Obligation is such, that if the above bounden . . . shall well and truly appear before this present or any future Provincial Congress or Committee of Safety of this Colony within six days after he shall have been summoned, or within six days after a notification for that purpose shall have been left at his last place of abode, and then and there abide by and observe all such orders and directions as shall be then and there enjoined him; and in the meantime, if he shall behave himself peaceably, and make no opposition to the measures of the Continental Congress of the United Colonies, or of the Provincial Congress of this Colony of New York, nor instigate others so to do, then this obligation to be void; but on failure of any or either of the above conditions, to be and remain in full force.

Ordered, That one of the Secretaries be authorized to go down to the said John Willett, and the other persons under guard with him and receive from them their respective Bonds, duly executed with sufficient securities; and discharging the pay and expenses of the guard, the said Secretary do give them certificates of their being permitted to go at large; and that they be thereupon permitted to go at large."^{*}

The Congress made sure that the prisoners should pay their own expenses.

Colonel Lasher being sent for, attended.

He was requested to make out an account of the pay and subsistence of the several guards, who have been on duty, guarding the Prisoners from Queens County, and was requested to attend and receive the money from the Prisoners before they are discharged.†

Congress had appointed May 17, 1776, as a day of fasting and prayer for the success of the patriotic cause. On that day, what was supposed to be the King's standard, was seen flying from the premises of John Moore, Jr. The story is best told by the official record of Congress.

"A letter from the Committee of Newtown, dated yesterday, was read and filed. They therein inform that, on complaint of several of the inhabitants of Newtown against John Moore, Jun., of a fresh insult to the United Colonies, by hoisting, or suffering to be hoisted, on his ground a large Flag in imitation of the King's Standard; and as he had refused to give sufficient satisfaction to the Committee, that they have sent him down to this Congress for examination, together with a Flag, under a guard, by Captain Abraham Remsen.

Captain Abraham Remsen, with the said Flag, and John Moore, Jun., the prisoner, were brought in.

John Moore, Jun., examined, says: 'That it was a parcel of School boys who go to school in Newtown, who hoisted colours on his field; that he first saw them on a small, and afterwards on a high, pole of fifteen or twenty feet; that he does not know whose colours they are, and why they were put up; that he first saw them hoisted on a fast-day; that the boys told him they got the colours of a lad from New York, now in Newtown, whose name is Moore; that he ordered them down on the fast-day, but not afterwards; that as children put them up, he did not imagine that men would take notice of it; that he has not signed the General Association;‡ that it was not offered him to sign; that he knew where the Association was one day; that no person ever advised him to have the Flag taken down; that it was flying in his yard when the gentlemen of the Committee came for him yesterday; and they took it down; that it has been up some days and down on other days; that he lives near the school; that Thomas Walton's son lodges with him; that there are two sons of Mr. Le Roy, two of Thomas White, and one of Mr. Mathews, and others, about sixteen or seventeen in number; that he does not recollect what is in the Association. Being asked if he would defend the United Colonies by force of arms, answered that he did not choose to fight, and never meant to fight if he could avoid it, and would avoid it as long as he could.'

Captain Abraham Remsen withdrew with his prisoner, and the Congress took the same into consideration.

On motion of Mr. Morris,

Ordered, That John Moore, Jun., be kept in this town a prisoner upon his parole, until the Congress shall make further order concerning him.

Captain Remsen and John Moore, Jr., were called in.

The said John Moore, Jun., in Congress gave his promise parole to abide and Tarry in the City of New York, and attend at the City-Hall from day to day, ready to obey the call or direction of this Congress, and not to depart the City without leave. He was thereupon permitted to go at large.

A draft of a Letter to the Committee of Newtown, returning them thanks for their vigilance, was read, and approved of and is in the words following, to wit:

'Gentlemen: I am directed by the Congress to return you the thanks of this Congress for your zeal manifested in the securing John Moore, Jun., and sending him to this city.'

With the warmest wishes for success upon every effort you shall make in the great and glorious cause of freedom, I have the honour to be, gentlemen, your most obedient and humble servant.

Ordered, That a copy of the said letter be signed by the President and transmitted.,

After Queens County came into possession of the British, the leading Whigs having been thrown into prison, their property seized and practical conquest effected, many united with the loyalists in a petition† to the King's Commissioners, that the county might be restored to royal favor. This petition was signed by 1293 persons, among whom were Stephen Moore, Jos. Moore, John Moore, Jacob Moore, Sam'l Moore, Sr., John Moore, Jr., Ja's Moore, Lambert Moore, Nathan'l Moore, Nathan'l Moore, Jr., Benj. Moore, Samuel Moore, David Moore. The petition is dated "21st October, 1776."

On April 28, 1779, upon the withdrawal of Col. Sterling, from Newtown, an address was presented to him, worded as follows:‡

"The inhabitants of Newtown beg leave to make their hearty and grateful acknowledgements to Col. Sterling, and the officers of the 42d regiment, for their very equitable, polite and friendly conduct during their winter stay among them: they will ever entertain an affectionate esteem and regard for them, and will never forget that they have been treated with all the justice and cordiality due to fellow subjects and citizens.

They, at the same time, request the favor of Col. Sterling to return their sincere thanks to the regiment in general, for their regular, orderly and honorable behavior, so conformable to the true character of gentlemen and soldiers.

They part with the 42d regiment with regret, and wish them glory and success. April 28, '79."

Among the 93 signers of the address were John Moore, Jr., James, Samuel, Sr., Jacob, Sam'l 3d, John, David, Samuel, Jr., Nathan'l, Nathaniel, Jr.

After embarkation,§ Colonel Sterling indited the following reply, dated on board the Nestor transport, May 1st:

"Gentlemen: It gives me a very sensible pleasure to find the orderly and good behavior of the 42d regiment, under my command, during their winter quarters in Newtown, has drawn so honorable an acknowledgement from the inhabitants of that district. It has ever been my wish and study to protect the peaceable subject to the utmost of my power, at a time when the civil law, owing to this unhappy rebellion, is suspended from giving that protection so enviable and so much to be wished for, by every one who has tasted the sweets of it. I beg to assure the inhabitants of Newtown of every protection in my power as a soldier, and of every good wish as a fellow-citizen, for their welfare and happiness."

"Newtown was a prey to depredation, alarm and cruelty for the space of seven long years. The civil courts were suspended, and martial law prevailed, as crime emanated to a great extent from the soldiery.

When peace came, and the British army withdrew from Long Island, those who had been loyal to the King were subjected to all sorts of cruel treatment, and they were glad to enter into banishment from their country.

The condition of New Jersey at the commencement of the Revolution was not different from that of Long Island. The same division of sentiment existed, and the same hardships were suffered by both parties. Long Island, after the defeat of Washington, at the battle so named, was continuously under the domination of the British for seven years. Apart from the attacks of American whale-boatmen and forage parties, little was known personally of the war. But with

New Jersey the case was entirely different. After the evacuation of New York, November 8, 1776, the American Army retreated across New Jersey, too weak to make a stand at any point, and so completely bereft of all means of defense, as to be without a single entrenching tool. The patriot cause was at its lowest ebb, and in this supreme moment many faltered and repeated the fatal error of their friends on Long Island under similar conditions, when they subscribed to a declaration of submission to royal authority. Very many, some high in the councils of the patriots, renounced their adhesion and sought safety under the proclamation of Lord Howe.

New Jersey was the seat of war for several years. "Her losses, both of men and property, in proportion to the population and wealth of the State, was greater than of any other of the thirteen States."* The plantations of the Moores, of Hopewell, Maidenhead and Princeton, resounded to the tread of hostile armies, and while the men were a part of the military forces, the women were subjected to all the hardships of the strife.†

The bitterness between the loyalists and those who espoused the patriot cause was often a matter of church affiliation. The Church of England, with its prayers for the King, represented the royal cause, and the Presbyterian Church, which expressed its views without equivocation or softness, stood for the other. Party spirit ran so high that an expression of it against the Presbyterians represented the cause of the party. The sawing off of the steeple of the Presbyterian Church, of Newtown, by some young loyalists, illustrates the condition of public feeling. In New Jersey, the Moores of Hunterdon County were, so far as ascertained, all Presbyterians, and lined up on the side of liberty and independence. The family strife, therefore, did not exist as at Newtown, L. I.

At the close of the Revolution, the mistaken policy of banishment and confiscation, protested against by many of the most uncompromising patriots, was carried out to the bitter end. Eighty years later a better civilization recoiled from the application of the same methods to the defeated South. When the peace of 1782 was made known, "that portion of the inhabitants who from honest motives but false views had been led to take a decided stand and active part in support of royal authority, were sunk in the depths of despondency at the utter prostration of their hopes." When it is remembered that the help of these people would have been invaluable in rebuilding the governmental fabric, nothing but regret can be expressed that wiser counsels did not prevail. At the fall of Cornwallis, October 19, 1781, four hundred and seventy-one heads of families associated to settle on lands granted to loyalists in Nova Scotia.‡ The town they founded was called Sheldon. On April 27, 1783, six thousand refugees sailed on a fleet of eighteen vessels. September 29, 1783, the fleet§ for Nova Scotia of thirty sail put to sea.

Later many returned and were received by the Whigs with compassion, at least, although for a hundred years the name of Tory was one of opprobrium, and perhaps is still among a certain class. The true history of the Revolution is yet to be written. When it is, men will be ready to admire the sturdy pride of the Loyalist, who in the midst of calumny, persecution, confiscation and death, stood by his oath of fealty to his King. The patriot who believed that the solution of the knotty question could only be by the sword, will receive no less honor for his firmness in poverty, sickness, in the winter's camp at Valley Forge, or the summer's battlefield of Monmouth. The outrages of both sides will not be forgotten, but excused on the ground of human frailty, and the history will be true, and therefore none such as has yet been written.

The history of the organization of the New Jersey Militia in the Revolution is interesting, particularly that of the "Minute Men," about whose existence many have no knowledge, it being a common belief that "Minute Men" were limited to New England.

"On June 3, 1775,* a plan for regulating the militia of the Colony" was passed in the Provincial Congress of New Jersey, at Trenton. August 16, 1775, the plan was amended, and 'Minute Men' were ordered to be furnished by the different Counties. 'These companies of militia called "Minute Men" were held in constant readiness, on the shortest notice, to march to any place where assistance might be required, for the defence of this or any neighboring Colony.' They were to continue in service four months, and they had precedence of rank over the "Common Militia" of the Province. On the 31st of August, 1775, it is noted that the "Minute Men" were directed to adopt for their uniform, hunting frocks, as near as may be to the uniform of riflemen in Continental service. In case of an alarm, the "Minute Men" were directed to repair immediately to their Captains' residences, and he was to march his company instantly, to oppose the enemy."

In Hunterdon County alone there were eight companies. Probably many of the family whose names are given below were "Minute Men" before they became members of the companies named. The following is not an exhaustive list of descendants of Rev. John Moore who served in the war for independence, in New Jersey, but what it is may be depended upon for accuracy.

These soldiers gave a good account of themselves :

"When General Washington was retreating through the Jerseys, almost forsaken by all others, her militia were at all times obedient to his orders ; and for a considerable length of time composed the strength of his army. There is hardly a town in the State that lay in the progress of the British army that was not signalized by some enterprise or exploit. At Trenton the enemy received a check which may be said with justice to have turned the tide of the war.

In the summer of 1778, Sir Henry Clinton retreated with the British army from Philadelphia, through New Jersey, to New York. The battle of Monmouth signalizes this retreat. The military services performed by the soldiers of New Jersey, and the sufferings of her people during the Revolutionary War, entitle her to the gratitude of her sister States. By her sacrifices of blood and treasure in resisting oppression, she is entitled to stand in the foremost rank among those who struggled for American freedom."*

Throughout the genealogy will be found the names of many who served their country on land or sea, in the War of 1812-14, the Mexican War, the war The Moore between the States, and the Spanish-American War. It is grati-
F a m i l y i n fying to find that so many of the family held opinions and were

GENEALOGY.

1. REV. JOHN MOORE, the founder of this branch of the family, was of English birth, and was probably born about 1620. John Moore was in Lynn,* Massachusetts, in 1641. The same year he appeared as a grantee of land at Southampton, Long Island. He married Margaret Howell, the daughter of Edward Howell, of Boston and Lynn, who was the leader of the colony which established the new town of Southampton on Long Island. It is conjectured that the marriage took place about 1641. He died at Newtown, Long Island, September 17, 1657, and was buried in the ancient town burial ground. His widow married Francis Doughty, the son of Rev. Francis Doughty.

The following sketch† was written by the late Charles B. Moore, Secretary of the New York Genealogical Society, who was a member of the Moore family of Southold, Long Island, and not a descendant of Rev. John.

At a town meeting in Southampton, L. I., on April 6, 1641, four orders were made by the crudely organized democracy, or manor court, of that new settlement, which have been preserved, in "the first book of records."‡ Their theme was caution as to Indians.

The first order was:

"Yt is Ordered that noe man shall giue or lende unto any Indian or Indians eyther "gunnes, pistols or any other Instruments of Warre, viz., powder, shott, Bullets, matches, "swords, or any other engine of warre whatsoever; Upon payne of the forfeiture of his "whole personal estate found within the limits of Southampton, and also to be liable to the "Censure of the Court for what corporall punishment they shall thinke meet to inflict upon "such like offenders."

The second order of same date was:

"Yt is ordered that any person whatsoever hath any Lott or Lotts upon Shinecock "playne in the which there are any Indian Barnes or wells lying open, whereby cattle have "or may take hurte or harme, the owners or overseers of such Lotts shall fill up all such "Barnes or welles by the tenth day of this month, upon payne of payeing all such damage "as arise by their neglect, and further to answer for their contempt at the next Court."

The third order, believed to be of the same date, was:

"It is ordered that there shall be three planteing lotts layed out, abutting upon the "Little Common appertayneing vnto each of the forty eight Acres, viz: to Henry Symonds, "the first lott, to Mr. Abraham Peirson the second Lott, and to John Moore, the third lott; "yt being further ordered that the persons above mentioned shall be at the charge of feu- "cing the sayd lotts, so much as they shall abutt vpon the little common."

The remaining order, supposed to be of the same date, was:

"Yt is ordered that Mr. Howe is to have his planteing lott at the end of Allen Bredes "planteing lott, and yt is to lye three acres in length, and soe much in bredth as will make "the lott to containe three score and four Acres;" — (i. e., 64 acres, being 16 acres larger than others).

These orders are the earliest and perhaps the most appropriate introduction of John Moore to our attention. They were connected with the idea of planting, building, and residing outside of the close village of Southampton,§ east of it.

The provision for Mr. Howe referred to Daniel Howe, several times chosen to represent Lynn in Massachusetts, who took charge of the vessel, obtained by the first band at Lynn,†† composed of Edward Howell, Allen Bread, and others, and agreed to hold it, upon prescribed terms, "for the use of the plantacon;" not to sell it without consent of the major part, and to be ready at Lynn to transport goods three times in the year, the 1st, the 4th, and the 8th month, etc. (meaning March, June and October).

"March 16, 1643, John Moore was censured for saying Daniel Howe did usurpe the execution of the place of Magistrate, he'" (probably meaning Mr. Howe) "then lyein under Church censure, not being then deposed or degraded from the same. And to confesse his fayling yf hee shall bee at the next quarter court."

March 7, 1644, John Moore was assigned to the whaling squadron for the third ward.*

In the articles† agreed to on May 30, 1644, for Southampton's union with the Connecticut Colony of Hartford, the names of Edward Howell, John Gosmer, ‡ and John Moore are recited as the representatives of Southampton. The composition and penmanship of the young man, it is quite probable, were more in demand than his advice.

In October, 1644, after Southampton was recognized as belonging to the (Hartford) Connecticut Colony organization, which did not require voters or officers to be church members, "Mr. Moore and Robert Bond were appointed for Southampton to collect subscriptions for scholars to be educated at Cambridge, § and Edward Howell, John Gosmere and John Moore were deputed by (or for) Southampton to negotiate a union with the New England colonies." On March 6, 1645, "upon the new measuring of the eight acre lots," "what shall be left as overplus of Tho. Hildreth's 8 acre lotte shall lye in length next to Mr. Gosmer's and John Moore's eight acres." This shows that John Moore had eight acres next to Mr. Gosmer. Robert Bond in 1643 had three acres granted him "lying on the south side of Mr. Gosmer's eight acre lot." Arthur Bostock's two acres were against Robert Bond's west. By comparing and tracing these, we learn the location of the land, which placed Mr. Moore and his neighbors in the third ward, outside of and east of the old village, and not far from modern Bridge Hampton.

In 1645, Mr. Cooper, of Southampton, and John Moore became bound in £5 "unto the body of this towne," conditioned "that Arthnr Bostock doe appear at the next quarter court to be holden — October."

October 6, 1646, Arthur Bostock was censured for challenging Mr. Stanborough to fight a duel.

Before October, 1646, it is probable that this John Moore was at Cambridge, perhaps as a student, to complete his studies, and was deputed to and attended a meeting of the synod of ministers held probably at the same time as the meeting of the General Court in Massachusetts. It is possible he had studied some with Rev. Mr. Pierson at Southampton, and was recommended by him. We have no precise proof of it. It would be surprising if Mr. Pierson's Yorkshire tones, or dialect, suited all his parishioners, even as a reader, while some required that he should speak or read so that Yorkshiremen could understand him when they could hardly comprehend ordinary English. It appears that money was furnished to John Moore and Edward Mitchellson (known as the marshal of Massachusetts, for whom this young man might be a convenient clerk) to provide provisions for the members of the synod and of the General and Particular Courts in session; some probably from the public treasury; (and others perhaps expected by subscription, or as pay for meals for members of the 3d House, or petitioners in attendance). Robert Bridges, of Lynn, in that month of October, 1646, was presiding officer of the House of Deputies, but after that an Assistant or Magistrate. John Endecott was not then Governor, but perhaps was Deputy Governor presiding. After this he was not elected Governor until 1649.

A petition†† was presented, probably in the handwriting of John Moore, signed by him and Mr. Mitchellson, in these words:

The writer has looked in vain over the brief minutes preserved for any other notice of this, and has looked in vain for any other writing or signature of Mr. Moore, with which to compare this. There were several other John Moores, but probably none who could write like this; and there are some strong circumstances in favor of his identity; he having been authorized to collect subscriptions for scholars at Cambridge, and appointed with his seniors to negotiate a union with the United Colonies, which was successful, and as agreed by all he was "permitted in New England to preach, but not authorized to administer sacraments;" which license, we suppose, must have been granted at such a synod, and about 1646-1649.*

On June 24, 1647, John Moore was present at a town meeting† in Southampton, after it had been visited by magistrates from Connecticut, and was one of seven principal men who certified that all the inhabitants of the town (except three) were present and consented to an important agreement (to bury differences, etc.). The names were in this order: Edward Howell, Abraham Pierson, Richard Odell, John Moore, Thomas Halsey, Henry Pierson, Jo. Gosmer, Job Sayre.

On March 8, 1649, his name was on the list‡ of "perfect freemen" of Southampton; only sixteen in number, probably church members, but not including either of the Piersons, nor William Rogers (gone). On May 9, 1649, his name was not on the list of townsmen,§ 29 in number. The written agreement with Rev. Robert Fordham to preach at Southampton took effect on April 1, 1649. Rev. Mr. Pierson, after June 24, 1647, and before the 9th of March, 1649, went to Branford, in Connecticut, under the New Haven organization, where none were to hold office or vote but church members, and several followed him. Serious difficulties with the Indians were apprehended, and the settlers were at this time excited by finding them armed and jealous. The wife of Thomas Halsey was murdered at night, in 1649, in his lonely residence, not then in the village; and Lyon Gardiner urging Wyandank, the murderers were arrested by him and called Pequots. It seems that neither Pierson, nor Bostwick, nor

* The following has been suggested as evidence that John Moore was officiating as minister at Salem, Massachusetts: "In 1643 at a general Town meeting John Moore it is ordered shall have 1/2 peck of corn from every family and all such as are at their homes and such as are able to bestow more accordingly as God shall enable them and that Mr. Garford and others shall receive it in town and John Balch for the Basse river."

Moore, had any house or lot in the village. The subject of the Dutch Governor's selling or giving guns to the Indians became soon a serious item, and an element of complaint and dispute. The settlers on the west end of Long Island wanted guns* for themselves. After receiving 100, they were permitted by order from Amsterdam, on April 11, 1650, to have 100 more, to be distributed among the people under the care of Jacob Cowenhoven, Captain of the Burghers Guard (1 N. Y. Hist. Doc. 397). On November 3, 1650, it was complained† that "the English of Gravesend, among others, had, with the Director's consent, given the Indians of Canarse some stamped guns," "in payment for their land." The Indians came with the guns, on November 6, to Cowenhoven's house, who complained of it to the Fiscal and to Mr. Montagne, who also had seen the guns, but without any result.

From all the circumstances, it appears that John Moore, at this period, disturbed at the east end of Long Island by the murder of Halsey's wife and other Indian difficulties, left Southampton, and took, or attempted to take, Rev. Mr. Fordham's place‡ at Hempstead, then under Dutch rule, Peter Stuyvesant, Governor.

The next record we have of John Moore on Long Island is by a letter written at Hempstead, dated September 25, 1651, found in Holland, and copied with spelling corrected, in the second volume of N. Y. Colonial (Holland) Documents, p. 156, as follows:

"The Magistrates of Heemstede to the Directors at Amsterdam.
"Honorable and Right Worshipful.

"After tendering our love, humble service, and due reverence, we have taken the liberty to inform your Honors that we have received your friendly and acceptable letters dated Amsterdam, 21st March 1651, by which we learn your Honors' care, attention, and favor towards us; and howbeit we do not deserve such, neither the favors received nor those proffered, whereof although unworthy, yet shall we exert ourselves to be and remain your Honors honest, loving and faithful friends and subjects, as your Honors were pleased formerly to name and style us; being anxious to obey your commands, according to the rules of righteousness, beyond which we are certain your Honors will neither ask nor order. In regard to those who have been malignant or malevolent towards our respected Governor and government, we hope that your Honors will not include us among them, as we have not countenanced nor assisted them nor their complaints or designs. And as we have found the Governor to be an honorable, upright and wise person, of courteous demeanor towards us at all times, in all places, and on all required occasions, we request that we may have him to respect and encourage as far as in our humble power and means lies, as your Honors' President and our very dear Governor. In opposition to those who are contrarily inclined, we say: 'Dieu et mon droit; Honi soit qui mal y pense.' Evil be to him who evil thinks. Hoping that he will endeavor to patronize and protect those who are honest and upright, which is a wholesome principle or fundamental, together with their honest affairs, according to the will of God; we cannot do less than humbly and earnestly thank your Honors for bearing in mind to provide us with powder and lead; requesting in like manner your annual supplement thereof, and we shall endeavor honestly to satisfy you with such pay as we shall receive. But we cannot forego submitting to your Honors one sad grievance or hardship, which is the more painful to us because of your diligence and care to prevent it, and its direful consequences, notwithstanding which our grievances remain unredressed. We mean the daily and public sale to the Indians of powder and lead, many men making such a practise of this trade that they cannot live without this desperate traffic. Thus it is probable that those Indians will in a short time be the destruction both of the Dutch and English, as such practise renders them powerful and merciless; so that unless a supernatural power keep them under, neither nation will be able to resist them. Moreover, since our last letters to your Honors, wherein we sought a reform in this matter, these Indians have been guilty of various insolences; hundreds of them coming on the Island, have killed our cattle and carried them off to their own plantations to feast on them. They have also carried the meat to the Mannhattans, and sold it there to the Dutch in place of venison. They have driven out of the pasture, through the swamps, our remaining and surviving cattle, over our standing corn, so that we have this summer been damaged to the extent of more than a thousand guilders. 'Tis a matter of small moment in their eyes to kill a good ox, merely for the horns to carry powder in. Sometimes they slay a man, sometimes a woman; plunder the houses; purloin our guns; pry into our affairs; endeavor to drown the people; strip the children in the fields and woods; prowl abroad with masks or visors; slaughter our hogs; and when we demand satisfaction challenge us to fight, boasting of their great number of men and guns. All this proceeds from the daily supply of powder, lead and muskets or guns by the Monhaens and Dutch trade. So that if your Honors will not remedy this intolerable plague and that soon—for we dread a heavier misfortune, namely, their barbarous or cruel insurrection—we shall be obliged, though disinclined, to abandon our dwellings and your Honors' jurisdiction. And it sorely roils our English blood that we should be slaves and raise corn and cattle too, for Indian vagabonds; that our wives should be so terrified, our children ill-treated, our substance wasted and endangered, and that all this occurs whilst our hands are tied, and those of our enemies are at liberty and strengthened by their daily supplies and stores. We trust your Honors will seriously consider that in case we suffer wrong, the property of your own nation will therefore, in like manner, suffer should this barbarous and inhuman race be encouraged and strengthened. We seek the welfare and prosperity of the Dutch; but it is not to be endured that they should obtain their incomes or profits in this way, to the ruin and destruction of themselves and us, and the extirpation of both our races. Wherefore the humble Petitioners pray us to request your Honors' attention, with all possible expedition, to the reformation of the aforesaid, if our lives are dear and precious to you, which otherwise will be cut short, yea, probably before your Honors will hear again from us. Our Governor would most willingly redress these grave abuses, but he finds it to be a matter beyond his power, and a matter of great difficulty, as the madness is so general among traders. And whereas your Honors have been pleased to intimate in your letters that neither the Governor nor any other person should so trade on pain of your displeasure and indignation, we take the liberty to inform your Honors, inasmuch as dissatisfaction may arise from misunderstanding, that we have never accused our Governor in this matter; and we do not now accuse him, but on the contrary defend him before your Honors, and say that we hope and believe he would redress it were it in his power, approving the propositions and applications of our remaining and esteemed friends, who hold dear the public good.

"We have still a further request to make, viz., that your Honors would be pleased to send over some servant men, who are here as precious as gold both in regard to our work and to our protection, as matters stand at present, or shall hereafter fare with us, on condition that your Honors will please to order us to be provided with goods on somewhat more reasonable terms, which could easily be done, and the traders still make a good profit and gain; for at present we are forced to buy supplies at excessive prices elsewhere, whenever liquors are all out and consumed on the Manhattans. We shall do our best to make due returns in produce, the proceeds of our servants labor, viz., in corn, beef, pork and butter, tobacco, staves and such like wares in exchange for such merchandise as we shall receive.

"We beg your Honors' pardon for having so long detained you, but thank you most sincerely for all received benefits; regarding the difficulties already experienced and still to be apprehended, we are necessitated to request your Honors' assistance together with the reformation thereof, if it possibly be, in accordance with our request, which is the cause of our writing so much. Herewith we desist from troubling your Honors any further; but wishing you all honor and prosperity, and that the Father of Mercy may be pleased to show mercy to you who are so good to his people.

(Signatures of magistrates not copied.)

"This is a true copy, agreeing with the original, which I, John Moore, Minister of the church of Heemstede do attest."*

This letter was noticed by the present writer in the fourth volume of the Record, pp. 131, 133, etc. It was pronounced "full of historical description," and as depicting truly "the consequences of such a political blunder as that in which the Dutch Governor was engaged;" viz., arming the Indians, and taking sides, or preparing to do so, with the supporters of Charles II., after the conquest of Ireland, and after the battle of Dunbar, and hazarding a contest with Cromwell, then in the height of his authority and glory. Repeated readings of the letter only add to the opinion of its character and importance. Other events, such as the battle of Worcester, in England, on September 3, 1651, a few days before the date of the letter, greatly overshadowed this small and remote affair. The letter, it seems, was written in English, to be read and forwarded by the Governor. This duplicate may have been copied, certified, and sent by other hands. It was disregarded. The Dutch were afterward encountered at sea, and overthrown by Cromwell. The Indian forays occurred as foretold by the letter.†

* A letter from the Royal Archivist at the Hague says that "all the original letters addressed to the Directors of Trades, Occidental, are destroyed."

† For another letter, from Gravesend, see App. XIII. XIV.

It may be supposed that Mr. Moore had left his wife at Southampton and returned there temporarily. On November 7, 1651, a bond at Southampton, signed by John Cooper, had for a witness "John Moore." It may have been witnessed at Hempstead.

In 1652 he was at Hempstead. Mr. Armitage residing there had a son Manassah at the new college in Massachusetts and married a second wife. There was due to Mr. Armitage before this date £100, on two bonds which, as he said, he intended to give to his son, so that his new wife should not have all, at his decease. "Mr. Moore and Mr. Wood," probably Jonas Wood, "being in town," Hempstead, a deed of gift was executed in their presence. A dispute occurred about this in 1659, which serves to preserve a record for us, and then the wife of Jeremy Wood stated the date of the deed, "about seven years past." This gives us the date 1652.*

In April of that year, 1652, the Directors at Amsterdam wrote to New York, "In order that you may be the more fully assured of our good intention, we do hereby consent that the Commonalty yonder shall have liberty to repair to the coast of Angola, Africa, & transport thence as many negroes as they will make use of for the cultivation of their lands," &c. In that year, according to Riker's Newtown, leave was given by Gov. Stuyvesant for a new town of Englishmen, at first called Middelburg and those from New England were "joined by some respectable individuals from Heemstede or Hempstead," "among whom were Robert Coe and "Richard Gildersleeve;" and from Hempstead "came the proposed pastor of the "new settlement the Rev. John Moore, of whose previous history nothing" (he said) "had been learned, except that he had been the clergyman of the church at "Heemstede." The summer of 1652 witnessed the first harvest. On 29th April, 1653, the English settlers, terrified by reports of Indian hostilities, sailed for Stamford. The war, under Cromwell, between English and Dutch occurred. The English generally retired from it, eastwardly. News of peace arrived at New York on July 16, 1654, or before; and attempts at a settlement of the new town were again renewed.

To what place or region Mr. Moore went† we are not informed, but have the impression that he was seeking a regular ordination and that he went to Europe, and possibly to Ireland, but perhaps to Barbadoes, and returned after the war was over. The death of his father-in-law (Howell), in 1655, might call him east on Long Island, but we have seen no mark of his being at Southampton.

The following from Virginia, dated "17 Nov., 1656, Copie of A Letter sent to Mr. Moore a minister in New England," has been discovered by the compiler, which may help to explain the whereabouts of Mr. Moore at this time:

In 1655 and 1656 the settlers of Middelburg sought to observe publicly some religious worship, and in the absence of Mr. Moore, the schoolmaster Mr. Richard Mills, or some other person, read for those in attendance; and doubtless there were prayers and singing.

— NEWTOWN VILLAGE. —

These proceedings led to the following action :

(1656) 15 January In Council present the Hon. Director General Petrus Stuyvesant Mr. Nicasius de Sille Lamontagne and the fiscal Cornelius van Tienhoven. The petition written below of the Ministers of the Gospel of this City of Amsterdam being read the following apostil is given.

Concerning the conventicles and the preaching by unqualified persons; against this placards exist—as to the last part of the request the petitioners are invited to go and visit the village of Middelborch to inquire with the advice of the Magistrates and some of the most qualified persons for a proper person to give such lectures as desired which being done their petition shall receive further attention.

Done in Council on the day as above and was signed Petrus Stuyvest Nicasius de Sille Lamontagne.*

In the Dutch follows a copy of the original petition, of which the following is a translation :

To the Hon. Director General and Council of New Netherland :

Remonstate with due reverence the Ministers of this City that they have been informed by several persons residing at Middelborch within the jurisdiction of this Province that since the departure and in the absence of Mr. Moore before a Minister of the Gospel in that place some inhabitants of said place and unqualified persons have undertaken to hold conventicles and meetings and assume the duties of a preacher from which nothing can be expected but discord confusion and disorder in church and government not only in that place but also as a bad example for others within this province. They solicit therefore that measures may be taken in this matter by your Hon.'s authority and that during the absence of Mr. Moore some qualified person be provisionally appointed to read on Sunday the Bible and some other edifying orthodox author and some of the religious forms in usage among the inhabitants of said place till your Honor shall make further arrangements &c.

Signed.

Mr. Riker continues the history of Rev. John Moore in his Annals of Newtown, in substance, as follows: Governor Peter Stuyvesant having refused to give a patent to Middelburg,† the inhabitants determined to buy the soil from the Indians. They entered into negotiations with Rowerowestco and Pomwaukon sachems, and a deed was subscribed April 12, 1656. This act is worthy to be remembered in connection with the policy of William Penn, and reflects great honor on those who were willing to do justice to the Indians, a policy entirely different from that pursued by the Dutch. The "purchasers"‡ are given in the Annals of Newtown, and third on the list is John Moore, £2 os od. The two pounds entitled him to forty acres. The total purchase money was £68 16s 4d, divided among fifty-five purchasers. The Indian deed of 1666§ is the only one extant.

Rev. John Moore returned to Middelburg to resume his official duties, and "in a publique meeting," Jan. 22, 1657, the inhabitants presented him with the title to the town house. Objection was made to the procedure by some of the inhabitants, as appears from the following remonstrance which was sent to the Director General:

TO THE HONORABLE GOVERNOR:

Worthy Sir; We whose names are underwritten, desire to make our humble requests known in respect to the house builded here by the town of Middelburg for public use for a minister for continuance, which some of the town hath given away to Mr. Moore for his own property, and his after him; wherein we think we are wronged, and the town left destitute, if Mr. Moore please to leave us, or if he should die, for we know men are mortal; then we are to seek both for minister and house to entertain him into; therefore we do

Governor Stuyvesant decided against the action of the "publique meeting." A few months later Rev. John Moore died, and it appears that his family was allowed to occupy the house for nearly five years. In the meantime Francis Doughty, son of Rev. Francis Doughty, had married the widow Moore.

The following memorial to the Governor will explain itself:

WHEREAS, God hath been pleased of late years to deprive us of Middelburg on Long Island, of the public means of grace and salvation and also of the education of our children in scholastic discipline, the way to true happiueſs: but yet God having in mercy at last provided for us a help meet for the discipline and education of our children, and, by the same person, help in the Sabbath exercises, we therefore, who never gave, nor consented to the giving of the housing and lands built and fenced in, and also dedicated for the use of the public dispensation of God's word unto us, do humbly entreat your honorable lordship that this our said schoolmaster, Richard Mills by name, may be by your lordship possessed of the said housing and lands, for his use and ours also, for our children's education and the Sabbath exercise, the which God doth require, and we have need of for us and our children. As the housing now stands it is like to go all to wreck and ruin, the fences are falling down, the house and barn decaying and wanteth repair, and Francis Doughty doth not repair it, nor the town as it stands between him and them, we will not repair it, and by this means it is like to come to nothing in a short time, and so we, and your lordship also, shall be disappointed; therefore our humble request to your lordship is, that this our schoolmaster, and at present our soul's help in dispensing God's word to us and our children every Lord's day, may be settled in it, to enjoy it without any molestation from Francis Doughty or any of his, for so long time as our God shall be pleased to continue him amongst us, or to provide another for us. Thus knowing that your lordship is as willing to further our souls' good as our bodies' we rest your lordships humble petitioners.

The Governor replied:

These presents do require and order Francis Doughty, and whoever it may concern, to give and grant unto the present school master, Mr. Richard Mills, a quiet possession of the said house and land; it being with our knowledge, consent and help, built for the public use of the ministry, and therefore may not, cannot be given and transported for a private heritage. But if he or his wife hath to demand any remainder of means or salary of her deceased husband, Mr. John Moore, late minister of the aforementioned town, it is ordered, and these presents do order the magistrates and inhabitants of the said town to give unto the heirs what is due them. Done in Amsterdam, in New Netherland, this 18th of February, 1661.*

P. STUYVESANT.

On March 4, 1665, by a decree of the Hempstead Assembly, the town house was surrendered to Mrs. Doughty as relict of the Rev. John Moore,† and in 1672, after the building of the Presbyterian Church, Content Titus, who had married Elizabeth, the daughter of Rev. John Moore, bought the property, which he occupied until his death in 1730. This property afterward belonged to St. James's Episcopal Church. The reason for the remonstrance against the action of the "publique meeting" would be interesting to know. Riker supposes that the remonstrants were Presbyterians. If this were the case, another argument against the supposition of recent date that Rev. John Moore was a Presbyterian, and not an Independent, would be presented. The only evidence of his denominational connection so far as known, now in existence, is the following extract from the

* Mr. Richeart Mills These presents doth Declare, that we have granted unto the Bearers Mr. Doughty or his assigns to take & to bring away the Dunge, Trees, and other things planted & left upon the house lot of the deceased Minister John Moor, given under My hand this 20 of April, An. 1661.— Copy of a document in N. letter of Jno. Megapolensis and Samuel Drisius to the Classis of Amsterdam, dated August 5, 1657:

"At Middleburgh, called alias Newtown they are mostly Independents, and have a man of the same persuasion there named Johannis Moor, who preaches there well, but administers no sacraments, because (as he says) he was permitted in New England to preach but not authorized to administer sacraments, and he has thus continued now for many years. In this village are also many other Inhabitants, presbyterians, but they are not able to maintain a Presbyterian Preacher, whilst we know not that any of this sect are to be found among the English in N Engld, among whom there are preachers."*

Soon after Rev. John Moore's death, the people petitioned the Director General for another minister, "fearing that some of the inhabitants may be led away by the intrusion of Quakers and other heretics." Thirty years after, the town awarded eighty acres of land to his children in consideration of his services.†

We are indebted to Mr. J. H. Innes for the discovery of the following document, which shows, as he says, the poverty and privations against which the first settlers had to contend, and which are not duly appreciated.

The request having been heard, the following order to the Magistrates of Middelbonrch was given him:

The Magistrates of the village of Middelborch are requested and ordered to deliver to the bearer of this letter, John Laurenson, the goods mentioned in the enclosed inventory, or any other goods which belonged to Mr. [Moore] to be sold here at public auction to the highest bidder for the behoof of those who will be found to have a claim to it. Edward Howell * disposed of considerable estates in Buckingham County in 1639, among which was the manor of Westbury in Marsh Gibbon, purchased by his grandfather, William Howell, in 1536. The old stone manor house is still standing, though the remains of an old foundation near it show that some portions of it have been taken down. It is of two full stories and what is called a double house, now nearly covered with ivy. Edward Howell came, in 1639, with his family to Boston, where he was made freeman, March 14, 1639-40. He soon removed to Lynn, where he had a grant of 500 acres. During the winter of 1639-40, a new settlement was projected on Long Island, of which he seems to have been the leader, as the compact or agreement of terms of founding the plantation is in his handwriting, as well as the laws adopted by the first settlers, and to the last year of his life, he was always a magistrate (1640-1653) and a member of the Colonial Legislature at Hartford (1647-1653). The manner in which his name is mentioned in the colonial records of New England and New York, point to the same conclusion.

The arms of this family, as found on the old family seal now in possession of one of the descendants and on several old tombstones of the seventeenth century in Southampton, are as follows:

Gules, three towers triple-towered, argent.

Crest used by some branches. Out of a ducal crown or, a rose argent stalked and leaved vert, between two wings, indorsed of the last.

Motto: Tenax propositi.

The arms are carved on the grand western staircase of the capitol at Albany, in honor of the founder of Southampton, which was the first English settlement in the State of New York.

The Howell arms date back to 1250, as is proved by documents in the British Museum. They were then borne by Howell, Prince of Caerleon-upon-Usk in North Wales.

William Howell, of Wedon, in County of Bucks, married, first, Maude, who died and left children, John the elder and John the younger. William married, second, Anne Hampton, and had a son Henry. He had besides, but by which wife I cannot say, children Jacob and Rachel, wife of Rev. Thomas Willis, and Isabel, Jane, Cecil, Agnes, Anne, Joane and Alice. His will of date November 30, 1557, directs his body "to be buried in the parish church of Wingrave, in the chancel before the High Altar." He gives legacies to the poor of Aylesbury, the poor of Whitechurch and the poor of Marsh; gives his wife Anne his lands in Watton and Hamme for her life, and at her decease, they are to go to Henry; gives his eldest son John, his lands in Marsh Gibbon, and in default of issue to his son Henry, and in default of issue to his son Jacob. To each of his daughters, £20, and a legacy of bells for the Hardwick Church. He died in 1557, and John the eldest son inherited the manor, and himself died without issue 1576.

From the parish register of Marsh Gibbon, the following extract is taken:

* Howell's Southampton.

Edward Howell built at Southampton, in 1648, the house occupied in his lifetime, by William P. Herrick, and had the two adjoining house lots to the north, his front extending to Job's lane, as he had purchased three shares in the corporation of the settlement. This house was taken down about twenty-five years ago by Capt. Philetus Pierson, who had purchased the homestead. His three shares entitled him to over 3000 acres, within the boundaries of the town. Edward Howell's wife Eleanor was administratrix of his estate October 6, 1665.

There were other Howells in Massachusetts Colony, and one married Mary More, the daughter of William More, of Ipswich, before 1660.*

3. Captain Gershom Moore¹ (Rev. John¹) and Mary —, widow of Jonathan Fish.

Gershom Moore² was probably the second son of Rev. John Moore. His name first appears in a list of the residents of Newtown, 1655-56. It is also found in the list of freeholders, December 4, 1666. It appears so often in connection with that of his brother, Capt. Samuel Moore, that the history of one is that of the other. He was among the inhabitants of Newtown made freemen of Connecticut, May 12, 1664. April 21, 1665, he was elected by the Company and commissioned Ensign of the Newtown Militia by Gov. Nicoll. The inhabitants were organized into a single company, and the officers by law were required to be "persons of best quality, such as are most complaisant to them, men of great courage to all virtuous actions and only fearful of infamy." He was afterwards promoted to be Lieutenant. April 23, 1669, ten acres were apportioned to Gershom Moore on the new highway which ran from "about northwest and southeast" through Hempstead Swamp. He was Overseer, March, 1665, to April, 1666; April, 1668-1670; April, 1671-1673; April, 1675-1677; April, 1677-1679; April, 1682-1684, and, when the change was made to Commissioners of the Town Court, he filled that office 1684-1685. Some cases were settled out of Court, as appears from the following record:

1680, February 23, "Johanes Loroson" testifies in a suit at Newtown, L. I., between Dr. John Greenfield and the widow Rolofson:

"Johanes Loroson, aged 29 yer or thereabouts being sworne in Court that dockter Greenfield and Gershom Moore came to the hous of John Desent and the sd Greenfield did in the prsents of this deponent speek to the Counstable to summons the widdow Rouleson to Court, where upon the Counstable sd that he would send for the widdow that they may agree without going to Court. Soe she came and after some word between them the sd dockter sd if shee would give him a kis he would acquit her of what was betweene them: and she did soe and give each other the hand upon it and further saith not."*

August 24, 1673, upon the reoccupation by the Dutch, he was one of six candidates presented for office, from whom three were confirmed by the Court. He was not confirmed. His name is on the Dongan Charter of date November 25, 1686. In the troublous Leislerian times he was commissioned Captain,† October 2, 1689, his brother, Samuel, receiving the Lieutenantcy at the same time. (See Captain Samuel Moore².) In 1675‡ he was on the tax list for 2 males, 20 acres of upland and meadow, 1 horse, 1 yearling, 2 oxen, 2 cows, 2 3-year olds, 3 2-year olds, 30 sheep, 3 swine; in 1683, 1 male, 16 acres, 1 horse, 2 oxen, 6 cows, 6 yearlings, 10 sheep, 1 swine.

Gershom Moore, the Commissioner of Highways at Newtown, 1722, could not have been the Gershom of Maidenhead who died 1722. The latter's will gives evidence of his being a resident of Maidenhead. He could not have been the latter's son, for his children were all minors; nor his father, for he died about 1691. Hence there must have been another Gershom.

Deborah Betts[†] was the daughter of Thomas Betts² and his wife, Mercy Whitehead, daughter of Major Daniel Whitehead, and the granddaughter of Richard Betts¹ and his wife Joanna —.

Jonathan Moore³ was Sergeant of Capt. Daniel Stevenson's Company of Militia in Newtown, L. Among the subscribers for this object he stands eighth on the list.

14. Samuel Moore⁴ (Gershom³, Gershom², Rev. John¹) and — —.

This Samuel seems to be the same man who died in 1759, at Hopewell, N. J. He mentions, in his will, his wife without naming her, his eldest son Benjamin, sister Mary, brother Henry, his son Jonathan and "Uncle Jonathan Moore." His surroundings indicate his connection with the Gershom Moore family.

4. Captain Samuel Moore² (Rev. John¹) and Mary Reed² (Thomas¹ m. Elizabeth —, who after his death m. John Burroughs¹).

Newtown awarded the descendants of Rev. John Moore eighty acres of land, thirty years after his death, for his interest in the purchase of Newtown from the Indians. Captain Samuel² became a grantee of land as early as 1662. Later he purchased an adjacent tract which had belonged to his father. Benjamin³, his son, subsequently owned it. It then passed to John⁴, and then to Daniel Sackett⁵. This property in 1852 was included in the premises of John Jacob Moore⁶ (Daniel Sackett⁵, John⁴, Benjamin³, Captain Samuel², Rev. John¹), and still remains in the family, occupied by Mrs. Oliver Hazard Perry, the daughter of John Jacob⁶. Part of the present house was probably built shortly after 1662. The "new house" was built in 1776, and altered about 1857. Additions were made in 1872 and 1876. During the Revolution, General Howe had his headquarters here, and the Duke of Clarence, afterward William IV. of England, was a guest. A celebrated box hedge, a part of which still remains, was a feature of the place. The Newtown "pippin," a noted apple, was first grown on this property.

In 1684 Captain Samuel Moore² bought of William Hallett, Sr., a farm near the Poor Bowery. The attached deed evidently refers to this property:

Capt. Samuel's son, Samuel³, took the southern part, which later was owned by S. B. Townsend. Previous to this it passed to Nathaniel Moore⁴, who married Mrs. Rebecca Barnwell, and later belonged to Rebecca Moore⁶, who married Mr. Purdy. The house recently demolished, 1901, was occupied as headquarters by General Clinton during the occupation of Long Island by the British. Mr. Jed Frye, of New York, has a plate used by General Clinton, which has been handed down to the present time as "the Clinton plate."

Joseph Moore⁸ received the northern section, part of which passed to John⁴ by purchase, then to David⁵, then to Samuel Hallett Moore⁶, and is now in the possession of Henry P. Titus, of Steinway.

The following document may help to locate twenty-three acres owned by Samnel Moore².

Samuel Moore's name does not appear in the list* of residents of Newtown, 1655-6, given by Thompson in his History of Long Island, although his brother Gershom's does. This indicates that Gershom was older than Samuel. His name does appear in the list† of December 4, 1666. The rate lists‡ of 1675 and 1683 show that he was taxed for fourteen acres of upland and meadow, one horse, two oxen, three cows, two two-year olds, one one-year old, five sheep, and three swine in the former year, and in the latter, in addition to the above, for sixteen acres, three cows, two three-year olds, three one-year olds, seven sheep and one swine and one head. In the list of 1675, under the word "males," there is a zero which indicates that he had no sons. The 1683 list indicates that he had one son.

Up to 1684 but little of the land had been brought under cultivation. Perhaps the desire to cultivate arose mainly from the fact that the Dutch laid claim to part of it. Whether or not the motives were mixed, cultivation would give possession, and March 3, 1684, the purchasers resolved to allot the land to any who were willing to locate on the unoccupied portions. Mr. Doughty, Edward and Thomas Stevenson, Samuel Moore, Richard Betts, Jr., and Jeremiah Burroughs were appointed "to look out for a place of settlement towards the outside of our bounds, next the Dutch." At this time notice was served upon the patentees by Gov. Dongan, that they should bring their patent and Indian deed preparatory to granting a new charter. Ultimately, in 1686, the Dongan Charter was granted, which confirmed the old patents, the boundaries being no more explicit than in Nicoll's patent of 1666. This charter reserves to the forty-six persons first-named, original purchasers of the township, the exclusive control of the unoccupied land within the purchase lines. Later this decision caused trouble, as is shown by the annexed documents.

To his Excellency EDWARD VISCOUNT CORNBURY, her Majesty's Captain General and Governor-in-chief of the province of New York, and territories depending thereon, in America; and Vice-Admiral of the same, &c., in council.

The humble petition of several of the freeholders and inhabitants of the town of Newtown, in Queen's county, on the Island of Nassau, sheweth; That Richard Nicoll, Esq., in the year 1666, being governor general of this province under the Duke of York, granted unto Capt. Richard Betts, Capt. Thomas Lawrence, and others, as patentees for and on the behalf of themselves and their associates, the freeholders and inhabitants of the said town, their heirs, successors, and assigns, a parcel of land then commonly called by the name of the town of Newtown; bounded, as in the said patent is more particularly expressed given to the said patentees and their associates, their heirs, successors, and assigns, for ever. That your excellency's petitioners, or those they claim under, being at and before the time of the granting of the said patent, actually possessed of and entitled to houses, lands, tenements, and hereditaments within the bounds of the said patent, as well as several other persons, and thereby equally entitled with them to such lands which were then unpossessed and remained in common, hoped and behoved to have had the advantage of the said patent in common amongst the rest of the patentees; but so it is, may it please your excellency, that Samuel Moore, Thomas Stevenson, Joseph Sackett, Edward Hunt, and John Way, with several of the inhabitants of the said town, of their own heads, without any power or authority for their so doing, have from time to time, as they think fit, assembled and met together, and given away, sold, and disposed of great parts of the said town lands lying in common as aforesaid, without the consent of your excellency's petitioners, or without any allowance to them for their right and interest therein, contrary to all justice and equity. Your excellency's petitioners therefore humbly pray, that your excellency in council will please to order the said persons to be summoned before your excellency, and require them to bring with them all such books, papers, or other things, as are in their, or either of their custody, possession, or power, relating to the premises, in order that the same may be fully discovered, and that your excellency being particularly informed of the hardships your petitioners lie under, may grant them such redress, as in your wisdom you shall think fit. And your excellency's petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray, &c.

The decision was against the petitioners, and was rendered to Gov. Cornbury in the following language:

To his Excellency EDWARD VISCOUNT CORNBURY, Captain General, &c., in council:

May it please your lordship; In obedience to your excellency's order in council of the 13th of January last past, we have inspected the books and papers of the town of Newtown, in Queen's county, and examined the report made by Rip Van Dam, Gerard Beekman, and Caleb Heathcote, Esquires, members of his Majesty's council for this province; and have carefully examined the allegations of the petitioners and those petitioned against, by which we find, that before the granting of Col. Richard Nicoll's patent to the town of Newtown, a society of people had purchased and did occupy and enjoy a parcel of land commonly called and known by the name of the town of Middelburg, and that the said Col. Richard Nicoll, by his patent bearing date the sixth day of March, one thousand, six hundred and sixty-six, did confirm to them the said purchase, and adjoin certain out-plantations, not any ways concerned in the purchasing the aforesaid tract of land, and made them all one township, without any distinct reservation of the properties of the said purchasers entire to themselves, notwithstanding which, the inhabitants of Middelburg (afterwards called Newtown) have acted distinct as to the sale and disposal of the lands purchased by them, or those under whom they claim, and have by themselves, at their own proper charges, maintained suits at law to defend the bounds and title to their said purchase, without any contribution from the out-plantations; and we do further find that the Lawrences and Coes, and some few others of the petitioners, were original purchasers of the said town of Middelburg, and have had their proportionable share of the said purchase laid out to them; and particularly, that the father of William Lawrence, one of the petitioners, hath transferred his right in the said purchase, to one George Wood, as appears by the books of the said town. That it appears to us that the matters complained of now by the petitioners, were stirred in Col. Dongan's time, who by his patent, dated the five-and-twentieth day of November, one thousand, six hundred and eighty-six, likewise makes them one township, but reserves to the original purchasers of the town of Middelburg, their distinct right to the said lands, to them and their heirs only; and we do further find that the books of the town of Newtown have been very imperfectly kept, but that on the whole it does appear to us, that the said patent granted by the said Col. Dongan, was issued on mature consideration, and that ever since the granting thereof, the patentees have acted according to the settlement of the said patent, and that all parties have rested satisfied under the said grant, without any complaint made by them, until the exhibiting of the said petition. They do not seem to us to be guilty of the matters therein alledged against them, all which is nevertheless most humbly submitted to your excellency, by, my lord, your excellency's most faithful and obedient servants.

New-York, the 3^d day of February, 1703-'4.

In order to understand various events in the life of Captain Samuel Moore, it is desirable to give a rapid sketch of the times in which he lived. This can best be done by following closely the admirable account of the historian of Newtown, Mr. Riker. The history opens with the conquest of New Netherlands by the English.

Various reasons have been assigned for the grant of New Netherlands to his brother James, the Duke of York, by King Charles II. The motives were probably mixed. "Lack of respect" for the Dutch,* revenge against the Hollanders for supposed unwarranted intrusion in India, Africa and elsewhere,† envy on account of trade rivalry,‡ and finally to drive out the Dutch and settle once for all the disputes arising from conflicting claims in regard to territory in America.§ The Duke of York was led to claim New Netherlands on account of revenge against his enemies, the Dutch, and avarice, wishing all the trade of the country. The whole transaction shows an entire absence of political morality. March 12, 1664, Charles II. granted, without regard to the rights of the Dutch, the whole country to the Duke of York. The oppressive administration of Governor Stuyvesant caused a great deal of bitterness in the English towns of Long Island. April 26, 1664, a commission †† was issued by Charles II. to take possession of the country. May 12, 1664, a general assembly claimed ‡‡ for Connecticut the "islands adjoining." This showed the intention of the English to conquer the country. The inhabitants of Middelburg, taking advantage of their opportunity, sought annexation to Connecticut and allegiance to Charles II. Annexation was effected, the name of the township was changed to Hastings, after that Hastings in Sussex where William the Conqueror gained the famous victory which made him King of England. The now English subjects expressed themselves upon their change of allegiance as follows:

TO ALL CHRISTIAN PEOPLE in any parte of the world, knowe that we, the inhabitants of Hastings, otherwise called Middelburg, on Long Island, in the south parte of New England, doe declare that we are by our birthright privileges subjects of his Majesty, Charles the 2d. of England, Scotland, France and Ireland, Kinge; and within the discoveries of his Royal predecessors are providentially seated; and by right of the natives, have to the soyle and absolute righte of inheritance in free socage, to us and our heys and assigns for ever, which right, interest and propriety, with his Majesty's Royalty of government we promise to maintaine against any usurpers whatsoever, and will further and more particularly doe any thing whereby or wherewith our dread sovereigne and successors may be owned as absolute Emperor in poynt of civill jurisdiction, as by establishinge an authority elected by the major parte of the freeholders of this towne of Hastings aforesayd, yearly; this very Island being bounded within the letters pattante granted by King James, of glorious memory, the 18th year of his reigne, to George, Duke of Buckingham, James, Duke of Lennox, which pattante was bounded between 40 and 48 north lattitude, with all Islands; and within the sayd lattitnde wee say our just proprietyes of soyle being invaded, and his Majesty's rights usurped by ye Hollanders; to the great scandall of government and discouragement of his Majesty's hopeful plantation, which we will for the futter defend as Englishmen, just proprietyors and Loyall subjects, with our lives and fortunes; in witnes whereunto we have set to our hands this 4th of February, 1663. [1664, New Style.]*

It is gratifying to know that there were men who refused to sign this bombastic and misleading document. They were James Way, Jonathan Hazard, William Lawrence and Samuel Moore.

Captain Richard Nicoll, in August, 1664, captured, with a naval force, New Amsterdam, and called it New York. Connecticut gave up Long Island to Nicoll, who was Deputy-Governor. He called a convention† to meet at Hempstead, February 28, 1665, at which the Duke's Laws were enacted. The name of Hastings was canceled and "the New Towne" adopted. Among other things, the Duke's Laws‡ established an Overseers' Court in the several towns. It should be noticed, however, that nothing like constitutional government for the people was provided.§ It took many years after this to evolve this idea.

In 1675 Samuel Moore became constable and held the office until March 30, 1676.

"The constable was ordinarily chosen on the first or second day of April, yearly, by the major vote of the freeholders in the town, and was presented in person by the old constable and overseers to the next Court of Sessions ensuing, when he was sworn into office, the insignia of which was a staff about six feet long with the king's arms on it. Thence he was required to attend each sitting of the Court of Sessions, unless an overseer, bearing the staff, should supply his place, or he be excused by the justices on the bench, under a penalty of five pounds for every day's absence. The constable was to whip and punish offenders, raise the hue and cry after murderers, manslaughterers, thieves, robbers and burglars; and also apprehend without warrant such as were overtaken with drink, swearing or Sabbath-breaking, and vagrant persons or night walkers, provided they be taken in the manner, either by the sight of the constable or by present information from others. He could command the help and assistance of any other person upon a penalty for their refusal; and could, without warrant, if the case was urgent, search any house or place suspected to be the receptacle of stolen goods or the person of an offender. It was his business, where cases of debt or trespass under five pounds arose between neighbors, to nominate two indifferent persons as arbitrators. He was to collect all fines and amercements, and distrain for rates where they were refused to be paid. He, with the concurrence of two overseers, was to satisfy every person, either Christian or Indian, for the killing of wolves, to the value of an Indian coat for each wolf, to be paid out of the public rate, evidence being produced that the animal was killed on Long Island, and not elsewhere ; and the constable and overseers were to cause the heads to be nailed over the door of the constable, there to remain, as also to cut off both the ears, in token that the head was bought and paid for. The constable was authorized to 'furnish the Indians with such quantity of powder and shot as may be thought necessary for their killing of wolves, and provisions ; and also may permit them to have their guns mended.' A Presentm't brought in by Sam'l Moore Constable of New Towne.§

The Constable Sam: Moore Sworne Relates John Greues Coming to him to complaine and his going with him to Mr. Cornell &c and so to the house, where he was showed what was done. (1675)

The "presentment" of Mary Case throws some light upon an unpleasant subject—the persecution of the Quakers. On Sunday afternoon, September 5, Mary, wife of Thomas Case, entered the Newtown Church and addressed Mr. Leverich, who was in the pulpit, in these words: "Come down thou whited wall, thou art one that feedest thyself and starvest the flock." The Constable led her from the church and afterward preferred charges against her at the October assizes. Her defence was that she "went in obedience to the Lord, to declare against Mr. Leverich's doctrines." She was fined five pounds. In justice, it must be said that frequent disturbance of religious services by those who professed or pretended to profess the doctrines of George Fox were partly to blame for the unfortunate persecutions which blot the records of these early times.

Samuel Moore held the office of Overseer from April, 1677, to April, 1679, and again from April, 1681, to April, 1683.

"For the orderly management of all town affairs, including the building and repairing the church, maintaining the minister, and providing for the poor, it was directed that eight of the most able men of each town or parish be appointed Overseers, who were required to be 'men of good fame and life, chosen by the plurality of voices of the freeholders in each town, whereof four shall remain in their office two years successively, and four shall be changed for new ones every year, which election shall preceed the election of Constable in point of time, in regard the Constable for the year ensuing is to be chosen out of that number which are dismiss from their office of Overseers.' Before entering upon their office, they took the oath of allegiance, in the presence of the minister and the old Overseers and Constable, and then were presented by the said Constable and Overseers to the Court of Sessions next succeeding their election, and with the new Constable took the oath of office, which was usually done at the June sessions. They were authorized, together with the Constable, to hold town courts weekly or monthly, as was required, where six with the Constable, or seven in his absence, were a competent jury, and upon an equal division the Constable had the casting voice. They were to report twice a year to the sessions, 'all such abominable sinnes' as came to their knowledge, and had not been punished, including profane swearing, Sabbath-breaking, and drunkenness. They were frequently to admonish the inhabitants to instruct their children and servants in matters of religion and the laws of the country, and to bring up their children and apprentices in some honest and lawful calling or employment. They made all assessments or rates, which usually consisted of three, namely, the minister's rate, the town rate, and the country rate, the latter for the support of the general government. They also appointed, from time to time, two persons to be inspectors of pipestaves, a common article of manufacture and export at that day; and they were likewise empowered to appoint a sealer of weights and measures, and a public packer or inspector of meat and fish, barreled for exportation. Any one of the Overseers might act as Constable, if the latter was indisposed, or on any emergency, provided he carried with him the staff of the office. From among the Overseers, the Constable selected the jurors who attended the courts of session and assize. And in all matters, such as the disposing, building upon, planting, and the like, of their lands and woods, granting of lots, election of officers, assessing of rates, &c., a majority of the Overseers, with the consent of the Constable, were empowered to ordain such 'peculiar constitutions' as were necessary for the welfare of the town, provided they were not of a criminal nature, and the penalties did not exceed twenty shillings for one offence, and were not repugnant to the public laws, and were confirmed by the Court of Sessions.'*

In September, 1666, the number of Overseers was reduced to four, any two of them, with the Constable, being empowered to hold town courts.

"The province of New York had long suffered grievances of a very serious character, arising from the undue authority vested in the chief magistrate of the colony, and the popular feeling upon this subject now exhibited itself in the form of a petition to the Duke of York, asking for such a modification of the government as would secure to the people a share in public legislation. His Royal Highness prudently assented, and Col. Thomas Dongan arrived at New York in August, 1683, with a governor's commission and special instructions to convene a popular legislative assembly.

"The founders of Newtown brought with them to the wilds of America the essence of democracy. Deeply imbued with a spirit of independence, we beheld them constantly struggling to inhale a purer liberty than the political atmosphere of either the Dutch or English administrations afforded. It was with no ordinary sensations of delight therefore that they received the warrant of the high sheriff, dated September 29th, authorizing them to join in electing deputies to the proposed assembly. The freeholders met on October 1st, and appointed Capt. Richard Betts, Samuel Moore, Robert Blackwell and Jonathan Hazard to go to Gravesend the next day, and unite with committees from the several towns of the riding, in the choice of delegates to the said assembly, which was to convene at New York on the 17th of the same month.

"The meeting of this legislature, which consisted of the governor and council, and seventeen members chosen by the people, marked an era of the triumph of popular rights in this colony of no mean estimate. Its transcendent act was the adoption of a "charter of liberties," which provided for the holding of a general assembly triennially, at least, the members of which (Queen's County being entitled to two) were to be chosen by the major vote of the freeholders, so understood by the laws of England, which body, with the concurrence of the governor and council, was to enact all public laws, and without its consent no tax, tallage, assessment, custom, loan, benevolence or imposition whatever, could be levied on any of his Majesty's subjects in the province. It, moreover, conceded in all cases the right of fair trial by a jury of twelve, and in addition to other wholesome specifications, provided that no person professing faith in God by Jesus Christ, should be in any way molested or called in question for any difference in opinion or matter of religious concernment, who did not actually disturb the civil peace of the province.

*Annals of Newtown, 68.

"Other changes which were thought necessary to the welfare of the country were instituted. The ridings were abolished and the province divided into counties, Newtown being included in Queen's County, which still remains as then organized. In these, full provision was made for sustaining the demands of justice; the Court of Sessions was to meet twice a year, and the Court of Oyer and Terminer annually. And in each town a primitive tribunal entitled the commissioners' court was ordered to be held on the first Wednesday in every month, 'for the hearing and determining of small causes, and cases of debt and trespass, to the value of forty shillings or under,' taking the place of the Overseers' Court. The form of town government was further modified by the introduction of the office of assessor and supervisor, the latter to have the supervision of the public affairs and expenditures of the town. Of these, two of each continued to be annually chosen in Newtown for some years after. The laws establishing these offices and the Court of Commissioners was passed on November 1st.

"On the publication of these laws, the people of Newtown testified their high gratification by seasonable measures to carry them into effect. On January 15, 1684, they elected Jonathan Hazard, Gershom Moore, and Samuel Moore, 'commissioners to sit as a town court, to try all causes of difference between man and man, as shall come before them.' Two days after, the commissioners appeared before Justice Elias Doughty,* and took the oath of office, at which time also, Theophilus Phillips† was chosen clerk of the court and marshal. By a law passed November 4, 1685, the jurisdiction of this court was extended to causes of £5, or under, and to be in force seven years and no longer, but before the expiration of this period, the court of commissioners had ceased to exist."

Samuel Moore held the office of Commissioner of the Town Court from January 15, 1684-85; 1686-87; 1688-89. He was also elected Supervisor February 28, 1684; January 27, 1687; June 27, 1691.

"The expectations of an enlightened liberty, awakened in 1683, had ended in fell disappointment, the course of events having fully proved that the advances then made towards a popular government were designed merely to conciliate public feeling. After the third annual assembly these popular bodies were expressly prohibited by the Duke of York,‡ who, having ascended the throne of England, under the title of James II, disclosed his true character in his endeavor to establish an arbitrary government here, and introduce the Roman Catholic religion among the Protestant inhabitants of New York by the appointment of papists to the principal offices of trust and influence. The state of things in Europe clothed these designs with terror. There the sword of persecution was unsheathed. England still bled under its stroke, and Louis XIV had but just revoked the edict of Nantes, whereby the Protestants of France were again subjected to prison and the stake, or sought security in flight, a considerable number of these exiled Huguenots seeking a home in this province. With these facts fresh in mind, and the victims of papal intolerance before their eyes, the intelligent people became greatly alarmed for the safety of their country and religion.

"Such was the gloomy posture of affairs at New York, in 1689, when the public mind was suddenly and happily relieved by the news of the abdication of James II and the succession of William and Mary, who were Protestants, to the throne of England. The citizens of New York, regarding with suspicion the minions of King James, who yet held the reins of the provincial government, and incited by a report, then current, that the Catholics intended to rise and massacre the Protestants, assembled in arms, on June 2nd, seized the fort, and placing at their head Capt. Jacob Leisler, a respected merchant, and commander of one of the train bands, undertook the government of the province, in the name of King William.§

lace at New York, were no less rejoiced at the news of the revolution in England, and the fall of the unprincipled James ; while, for the most part, they heartily acquiesced in the popular movements just mentioned. At a meeting of part of the inhabitants, held on June 11th, Capt. Richard Betts and Lieut. Samuel Moore were delegated to a convention to be held in the city, with instructions "to act as they should see cause for the good and benefit of the country." The town further resolved, June 15th, to provide and maintain two soldiers to strengthen the garrison at New York. They also sent delegates to Jamaica, for the purpose of electing two persons to represent the county in a Committee of Safety,* which it was proposed to form for the direction of public affairs at this critical juncture. One of the members of said committee, chosen for Queen's, was "loyal Mr. Samuel Edsall," of Newtown, who was thus styled because of his warm attachment to the cause of the revolution, and the leading part that he acted.

"The Committee of Safety, having convened at New York on June 26th, appointed Capt. Leisler commander-in-chief of the Province, and instituted such regulations as were deemed requisite to preserve the public peace and security, including sundry changes in the civil and military departments. Pursuant to orders, the people of Newtown proceeded to a new election of town officers, October 2d. Capt. Gershom Moore, Lieut. Samuel Moore, and Ensign Joseph Sackett were re-elected to their respective offices in the militia ; Samuel Edsall was appointed Justice-of-the-Peace, and Content Titus, Jonathan Hazard and Jeremiah Burroughs were chosen Commissioners of the Town Court, of whom the last named was also appointed Town Clerk in the stead of Daniel Phillips. Benjamin Severens retained his place as Constable, being at this time Deputy Sheriff of Queen's County. Delegates to a County Committee for the choice of a sheriff, were also appointed, one of whom, John Coe, was chosen to fill that office, and was commissioned by Leisler, on December 13th.

"In the beginning of winter, despatches were received from the royal government, in England, of such a nature as, in the opinion of the Committee of Safety, to warrant Capt. Leisler in assuming the title of Lieutenant-Governor, which he accordingly did, and selected a council, who entered upon their office December 11th, and of which Mr. Edsall was the member for Queen's County. William and Mary were immediately proclaimed King and Queen at New York,† and in the several county towns, while the Lieutenant-Governor and Council exerted their energies to establish the authority of their new sovereign.

"This, however, was not so easy a task ; for while the bitter opposition of the friends of the late King threatened to rend the province in sunder, the inroads of the French, on the northern frontiers, were creating the most lively apprehensions. To meet this twofold danger, Leisler sought to strengthen and increase the military force of the province. By his order the militia of Newtown, which, even in the spring of 1687, could muster '125 men, armed with firelocks,' was divided into two companies, of one of which the officers were Capt. Content Titus, Lieut. Jeremiah Burroughs, and Ensign Robert Coe ; and of the other, Capt. Samuel Moore,‡ Lieut. Joseph Sackett, and Ensign Gershom Moore.§ These were commissioned by Leisler, and were instructed to exercise their companies in arms, and maintain good order and discipline, the tactics then practiced in the town being, as expressed in a late return, 'distance, facings, doublings, counter marchings, wheelings and firings.'

"Early in 1690, the alarming intelligence reached New York of the burning of Schenectady, and the cruel massacre of its inhabitants by the French army and their Indian allies, on the night of February 8th, and the people of Albany, apprehending a visit from the enemy, earnestly begged a reinforcement of troops for their protection. Sympathizing with his fellow-citizens in their peril, Gov.

*"June 11, 1689, it was voted and agreed that Capt. Richard Betts and Lieut. Samuel Moore go to the county town to meet the deputies of other towns, to vote for two men out of the county to go to Yorke to act with the rest in the council as a Committee of Safety." Records of Newton, L. 1.

Leisler, on February 16th, despatched Mr. Edsall to Newtown, with an order to Major Thomas Lawrence, who commanded all the forces of Queen's to expedite the raising of fifty men in said county for this service.*

"As has been already hinted, Leisler and his coadjutors had experienced violent opposition from the friends of the late administration, who, though they pretended allegiance to William and Mary, denied the legality of the proceedings by which Capt. Leisler had been elevated to the chief seat of power. Albany had shown the most formidable array of opposition, but having yielded from apprehension of a worse evil, Queen's County seemed now to be the chief seat of disaffection. Autumn of 1690 found the rebel party there, 'without any provocation,' mustering in arms, and avowing their intentions to maintain their rebellion by violence. To quell this faction, Major Milborne was sent over to the island, October 28th, with a military force and instructions to prosecute the insurgents 'with all violence and act of hostility,' until they should be wholly subdued. At Newtown, the same day, a proclamation was issued, of which the following is a part :

FORASMUCH as there are many seditious persons, who without any provocation have taken up arms, and appeared in a rebellious manner against his Majesty's authority, within this county, called Queen's, upon Long Island, and under specious pretences have drawn aside, and caused certain numbers of his Majesty's liege subjects to abet with them, contrary to their allegiance and bounden duty, and the peace of our lord the King, his crown and dignity, and the security and welfare of the good inhabitants thereof:—THESE are in his Majesty's name, to forbid, forewarn and advertise all persons within this province, that they in no wise aid, succor, comfort, abet, consent to, or anywise adhere unto the said rebels, or any of their associates, but upon notice hereof that all such who have unadvisedly been herein concerned, do forthwith withdraw from them, and return to their allegiance and respective habitations, where they shall be preserved in their rights and properties, and peaceable enjoyment thereof; as they will answer the contrary at their utmost perils.

"Two days only had elapsed when news was received that 'the rebels had been forced to fly by the forces sent to suppress them.' In order that none of them might escape, Mr. Edsall and Capt. Williams were despatched by water, with volunteer troops, to scour Flushing Bay and Long Island Sound, examine all vessels, land and search suspected houses, and seize the person and papers of those guilty of rebellion.

"In this highly excited state of public feeling both parties anxiously awaited news from England. Leisler and his friends expected the royal approval, while their opponents, as heartily wishing for their condemnation, made strenuous efforts to accomplish this object, by means of highly exaggerated and false statements, which were transmitted to England to bias the royal mind against the people's governor. The disaffected persons in the towns of Hempstead, Jamaica, Flushing and Newtown, wrought up to the highest pitch of exasperation, convened a meeting on Nov. 7th, and addressed a memorial to their Majesty's secretary, complaining in the most vehement terms of Leisler's proceedings, who they represent as having taken to himself the 'most wicked and poorest of the sons of men, the chiefest of whom were Jacob Milborne and Samuel Edsall. These two base villains, with their collected rabble, in a barbarous and inhuman manner came over from New York to Long Island, and there did break open, plunder and destroy the houses and estates of their Majesty's subjects, in a most rude and barbarous manner, not regarding age or sex, stripping our wives and daughters of their wearing apparel, carrying away all that was portable, shooting at and wounding divers poor Englishmen (some deemed mortal), and then went so far as to sequester our estates, giving no reasons for so doing, other than that we would not accept commissions from the pretended Lieutenant-Governor, for which a hundred and four of us are driven from our estates, men of the chiefest and best estate on Long Island.'

"Leisler had gone too far. Intending all for good, his zeal to restore order in the province had led to an extremity of means, highly injudicious and fatal. His power now began to wane. Early in 1691, Major Ingoldesby arrived with soldiers from England, and demanded possession of the fort, but showing no orders, Leisler refused to surrender it.* Ingoldesby besieged the fortress, and summoned the citizens to repair to his standard. He directed Capt. Samuel Moore, of Newtown, to publish his authority, and stand ready to aid him. On March 19th, Gov. Henry Sloughter arrived,† and a well-meant but unfortunate delay on the part of Leisler to deliver up the fort confirmed in the Governor's mind the report of his tyranny and usurpation. The enemies of Leisler, though few in number, embodied the aristocracy, and their representations had weight. They obtained his commitment on a charge of high treason, and being, together with his son-in-law and secretary Jacob Milborne, in a summary manner tried and adjudged guilty, both were executed at New York on May 16th, following. 'So fell Capt. Leisler and Mr. Milborne,' says a writer of that day, 'men of known integrity, honesty, and loyalty, and by a pretended course of law, contrary to all law condemned, where their judges were, most of them, violent enemies of the happy revolution, and therefore resolved to revenge themselves on these gentlemen, who were the most early and zealous instruments of it, and who had first expended great part of their estates, and then suffered martyrdom for King William and Queen Mary, their religion and laws.' Leisler's council and other adherents, among whom were Samuel Edsall and John Coe, were imprisoned, but escaped with their lives. Mr. Edsall was tried and acquitted by the same court that convicted Leisler.‡

The letter§ of Dr. Increase Mather to Gov. Dudley expresses the popular feeling in reference to this unfortunate matter :

"Boston Jan'y 20.

"I am afraid that the guilt of innocent blood is still crying in the ears of the Lord against you. I mean the blood of Leisler and Milburn. My Lord Bellamont said to me, that he was one of the Committee of Parliament who examined the matter; and that those men were not only murdered, but barbarously murdered. However the murdered men have been cleared by the King, Lords and Commons. It is out of my province to be a judge in things of this nature. Nevertheless, considering what the proper judges, who have had an impartial hearing of the case, have said, and what the gentlemen who drew up a bill for taking off the attainder from those poor men have written to me about it, I think you ought, for your family's sake, as well as your own, to lay that matter to heart, and consider whether you ought not to pray as Psalms, li, 14."

The statement that the murdered men had been cleared by the King, Lords and Commons refers to the tardy justice indicated in

AN ACT FOR REVERSING THE ATTAINDER OF JACOB LEISLER AND OTHERS.

Whereas in the late happy revolution, the inhabitants of the province of New-York, in America, did in their general assembly, constitute and appoint Captain Jacob Leisler to be commander-in-chief of the said province, until their majesties pleasure should be known therein. And the said Jacob Leisler was afterwards confirmed in the said command by his Majesty's letter, dated the thirtieth day of July, one thousand six hundred and eighty-nine; and the said Jacob Leisler having the administration of the said government of New-York, by virtue of the said power and authority so given and confirmed to him as aforesaid, and being in the exercise thereof, captain Richard Ingoldesby arriving in the said province, in the month of January, Anno Domini one thousand six hundred and ninety, did without producing any legall authority, demand of the said Jacob Leisler the possession of the fort at New York; but the said Jacob Leisler, pursuant to the trust in him reposed, refusing to surrender the said fort into the hands of the said Richard Ingoldesby, kept the possession thereof until the month of March then next following, at which time colonel Henry Sloughter being constituted captain-general and governor-in-chief of the sd province, arrived there in the evening, and the said Jacob Leisler having notice thereof, that same night [though very late] took care to deliver the said fort to his order, which was done very early the next morning.

And whereas the said Jacob Leisler, also Jacob Milbourne, Abraham Gouverneur, and several others were arraigned in the Supreme Court of Judicature at New-York aforesaid, and convicted and attainted of high treason and felony, for not delivering the possession of the said fort to the said Richard Ingoldesby, and the said Jacob Leisler and Jacob Milborne were executed for the same. May it therefore please your most excellent majesty at the humble petition and request of Jacob Leisler, the son and heir of the said Jacob Leisler, deceased,

Jacob Milborne, the son and heir of the said Jacob Milborne, deceased, and of the said Abraham Gouverneur, that it be declared and enacted,

And be it enacted, by the king's most excellent majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal and commons in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that the said several convictions, judgments and attainders of the said Jacob Leisler, deceased, Jacob Milborne, deceased, and the said Abraham Gouverneur, and every of them, be and are repealed, reversed, made and declared null and void to all intents, constructions and purposes whatsoever, as if no such convictions, judgments, or attainders, had ever been had or given; and that no corruption of blood, or other penalties, or forfeitures of goods, chattels, lands, tenements, hereditaments, be by the said convictions and attainders, or either of them, incurred, any law usage or custom to the contrary notwithstanding.

Whichever side the partisan may take in this historic struggle, he can make no dispute as to the essential honesty of Leisler in his efforts for the enlargement of the people's rights. The English people of Long Island, with their affiliations with Massachusetts, instantly realized that his cause was that of the people, and took sides with him. If his cause had been successful the incident, instead of being a usurpation and an insurrection, would have been styled a revolution, and Leisler's name would have been embalmed in the memory of all patriots. "Fundamentally, he was right, for he struggled to procure enlarged liberties for the people."* The taking of the fort was merely an incident in the struggle, and if Leisler can be justified in the main proposition his action was necessary and logical. The appointment of a "Committee of Safety" at this time seems to be the first instance in our history, and furnished the model for that important instrument in the people's hands of effecting later their complete liberty in the Revolution of 1776. It should never be forgotten that Leisler called the first American Congress on May 1, 1690, the forerunner of the Continental Congress. This act alone proves that the narrowness attributed to him did not exist. "Even as it is, even in spite of his blunders and his failure, in spite of the violence and fanaticism which stain his record, Leisler† stands as one of the early representatives of ideas since recognized as wholesome and statesmanlike. Moreover, the name of the man who called together the first Congress of American colonies must always be pronounced with respect."‡

The hurried execution of Leisler and Milbourn, before his appeal to the King could be heard, was inexcusable, and reveals the character of his opponents.§

Captain Samuel Moore took an active part in church work. We read, May 15, 1697,

"That it is the desire of the town that Mr. John Morse to be ordained for to be ye paster and teacher of ouer church according to ye trneth of the gospel, and also voted at ye same time above that, these men are under written chosen by the Town for to elect and carrie on the worke in reference to settlement of the menester in order to the act above. Capt. Beats, Content Titus, Samuel Moer, Charles Hallit, Joseph Sackit, Caleb Leverich, John Berrian, Mr. Eisel, Richard Bets, John Lawrence, John Coe, Edward Hunt, Jeremiah Burroughs, Jonathan Hazard."

This record shows the vital connection between the town and the church. At the same meeting it was voted "That the town be at the charge to by a bell for the town of about ten pound price."

The outcome of the action of May 15, 1697, is quaintly expressed in the following declaration on September 9th, following:

Mary Reed², the wife of Capt. Samuel Moore², was probably the daughter of Thomas Reed¹, who built the house which was used by Rev. John Moore as church and parsonage. In 1655 he was one of those who held consultations at Middelburg in reference to Indian threats. His name appears on the "Indian rate" for £. 1. On October 3, 1662, he, with others, purchased Plunder's Neck from the Indian Chiefs Womatupa, Wonoxe and Powatahuman. The mother of Mary Reed was Elizabeth* ———. After her husband's death she married John Burroughs, who died 1678, aged 61 years. By her first husband she had children, Joseph Reed² and John Reed², both of whose names are on the Dongan charter, 1686, Mary Reed², the wife of Capt. Samuel Moore, and Sarah Reed²; by her second husband she had an only son, John Burroughs², b. 1655, d. 1699, who married Margaret Woodward² [Lambert¹, who m. Mary Moore³ (Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹)]. Johu Burroughs² had among other children, a son, John Burroughs³, d. 1772, aet. 88 (will), who came to Ewing township, New Jersey, at the age of about twenty-one and bought a farm not far from the church, and adjoining the land of Judge William R. McIlvaine. Elizabeth ———, the wife of John Burroughs¹, had a sister Hannah. Mary Moore, widow, appears in the record of the Presbyterian Church of Newtown, L. I., before 1725.

36. Capt. Samuel Moore³ (Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Charity Hallett³ (Captain William², m. Sarah Woolsey (George), William¹).

Captain Samuel Moore³ occupied the farm later owned by Samuel B. Towusend. The land is described under Captain Samuel Moore². [4]

Charity Hallett³ was the daughter of Captain William Hallett⁴ and Sarah Woolsey², his wife, daughter of George Woolsey¹, of Jamaica, L. I. William Hallett² occupied the part of his father's farm south of the road which later formed Greenoak, Welling, Main Streets and Newtown Avenue. He served as Justice and was Captain of a foot company. His brother, Samuel Hallett, lived on the opposite side of the road. She was the sister of Sarah Hallett, who married Rev. George Phillips,* of Brookhaven, and of William Hallett who, with his wife Ruth and five children, was murdered January 24, 1708, by two slaves. The case is remarkable on account of the dreadful tortures to which the murderers were put, and also on account of the law which was passed, entitled "An act for preventing the conspiracy of Slaves." She was the granddaughter of William Hallett¹ and ———, who was born in Dorsetshire, England, in 1616, came to America, helped to found Greenwich, Ct., afterward removed to Long Island and bought a large property at Hellgate. In 1655 his house at Hallett's Cove was destroyed by the Indians, after which he removed to Flushing. In 1656 he was appointed Sheriff, but on account of his entertaining Rev. William Wickenden from Rhode Island was deposed by Governor Stuyvesant. On the revolt of Long Island against the Dutch, Mr. Hallett naturally advocated the claims of Connecticut. He was sent as a delegate to the General Court of Connecticut, and was appointed Commissioner for Flushing. He returned to Hellgate and died there at the age of 90. Rev. Thomas Poyer's Register contains the record: "Samuel Moor, Jr., and Charity, his wife, baptised August 6, 1713, at Hell Gate."

Samuel Moore, 3d, devoted his life to teaching. He was Clerk of Newtown for fifteen years.

Amy Leverich⁶ was the daughter of William Leverich⁵ and Hannah, daughter of John Way. She was the granddaughter of John Leverich⁴, who married December 14, 1720, Amy Moore, the great-granddaughter of John Leverich³ and Hannah —, the great-great-granddaughter of Caleb Leverich² and Martha —, and the great-great-great-granddaughter of Rev. William Leverich¹, who was a student of Emanuel College, Cambridge, where he was graduated in 1625 with the degree of A.B., taking his A.M. in 1629. He engaged to become the minister of Dover, N. H., and took passage in the ship "James" at London, arriving at Salem, October 10, 1633. He left Dover and came to Boston in 1635; in 1637 he became assistant at Duxbury; in 1640 he was at Sandwich on Cape Cod, where he remained many years instructing the Indians. In 1653 he settled at Oyster Bay, L. I. At the latter place and Huntington and Newtown he spent the remainder of his life, dying about 1677.

Samuel Moore⁵, 3d, and Amy Leverich⁶ and Anna Lawrence had children:

55. Vernon Moore⁵ (Samuel⁴, Capt Samuel³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹). After the French War several young men left Newtown and went to Santa Cruz in the West Indies where they engaged in business. Vernon Moore was one of these. His will is on record in the Surrogate's office in New York, dated May 4, 1771, proved 1772. He mentions brothers and sisters, Samuel, Richard, Amiah (Amy), Hannah, Sarah, Elizabeth, Jane Hardenburg. The executors were John Moore, Jr., Samuel Moore (son) and Cornelius Berrien.

62. Richard Moore⁵ (Samuel⁴, Capt. Samuel³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Catharine Berrien⁵ (Cornelius⁴, Cornelius³, John², Cornelis Jansen¹).

Richard Moore⁵ was a cooper and lived in New York; he sold his land at Newtown to William Haviland, May 16, 1793.*

Catharine Berrien⁵ was the daughter of Cornelius Berrien⁴ and Jane, daughter of Charles Warner, of West Chester, who died February 22, 1777, in her 40th year, the granddaughter of Cornelius Berrien³ and Sarah, daughter of Samuel Hallett, the great-granddaughter of John Berrien² and his step-sister, Ruth Edsall, the great-great-granddaughter of Cornelis Jansen Berrien¹ and Jannetie, daughter of Jan Stryker. Cornelis Jansen Berrien settled in Flatbush as early as 1680, was an officer of the town and a deacon in the Dutch Church. In 1685, he removed to Newtown.

46. Sarah Moore⁴ (Capt. Samuel³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and ——— Tucker.

From a letter in the possession of Mrs. Chambers [484], of Trenton, dated May 11, 1800, from Sarah Tucker to her sister Elizabeth Moore, wife of Benjamin Moore, of Pennington, it appears that she went to spend the remainder of her days with her son at Shamokin, Pa.

"As for the journey (to Shamokin) it proved very favourable. I have been favoured with my health till about three weeks ago, but got better again, but as for liking the country, I do not. I am in expectation of ending my days here with my son and grandchildren. I am very thankful for the kind offer for me to return to you, but you have had your share of trouble with me, and I cannot be thankful enough to you both."

She wants to know when she had heard from her brothers on Long Island, sends her love to Augustine and his wife, names over a number of members of the family and friends, and signs the letter,

"I remain your affectionate sister,
 "SARAH TUCKER."

From another letter also in the possession of Mrs. Chambers, dated March 26, 1793, written by Sarah Moore to Elizabeth Moore, wife of Benjamin Moore, of Pennington, mention is made of Mr. Tucker's death:

"I hear from Mr. Huff that Uncle Tucker is dead, that Aunt Sarah is living with you."

The writer also states that her

"Uncle John had been obliged to go from home on account of the smallpox, his children having had it in the natural way, but are all over it now."

The writer signs herself

"Your affectionate niece,
 "SARAH MOORE."

The death of Sarah Moore Tucker is announced in a letter dated Shamokin, September 30, 1800.

"HONORED UNCLE:—

"I take this opportunity to let you know we are all in good health, those who are left of us. My mother is gone; she died the 24 July and was buried July 26 in the Church yard at Sunbury. She was not well from the time I saw you last, but not so as to keep her bed altogether. She was sensible to the last, knew she was going and called me to her a few days before her death and desired me as soon as she was dead to write to you and to my uncle on Long Island by the first opportunity, to let them know what was become of her, to give her love to you, to Aunt Betty to Austin and his wife, cousin Samuel and his family; all her near relations and friends.

"He hopes to see his Uncle this Fall or winter.

"AUGUSTINE TUCKER."

90. AUGUSTINE MOORE TUCKER⁵, m. ———; had children. He lived at Shamokin, Pa.

47. William Moore⁴ (Capt. Samuel³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) was a schoolmaster and surveyor. In 1742 and 1747 he was Assessor of Newtown. His will, in N. Y. Surrogate's office, is dated February 29, 1752. He mentions his father, Samuel Moore, his brothers, Samuel, John and Augustine, his sisters, Charity Fitch, whose son was William Moore Fitch, Sarah Tucker, Mary Williams, Peletiah Moore and Elizabeth. The executor was "brother Nathaniel Moore." He was evidently unmarried.

48. Mary Moore⁴ (Capt. Samuel³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Richard Williams.

The following letter* is all that has been discovered of Mary Moore Williams :

DEAR SISTER :

NEW TOWN, October 2.

I was very sorry it was not in my power to see you here, but if my health and weather will permit, I shall be at Brunswick some time in November. I shall try to see you all, if I can meet with a stage. I should be happy to see you all once more. All friends in New Town join with me in our sincere Regards to self and Brother and Sister Sarah and friends.

141. James Lent Moore⁷ (David⁶, David⁵, John⁴, Capt. Samuel³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Rachel Ann Ostrander (Jonathan Bailey m. Maria Brockway).

James Lent Moore⁷ at the time of his death was the oldest native resident of the old town of Newtown, as well as the oldest representative of the Moore family, whose history was coeval with that of the town. Mr. Moore was born on the farm bought of William Hallett, Sr., by Capt. Samuel Moore² in 1684, near where the residence of Luke Kouwenhoven now stands, near Steinway village. In his youth, he attended the old Bowery Bay public school. This schoolhouse, like the old family homestead, long ago passed out of existence. In 1842, Mr. Moore went into business at 21 Fulton Street. He was one of the oldest business men in the city of Brooklyn and the oldest in his line of trade. His name was a synonym for strict honesty and upright dealings. Of sterling Christian character, and possessing a genial and hospitable nature, he had many friends. He was warden and vestryman of St. James's Church for many years.

236. ELBERTA³, m. Augustus Sands; no children.

50. Nathaniel Moore⁴ (Capt. Samuel³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Rebecca Blackwell³ (widow Barnwell), (Jacob², Robert¹).

Nathaniel Moore succeeded to the paternal farm at Newtown, which afterward became S. B. Townsend's. See Capt. Samuel Moore². [4]

Rebecca Blackwell³ was the daughter of Jacob Blackwell², and his wife, Mary, the daughter of Capt. William Hallett², the granddaughter of Robert Blackwell¹, who appeared first, as a merchant in Elizabeth, N. J., from which place, he removed to New York, in 1676. He lived on the island, which bears his name, in New York harbour. His second wife was Mary Manningham, and she was the mother of all his children except two, Robert² and Ann², who married Jacob Reeder. Robert² removed to Hopewell, N. J., and his descendants, at that place, intermarried with those of Nathaniel Moore³ (Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹).

Riker, in his Annals of Newtown, states that it is believed that Joseph Moore⁴ died unmarried. Recent discoveries show that he removed to Hunterdon County, N. J., where, among other property, he owned a tannery. His will dated 11.5, 1757, probated 11.26, 1757, leaves part of house, etc., to his wife, Helena; land east of the Scotch road to eldest son, Stephen; land west of the same road to second son, Joseph; thirty acres of land to third son, Daniel; sixty pounds to fourth son, John; sixty pounds to the fifth son, Job; sixty pounds to the youngest son, James; fifty pounds to eldest daughter, Phebe; and fifty pounds to the youngest daughter, Elizabeth, seventeen, when she shall arrive at the age of eighteen. The executors were son Joseph and brother Benjamin Moore. [344]

His wife, Helena, was living in 1802, as indicated by the will of her son Joseph. He was a man of wealth and importance. In 1750 he advertised for a "runaway English man-servant named John Jones."*

The inventory of his goods is attached:

427. Stephen Moore⁵ (Joseph⁴, Joseph⁵, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹).

There is evidence that Stephen Moore⁵ was a business man and followed the water. Several letters in the possession of Mrs. J. S. Chambers, of Trenton, give valuable information as to his relations. One letter dated New York, February 20, 1786, Staten Island, another dated February 23, 1786, Staten Island, were written by J. C. Dongan† to Stephen Moore, one about farm work, the other about "the schooner." Another letter written from Jamaica, Long Island, June 26, 1789, by Abraham Skinner to Stephen Moore; he wants him to come over to see him about his business. It is directed to Stephen Moore near Trenton. Another letter from J. C. Dongan, Newtown, Long Island, October 18, 1790, about the farm business. Another letter directed to Stephen Moore at Mr. John Dongan's, near Decker's Ferry, Staten Island, Jamaica, November 6, 1787, reads:

SIR: I saw Mr. Robert Moore a few days since, and he says send for him to come to Jamaica, L. I., to attend court in the prosecution of a demand against the Executor of Samuel Sackett.
Signed. ABRAHAM SKINNER.‡

A letter to Abraham Skinner, from near Trenton, from W. Cook, October 5, 1791, says that Stephen Moore has applied to him respecting his suit against the executor of Sackett, and that if Skinner will send him the papers or an extract of them he will endeavor to put them in a situation to be tried at the first opportunity. Signed, W. Cook.

A letter from David Moore⁵ (John⁴, Samuel³, Capt. Samuel²), Newtown, Hell Gate Neck, March 8, 1795, directed to Joseph Moore, Hopewell, New Jersey, a brother of Stephen Moore (Joseph and Helena), informs him that Stephen has fallen sick in the township of Flushing at the house of Mr. Edmund Willetts. Signed, "From your friend David Moore."

Another letter from David Moore, dated March 26, 1799, to Joseph Moore, Hopewell, informs him that his brother Stephen died the 14th of March at Flushing, at the house of Mrs. Cornwell and Mrs. Willetts, sister of Ned Willetts, where he had the greatest care and attention. He was buried at Newtown, amongst his relations. Signed, David Moore.

428. Joseph Moore⁵ (Joseph⁴, m. Helena ———, Joseph³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Joanna ———.

Joseph Moore⁵ died in 1804, without children. In his will he mentions his "aged mother" and directs that after his wife, Joanna, is provided for, the remainder of the estate, two years after his death, shall be sold and the money put out at interest, one-third of the latter going to the widow, and the remaining two-thirds, after taking out sufficient to support his mother, to be equally divided between his brothers and sister, John, Job, James, and Phebe Hutchinson. If my brother James have no children, his share shall be equally divided among the children of "my deceased brother, Daniel Moore." The above brother James was alive in 1804, for he signed the paper when probated. There was a James Moore who died intestate, 2.14, 1801, who could not be the person mentioned in the above will.

The following inventory is of interest :

429. Daniel Moore⁵ (Joseph⁴, m. Helena —, Joseph³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and — Douglass?

Joseph Moore⁵, brother of Daniel Moore⁵, in his will, dated 1802 and probated 1804, says, if James should die without issue, his part shall be divided among the children of Daniel Moore, deceased.

Daniel Moore⁵ and — Douglas? had

435. DANIEL DOUGLAS⁶, m. Mary —, d.

432. Capt. James Moore⁵ (Joseph⁴, Joseph³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Rebecca — and Abigail —.

Capt. James Moore's record cannot be better given than by the inscription on his tombstone at Princeton :

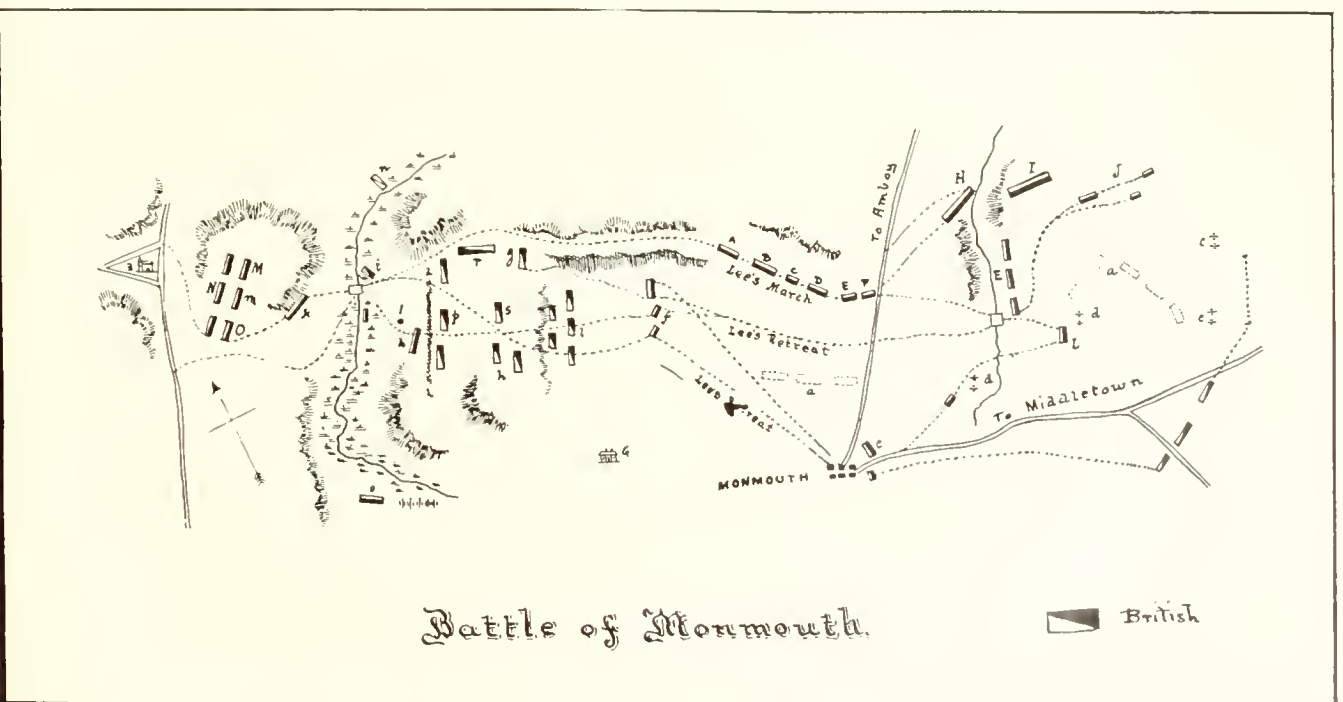

"In memory of Capt. James Moore who died at Princeton, November 29th, 1832, aet. 80 years.

"Capt. Moore enjoyed in a high degree the confidence and esteem of his townsmen. In his country's struggle for independence, he was an active and efficient officer in the militia of his native State. At the time of his death, and many years before, he was Ruling Elder in the Presbyterian Church of Princeton.

"He was trustee of the Presbyterian Church from 1786 to 1831. He attended upon the Council of Safety and executed the requests and orders of that body in Princeton."

"Defence of the college was not long persisted in. Captain James Moore, of the Princeton militia, with a few others, burst open one of the doors and demanded the surrender of the troops within. They complied, and, with a few invalids, were made prisoners. The greater number of their fellow soldiers were already on their retreat towards New Brunswick. Washington, after despatching a detachment under Major Kelly of the Pennsylvania militia to break the bridge over Stony Brook, to retard the advance of Cornwallis, followed up the fleeing enemy as far as Kingston."*

342. Abigail Moore⁴ (Joseph³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Samuel Washburn[†] had

443. ELIZABETH WASHBURN⁵.

| 444. HANNAH WASHBURN⁵.

343. Sackett Moore⁴ (Joseph³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Abigail Moore⁴ (Nathaniel³, m. Joanna Prudden, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹).

Sackett Moore⁴ settled on the Scotch Road near Trenton, N. J. One mile from Trenton, on the Pennington Road, the Scotch Road branches off to the left and for about two and a quarter miles goes northwest, after which it bends to the northeast for a little distance, and thence its course is a little west of north. The road which leads from McKonkey's Ferry runs east of north, and one and one-fourth miles from the river it crosses the River Road at the Bear Tavern, eight miles from Trenton; two miles farther it crosses the Scotch Road, seven miles from Trenton.‡

Sackett Moore⁴ and Abigail Moore⁴ had

445. NATHANIEL⁵, b. Dec. 8, 1741, m. Mary Mershon; he d. September 30, 1781; no children.

446. CAPT. JOSEPH⁵, b. August 14, 1744, unmarried, d. March 20, 1803.

447. JOANNA⁵, b. July 17, 1747, m. Andrew Smith (? Andrew); she d. June 1, 1823.

448. Jesse Moore⁵ (Sackett⁴, Joseph³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Susannah Lawrence and Hannah Woodward (Daniel).

Jesse Moore was a member of Capt. John Mott's company, First Regiment, Hunterdon County, N. J., in the War of the Revolution. He was a trustee of the First Presbyterian Church, of Hopewell, at Pennington. He had no children by either wife.

Hannah Woodward Moore, in her will, speaks of Hannah Maria Taylor, her adopted daughter. The latter was her great niece, daughter of her niece, Eliza Ann Taylor, wife of Burroughs Taylor. The family Bible of Jesse Moore is in the possession of Hannah Maria Taylor.

And. Clark.

He lived at Birmingham, Trenton township. It was at his house that General Washington took breakfast before the opening of the battle of Trenton, December 25, 1776.* The house is still standing and a bronze tablet near, commemorates the event.

Mary Hart² was the daughter of John¹ and his wife Sarah ———. The name of John Hart¹ is signed to an agreement, dated August 26th, 1703, showing that he was in Hopewell township as early as that, at least. He was the ancestor of the "White Harts." Mrs. Georgiana Townsend has a pewter platter about eighteen inches in diameter, marked on the back with a crown and a double eagle. The plate is also marked S. * I. The platter evidently belonged to Sarah and John Hart.

472. Maria Moore⁶ (William Sackett⁵, Benjamin⁴, Joseph³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Benjamin Fish⁶ (Benjamin⁴, Benjamin³, m. Sarah Moore, Nathan², Jonathan¹).

Benjamin Fish⁵ was born in Ewing Township, N. J., November 15, 1785; he was the son of Benjamin⁴, born on L. I., and Abigail Howell (Joshua), the grandson of Benjamin³ and Sarah Moore (Joseph, of Newtown,), who removed to Ewing, N. J., the great-grandson of Nathan² and ———, who lived in Newtown, great-great-grandson of Jonathan¹, who at Newtown was a magistrate under the Dutch in 1661 and 1662. Benjamin⁶ removed to Trenton in 1808. When the war with Great Britain broke out in 1812 he became interested in vessels plying between Philadelphia and Trenton, and soon after engaged in the business of transporting commissary stores and ordinance across the state for the Government and general merchandise for the public. He was also engaged in the lumber and mercantile business. In 1825 he became connected with the Union Line Stage and Steamboat Co., for the transportation of passengers and merchandise between New York and Philadelphia. The firm was Hill, Fish & Abbe. He continued in this business until the Camden & Amboy Railroad was built, of which he was one of the original projectors and stockholders. He was annually elected a Director for a period of fifty years. He was a Director of the Camden & Philadelphia Ferry Co., President of the Trenton Delaware Bridge Co., Director of Trenton Banking Co., elected February 11, 1833, and served for nearly forty-seven years. He kept an account with the Bank from 1810 till his death, a period of seventy years, was Manager of Trenton Savings Fund Society from its organization till 1880, Trustee of the First Presbyterian Church from 1825 to 1880 and President of the Board from 1864 to 1880, President of the Delaware Fire Co. in 1821, and Member of House of Assembly in 1835. In politics he was an old-time Whig, afterward a Republican.

484. Emma Maria Fish⁷ (Maria Moore⁶, m. Benjamin Fish, William Sackett⁵, Benjamin⁴, Joseph³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and John Story Chambers⁶ (John⁴, John³, Alexander², John¹).

Emma Maria Fish⁷ (Mrs. Chambers) has furnished much valuable matter connected with the New Jersey family. She has many original letters and documents which have helped to unravel the history of the family. Among family antiques she has six teaspoons that belonged to her great-great-grandmother, Elizabeth Moore, which were buried in the garden during the Revolution, an Oxford Bible that belonged to Sackett Moore, 1724, letters of administration on the estate of Sackett Moore, dated December 6th, 1753, an inventory of cattle and sheep taken from Joseph Moore by the British troops, dated December 12, 1776, inherited from the Moore family of Long Island, and a shawl presented to her mother by the wife of Capt. James Moore, of Princeton, N. J.

John Story Chambers⁵ was the son of John⁴ and Elizabeth Scudder (John), the grandson of John³, and Elizabeth Story, of Cranbury, the great-grandson of Alexander² and Rose Crage (b. at Belentopen, Ireland), the great-great-grandson of John Chambers¹, who came from Antrim, Ireland, in 1730, and settled in Trenton, N. J.

He was prominently identified with the interests of Trenton, occupying many positions of trust and responsibility. In 1856 he was elected treasurer of the Trenton Gas Light Company and a year later was made director and general manager. In early life he was greatly interested in military affairs and in 1843 was made corporal of Capt. Hamilton's troop of cavalry, and in 1846 was a member of the National Guard. In 1861 he joined Company A., Seventh Regiment. In 1841 he was elected a member of the Union Fire Company. He was chosen secretary of that company in 1846 and finally president in 1860. In 1859 he was chosen trustee of the Trenton Academy, at the same time being made secretary, and in 1872 was chosen treasurer. He was elected for the third time on October 21st, 1884, as manager of the Trenton Saving Fund Society. Recognizing his worth, the management of the Mechanics National Bank elected him a director in January, 1879. He was elected vice-president in 1888. Mr. Chambers became connected with the Merchants Transportation Company as director. The office of president was given him December 10, 1884.

Early in life he joined the First Presbyterian Church and was actively engaged in the work of this organization in 1856, when he was a teacher in the mission school connected therewith, which school was situated on Princeton avenue. In 1857 he was elected clerk of the board of trustees of the church, holding the position until 1874. He was a trustee from 1865 to 1874 and an elder from 1866 to 1874. He took a prominent part in the organization of the Fifth Presbyterian Church, the first meeting of the trustees being held at Mr. Chambers' home. Four years later he withdrew from the Fifth Church and afterwards rejoined the First.

Mr. Chambers was commissioner of the Sinking Fund for thirty-two years, from 1866 to 1898, and served without pay. In 1897 he was honored by the placing of his portrait in the Council Chamber. The portrait was presented to the city by the president of the City Council, Frederick A. Walker, on behalf of the citizens, and it was accepted by Mayor Sickel. Mr. Walker, in his presentation speech, showed that during his thirty-two years of service through various political changes in the city government Mr. Chambers handled $1,936,457.37 at an expense to the city of only $29.90 for books and stationery.

wards Professor of Mathematics in the University of Nashville, Tenn.; for three years he took charge of an Academy at Allentown, N. J., and in November, 1830, entered the Junior class in the College of New Jersey, where he graduated in 1832. In the fall of that year he commenced the study of theology in Princeton Seminary, but for some months he also acted as a tutor in the college, and completed his theological course in the fall of 1835. In July, 1836, he became pastor of the West Nottingham Church, and what is now Port Deposit Church, at the same time taking charge of the West Nottingham Academy. His pastorate here was greatly blessed by numerous additions to the church. He became Professor of Latin and Greek in Lafayette College in 1850, and filled the chair until March, 1855, when, much broken in health, for four years, he recruited his strength as a country pastor in Newtown, Pa. In June, 1859, he went to California with a commission from the Board of Education to lay the foundation of a Presbyterian college on the Pacific Coast, a work in which he was eminently successful. In 1865-9 his name again appeared on the catalogues of Lafayette College as Professor of Biblical Instruction. Returning to California, he took an active part in the organization, in 1871, of the San Francisco Theological Seminary, in which he was, from its opening, the Professor of Hebrew and Old Testament Literature. In 1853 he published his Commentary on the Song of Solomon, and three years later, "Octorara," a poem.*

38. Benjamin Moore³ (Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Anna Sackett⁴ (Joseph³, Simon², Simon¹).

Benjamin Moore³ came into possession of the property, near Newtown village, previously owned by his grandfather, Rev. John Moore, and which later became the residence of John Jacob Moore⁶. Where Broadway, in Newtown village, turns towards the southwest and becomes the Hallett Cove Road, there is an old house, built between 1734 and 1738, still standing, called "the Witte house." This is the homestead of a branch of the Moore family. Before this the field belonged to Joseph Sackett and then to his son, Rev. Samuel Sackett. Opposite the Witte house is the land of Lieut. Samuel Moore⁴, son of Benjamin Moore³. The latter, who owned the land on the Shell Road, conveyed to his son, Lieut. Samuel⁴, the northwestern half of the cleared land and meadow and half the young orchard. Samuel⁴ built a house on this lot, and died in 1788. The farm, after his death, became the property of Jacob Moore⁵, brother of Bishop Moore, who married in succession Hannah and Elizabeth Waters. After Jacob Moore's death the property was divided among the Walker, Innes, John Jacob Moore estates and Locust Grove. Some of the property was owned by John Penfold. Bishop Moore was born here, and Hannah Moore, wife of Capt. Daniel Sackett Moore. In 1715, Benjamin Moore³ was sergeant in Capt. Daniel Stevenson's company of militia.† See Capt. Samuel Moore.² [4]

Anna Sackett⁴ was the daughter of Joseph Sackett³ and Elizabeth Betts. Her two sisters, Elizabeth⁴ and Sarah⁴, married Joseph Moore³. [37], [338]

579. Right Reverend Bishop Benjamin Moore⁶, S. T. D., (Lieut. Samuel⁴, Benjamin³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Charity Clarke (Major Thomas, m. Mary Stillwell).

"Benjamin Moore⁶ was born at Newtown, Long Island, on the 16th of October, 1748. This rare historic interest, therefore, belongs to his life, that its childhood and youth were spent in our colonial days, while his manhood and age were devoted to religious service in our republic. In the critical years of transition from the old to the new order, the country had no greater need than that of a pure, able, and earnest clergy in its metropolitan city. The supply of leaders with radical ideas was larger than the nation required. The men who were especially wanted were those who had learned from the past, and were conservatively busy in the present, commanding universal respect and building foundations quietly. A man for his time was found when Mr. Moore began his ministry in New York, two years before the Declaration of Independence.

"His earlier history, therefore, becomes a matter of interesting inquiry. He had an elder brother, who inherited the paternal estate at Newtown, and whose descendants continue to live on the property to this day. Another brother, William, studied medicine, and became one of the most eminent physicians of New York, in the early part of the century.

"Benjamin was sent to school at New Haven, where he had the advantages for instruction that surrounded Yale College. But preferring to become a student of King's College (now Columbia), he removed to New York and was fitted for it in a preparatory school. Little thought had he on the day when he was admitted as a Freshman, that he should become one of the most honored presidents of the institution he was entering, and that his college should then bear a new name in a new nation.

"After his graduation," (in 1768) says Dr. Berrian, "he studied theology at Newtown, under the direction of Dr. Samuel Auchmuty, rector of Trinity Church, and for several years he taught Latin and Greek to the sons of gentlemen in New York. He went to England in May, 1774, was ordained deacon on Friday, June 24, in the chapel of the Episcopal palace at Fulham, by Richard Terrick, Bishop of London, and priest, on Wednesday, June 29, 1774, in the same place and by the same bishop.

"Returning from England, he was appointed, with the Rev. John Bowden (afterward Dr. Bowden, of Columbia College), an assistant minister of Trinity Church, Dr. Auchmuty being rector and afterward Dr. Inglis, since Bishop of Nova Scotia.

"At the beginning of Mr. Moore's ministry, the first Trinity Church (much larger and more imposing than the second) was still standing, and so remained until it was swept away in the conflagration which destroyed that part of the city in September, 1776. Built in 1696, and twice enlarged, its dimensions were now one hundred and forty-six feet in length, by seventy-two in width, and its spire was one hundred and eighty feet high. Two chapels belonged to the parish, St. George's, built in 1752, and St. Paul's, in 1766. As yet, there was no St. John's chapel. That was erected in 1807.

"Through all those trying years, when the enemies of the church were many, and the site of its chief sanctuary was marked by a blackened ruin, the young assistant persevered in his work, until, twelve years later, in 1788, he saw a new Trinity Church completed, though smaller than the old edifice. Dr. Berrian says of his entire ministry in the parish: 'His popularity was unbounded, and his labors most extensive, so that in the period of thirty-five years, he celebrated 3,578 marriages, and baptized 3,064 children and adults.'

"Not only was he considered a man of learning, but of much power as a preacher. 'His voice, though not strong, was so clear and musical that every syllable could be heard in the most remote part of the church.' His words were reinforced by the life which the people knew so well, and so thoroughly revered. Gentleness, kindness, simplicity, and a personal interest in his parishoners, together with great consistency, were his characteristics. Even in middle life there was something venerable in his appearance; and very familiar to New Yorkers were his intellectual head, plain-parted hair, tall, thin and slightly bending figure, and the blending in his manner of gentleness and courtesy. He was called apostolic. Theologically, he was a high-Churchman for his day.

REVEREND BISHOP B. MOORE, S.T.D.

"Bishop Provoost resigned the rectorship of Trinity Church in 1800 and Dr. Moore at once succeeded him in the parish, and afterwards in the diocese. On the 5th of September, 1801, he was unanimously elected Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church, in the State of New York. He was so manifestly the man for the place that his election seemed to be spontaneous. A few days afterward, September 11, 1801, he was consecrated in St. Michael's Church, Trenton, New Jersey, by Bishop White, of Pennsylvania, Bishop Claggett, of Maryland, and Bishop Jarvis, of Connecticut.

"During his episcopate Bishop Moore remained rector of Trinity Church, the two positions in those days being ordinarily held by the same person. Such an arrangement was the more practicable, because the confirmation visitations were so much fewer then than now. The list of parishes in the entire State of New York entitled to representation in the Convention of 1804, is as follows: In New York City, Trinity Church and its three chapels; Church du St. Esprit, St. Mark's in the Bowery, and Christ Church; and beyond New York City single parishes in the following places: New Rochelle, Catskill, Newtown and Flushing, Yonkers, Brooklyn (St. Ann's), Hudson, Staten Island, Rye, Bedford, Albany, Poughkeepsie (Rev. Philander Chase, rector), Fishkill, Hempstead, New Stamford, East Chester, West Chester, besides stations in Orange and Otsego Counties. These parishes were served by twenty-eight clergy.

"The extent of the annual visitations is given by Bishop Moore himself. At the Diocesan Convention of 1808 he makes the following report: 'Since the last meeting of the convention (exclusive of the four congregations which are more immediately committed to my pastoral care as rector of Trinity Church), I have visited the following churches for the purpose of administering the holy rite of confirmation: Christ Church, New York; St. Ann's, Brooklyn; St. Andrew's, Staten Island; Trinity Church, New Rochelle; St. Peter's, West Chester; St. Paul's, East Chester; St. Mark's, Bowery; St. John's, Yonkers. In the before-mentioned period of time, six hundred and ninety-two persons have been confirmed. We have ten young gentlemen who have signified their intention of applying for admission into Holy Orders.'

"In 1809, the bishop reports: 'During the last year I have administered the holy rite of confirmation in the following churches: Grace Church, Jamaica; St. James', Newtown; St. George's, Flushing; St. Michael's, Bloomingdale; Trinity Church, New York; Christ Church, Hudson; St. Peter's, Albany; St. Paul's, Troy; Trinity Church, Lansingburgh; St. George's, Schenectady; Episcopal congregation in the Lutheran Church, Athens; St. Luke's, Catskill. In the course of these visitations I have confirmed three hundred and four persons.'

"It will be observed that though these confirmations were occasional, the classes were large. The extent of the bishop's duties as rector may be inferred from the fact that in 1804 there were in Trinity parish 1,000 communicants, 115 marriages, 378 baptisms, and 400 funerals.

"Bishop Moore's episcopate was marked by the steady growth of the diocese. Christ Church, New York City, was received into union with the convention in 1802, St. James', Goshen, in 1803, and the Church du St. Esprit was consecrated; St. Paul's, Claverack and Warwick, was received in 1804, St. Stephen's, New York City, and the Church at Athens, and Coxsackie in 1806, and St. Michael's, Bloomingdale, in 1807. The year 1810 was very fruitful. On the 18th of March a young man of excellent promise was ordained deacon in St. John's Chapel. His name was William Berrian. Who could say that he would not some day become rector of Trinity parish itself. On the 22d of March, Zion's Lutheran Church, in Mott Street, conformed to our communion, and its Pastor, Ralph Williston, was ordained on the following day. On the 17th of May the new St. James' Church, Hamilton Square, five miles distant from the city, among the country seats of prominent churchmen, was consecrated; also on the 9th of June, Trinity Church, Geneva, July 8th, Christ Church, Cooperstown, and October 17, St. Matthew's, Bedford.

"During all these years of diocesan work, the Rev. Mr. Hobart, of Trinity Church, afterward Bishop Hobart, was the active and most efficient helper of Bishop Moore ; and by his co-operation the Protestant Episcopal Theological Society was established in 1806, and became the germ of the General Theological Seminary. The Bible and Common Prayer Book Society was also established in 1809.

"In February, 1811, the bishop was attacked by paralysis, and called a special convention in May, for the purpose of electing an assistant bishop. Dr. Hobart was chosen, and after his consecration performed all the duties of the diocese. Bishop Moore withdrew into the sacred retirement of an invalid, where his bearing is said to have been saintly ; and he fell asleep on the 27th of February, 1816, in the sixty-sixth year of his age.

"During his episcopate a question arose with regard to his jurisdiction, but it was one into which he did not enter, and it does not form a part of his history.

"Bishop Hobart preached his funeral sermon, in which he said : ' He lives in the memory of his virtues. He was unaffected in his temper, in his actions, in his every look and gesture. Simplicity, which throws such a charm over talents, such a lustre over station, and even a celestial loveliness over piety itself, gave its coloring to the talents, the station, and the piety of our venerable father.

" ' People of the congregation ! You have not forgotten that voice of sweetness and melody, yet of gravity and solemnity, with which he excited while he chastened your devotion ; nor that evangelical eloquence, gentle as the dew of Hermon.' " *

It may not be amiss to present an account of the ordination of Mr. Richard Channing Moore† and Mr. Joseph G. C. Bend, as it seems to have been novel at that time.

"On Sunday last,‡ in St. George's Chapel, in this city, Mr. Richard C. Moore and Mr. Joseph G. J. Bend were ordained deacons of the Episcopal Church by the Right Rev. Samuel Provoost, D.D., Bishop of said church in this State. These gentlemen, according to the usages of the Church, are ordained Deacons, with special permission to preach, and it is requisite that they should continue Deacons for some time, previous to their admission to the order of Priesthood. The Chapel was unusually crowded, the ceremonies of Episcopal ordination being novel§ in America. The solemnity of the occasion, the great good conduct which was observed through every part of it, and an excellent sermon, delivered by the Rev. Benjamin Moore with an admired diction and eloquence peculiar to him, made a pleasing impression upon the audience. We cannot on this occasion, but with pleasure reflect that the Protestant Episcopal Church, in these States, is now perfectly organized and in full enjoyment of each spiritual privilege (in common with other denominations), requisite to its preservation and prosperity."

Benjamin Moore⁶ received the degree of A.B. from King's College, 1768, and A. M. later ; in 1775 he served as president pro tempore ; in 1784 he became Professor of Rhetoric and Logic, and held the chair for three years ; in 1789 he received the degree of S. T. D. ; from 1787 to 1802 he was Regent of the University of New York ; he became President of King's College in 1801 and continued in the office until 1812 ; he was trustee from 1802-1813 ; he was Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church, N. Y., from 1801 until his death, 1816. He was the first Secretary of the " Corporation for the Relief of Widows and Children of Clergymen of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the State of New York," founded September 29, 1769. In 1782 he was Deputy Chaplain of the hospital staff and was stationed in New York City ; at the same time he was Assistant Rector.

§ Bishop Seabury ordained John Howe, of Virginia, at Hempstead, L. I., Nov. 3, 1785.—New York Packet, November 10, 1785.

Mr. Moore opened the meetings of the Provincial Congress with prayer in the early days of excitement preceding the Revolution. Bishop Moore administered the communion to Alexander Hamilton after the duel with Aaron Burr, and was one of the assistants at the inauguration of George Washington as President.*

The events attending the death of Hamilton are best given in Bishop Moore's own words :

"Upon my entering the room and approaching his bed, with the utmost calmness and composure he said : ' My dear sir you perceive my unfortunate situation, and no doubt have been made acquainted with the circumstances which led to it. It is my desire to receive the communion at your hands. I hope you will not conceive there is any impropriety in my request.' He added, ' It has been for some time past the wish of my heart, and it was my intention to take an early opportunity of uniting myself to the Church by the reception of that holy ordinance.' I observed to him that he must be very sensible of the delicate and trying situation in which I was then placed ; that, however desirous I might be to afford consolation to a fellow mortal in distress, still it was my duty as a minister of the Gospel to hold up the law of God as paramount to all other laws and that, therefore, under the influence of such sentiments I must unequivocally condemn the practice which had brought him to his present unhappy condition. He acknowledged the propriety of these sentiments, and declared he viewed the late transaction with sorrow and contrition. I then asked him : ' Should it please God to restore you to health, sir, will you never be again engaged in a similar transaction, and will you employ your influence in society to discountenance this barbarous custom ? ' His answer was, ' That, sir, is my deliberate intention.' I proceeded to converse with him on the subject of his receiving the communion, and told him that with respect to the qualifications of those who wished to become partakers of that holy ordinance my inquiries could not be made in language more expressive than that which was used by our Church—' Do you sincerely repent of your sins past ? Have you a lively faith in God's mercy through Christ, with a thankful remembrance of the death of Christ ? And are you disposed to live in love and charity with all men ? ' He lifted up his hands and said : ' With the utmost sincerity of heart I can answer those questions in the affirmative. I have no ill will against Colonel Burr. I met him with a fixed resolution to do him no harm. I forgive him all that happened.' I then observed to him that the terrors of the divine law were to be announced to the obdurate and impenitent, but that the consolations of the Gospel were to be offered to the humble and contrite heart, that I had no reason to doubt his sincerity and would proceed immediately to gratify his wishes. The communion was then administered, which he received with great devotion, and his heart afterward appeared to be perfectly at rest. I saw him again this (that) morning, when with his last faltering words he expressed a strong confidence in the mercy of God through the intercession of the Redeemer. I remained with him until 2 o'clock this (that) afternoon, when death closed the awful scene. He expired without a struggle and almost without a groan."

Near the Rector Street side of Trinity grounds in New York can be seen "G. Bend's Vault," which covers the remains of "Bishop Benjamin Moore and Charity, his wife." In the church itself is a recumbent effigy of the Bishop in marble.

Charity Clarke was the daughter of Major Thomas Clarke*, a retired officer of the British Army, born August 11, 1692.

Major Clarke bought a tract of land extending from what is now Nineteenth Street to Twenty-fourth Street, and from the Hudson River to what is now Eighth Avenue. Here he built a handsome house about 1750 and called it "Chelsea," after the famous hospital near London. The house was burned down during the last illness of its owner, and he nearly perished in the flames. His widow rebuilt it. The house and a large portion of the land were left to her daughter Charity†. In 1745 Major Clarke married Mary Stillwell. By this marriage there were four children—Mary, who married Richard Vassal, Charity, Maria Theresa, and Clement. Maria Theresa married Viscount Barrington, cousin of Theodosia Bartow, wife of Col. Burr, who was first married to General Prevost, a British officer. Mary was Lady Holland. It is said that Lady Affic was a relative of Charity Clarke's.‡

'T was the night before Christmas, when all through the house
Not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse;
The stockings were hung by the chimney with care,
In hopes that St. NICHOLAS soon would be there;
The children were nestled all snug in their beds,
While visions of sugar-plums danced in their heads;
And Mamma in her 'kerchief, and I in my cap,
Had just settled our brains for a long winter's nap,
When out on the lawn there arose such a clatter,
I sprang from the bed to see what was the matter,
Away to the window I flew like a flash,
Tore open the shutters and threw up the sash.
The moon on the breast of the new-fallen snow,
Gave the lustre of mid-day to objects below,
When, what to my wondering eyes should appear,
But a miniature sleigh, and eight tiny reindeer,
With a little old driver, so lively and quick,
I knew in a moment it must be St. Nick.
More rapid than eagles his coursers they came,
And he whistled, and shouted, and called them by name:
"Now, Dasher! now, Dancer! now, Prancer and Vixen!
On, Comet! on, Cupid! on, Donder and Blitzen!
To the top of the porch! to the top of the wall!
Now dash away! dash away! dash away all!"
As dry leaves that before the wild hurricane fly,
When they meet with an obstacle, mount to the sky;
So up to the house-top the coursers they flew,

With the sleigh full of toys, and St. Nicholas too.
And then, in a twinkling, I heard on the roof,
The prancing and pawing of each little hoof—
As I drew in my head, and was turning around,
Down the chimney St. Nicholas came with a bound.
He was dressed all in fur, from his head to his foot,
And his clothes were all tarnished with ashes and soot;
A bundle of toys he had flung on his back,
And he look'd like a pedlar just opening his pack.
His eyes—how they twinkl'd! his dimples how merry!
His cheeks were like roses, his nose like a cherry!
His droll little mouth was drawn up like a bow,
And the beard of his chin was as white as the snow;
The stump of a pipe he held tight in his teeth,
And the smoke it encircled his head like a wreath;
He had a broad face and a little round belly,
That shook when he laughed, like a bowlful of jelly.
He was chubby and plump, a right jolly old elf,
And I laughed when I saw him, in spite of myself;
A wink of his eye and a twist of his head
Soon gave me to know I had nothing to dread;
He spoke not a word, but went straight to his work,
And fill'd all the stockings; then turned with a jerk,
And laying his finger aside of his nose,
And giving a nod, up the chimney he rose;
He sprang to his sleigh, to his team gave a whistle,
And away they all flew like the down of a thistle.
But I heard him exclaim, ere he drove out of sight,
"Happy Christmas to all, and to all a good night!"[‡]

hearts cheerful memories of childhood ! Such, at least, if no higher, has been the lot of the late Dr. Clement C. Moore, the author of 'A Visit from St. Nicholas,' which has now been a household friend of American children for nearly seventy-five years, and promises to be dear to them for many and many a year to come.

"Dr. Moore belongs to the group of minor singers whose right to be remembered rests on a very small amount of verse achieved. There are poets who hold their place, and will long hold it, in every anthology by right of two or three poems ; others who are known but by one ; and others, again, who live but by a single line, or at most by a couplet in some poem, all the rest of which is forgotten. In the case of Dr. Moore, nothing he has written is likely to survive except the 'Visit from St. Nicholas' ; and this lives, not by right of poetry, but by its innocent realism and its direct appeal to the matter-of-fact imagination of childhood. For children—and this is as true of girls as it is of boys—rarely love poetry, and they tolerate verse only when it pleases their infant years with jingle, or when, grown older, its rhymes and 'ordered lines' dress up some narrative that has at least the look of being 'true.' Even then they are apt to wonder why the story could not have been as well told in plain prose.

"Mr. William S. Pelletreau, in the interesting account of Dr. Moore's life which he has just published, tells us that the 'Visit from St. Nicholas' was written in 1822 as a Christmas present for his children ; and that a young lady* visiting the family copied it into her album, and sent it, unknown to Dr. Moore, to the editor of the Troy Sentinel, who printed it, without the author's name, in the issue of that journal for December 23, 1823. From the newspaper it found its way to the school-readers, and speedily became a great favorite with children all over the country.

"Mr. Pelletreau tells us that Dr. Moore was at first annoyed by the appearance of the poem in print, as he had not intended it for the public, and thought it a mere trifle with but slight literary merit. No doubt it was with some misgivings that, twenty years later, he gave it a place in the volume of his collected poems. With the proverbial blindness of writers, he probably thought this playful sally, written to please his youngsters at their Christmas merry-making far inferior to its all-forgotten companions, of which he says in his preface : 'Some of them have cost me much time and thought, and I have composed them all as carefully and correctly as I could.'

"But, alas ! for the self-esteem of poets, immortalities and oblivions are not distributed on their own terms. They take much pains to please their peers among the learned and the cultivated, who 'scarce allow them half an eye' ; while some flower chance-dropped from their hands is picked up by a child in passing, and, to their surprise,—sometimes, it may be, to their disdain,—they find that out of the mouths of babes and sucklings their praise has been ordained. The bright-eyed procession of children—most beautiful, most precious of all the beautiful and precious things in our world—has kept Dr. Moore's unconsidered trifle alive for all these years ; and it has earned its right to live by the clearness of its conception and the directness with which the story is told. It is a true piece of Dutch painting in verse, and it is not surprising that it should have been translated into painting so many times. For nothing is left to the copyist's fancy ; he has but to trace the poet's lines with his pencil. And, trifle as it is, it has a fair claim to originality as a conception. Dr. Moore's St. Nicholas has become the accepted personification of this kindly purveyor of toys and playthings ; and this particular avatar is one in which, so far as we know, the benevolent saint never appeared before. His German prototype is, by comparison, a somewhat stolid and formal personage, who goes through his task of distributing gifts somewhat in the spirit of an expressman delivering his parcels, or of a schoolmaster giving out prizes at commencement. Dr. Moore's St. Nicholas, on the other hand, has animal spirits in plenty, and a most contagious love of fun ; and the children are in love with him as soon as they set eyes on him. Many a child must have wondered how the saint contrived to get round to so many houses in a single night ; but no story-teller before Dr. Moore ever let him into the secret. That he should have come in a sleigh was likely enough, but a sleigh drawn by reindeer is a fancy as unexpected as it is pretty. The invention of most story-tellers would have got no further than horses. An added touch of reality is the 'ashes and soot' on the fur coat of St. Nicholas. The conventional German saint is always miraculously clean, when, to the amazement of the children, he comes walking out of the chimney. 'Comes,' do we say? How can he long continue to come out of the chimney in houses where gas-logs, asbestos rag-bags, steam-radiators, and furnace-registers have usurped the life-giving hearth, the center of the home life, the heart of hospitality?

"While the Widow Clarke occupied 'Chelsea Farm' her house was seized by the British on the stormy uprising of the 'rebels'; and, like every other householder, she was obliged to accept whatever military guard might be quartered upon her. Many of these householders left their dwellings to the tender mercies of the enemy and fled; but Mrs. Clarke was advised to remain, and she was fortunate in her enforced guest, who proved to be a gallant officer and a courteous gentleman, who spared her goods and treated her and her daughters with consideration.

"It was in this house that Bishop Moore's only child was born—a son, who was named after his mother's only brother, Clement Clarke. After receiving the elements of his education from his father, he entered Columbia College, and was graduated in 1798. He was fitted for the ministry, but he never took orders; and continuing to live in his father's house, he devoted himself to Oriental and classical studies, and employed his leisure in writing verse, not for profit or publication, but to lighten his severer labors and amuse his children and his friends. His first printed venture was made in 1806, as the anonymous contributor to the book of a friend, which also appeared anonymously—a dingy little volume 'on gray paper with blunt type,' printed for E. Sargeant, at No. 39 Wall Street, opposite the United States Bank—'A New Translation, with Notes, of the Third Satire of Juvenal, to which are added Miscellaneous Poems, Original and Translated.' It would seem as if the authors were a little afraid of the sound of their own voices; for in the only copy we have been able to find of this book, the names of the translator and his friend are written with ink on the title-page by some one in the secret, but have been obstinately erased, and are to be read only by those who have learned from R. W. Griswold's 'Poets of America' what the names must be. By applying this X-ray to the inky blot, the names are clearly to be read of John Duer and Clement C. Moore.

"The introduction written by Moore for his friend's translation is apropos of nothing in that translation, but simply serves as a hook on which to hang certain animadversions, as severe as the constitutional good nature of the writer would permit, on a group of lackadaisical poets and poetasters of the town, who, as Mr. Moore and his friend thought, were having too much their own way. The verse they criticized was certainly worthless alike in form and matter; but it must be said that neither the new translator of Juvenal nor the author of the poems that accompanied it (who was acknowledged, in a note, to be the writer of the introduction) was by right entitled to be too severe on the disciples of Laura Matilda and the Della Cruscans.

"Thirty-eight years later, in 1844, Messrs. Bartlett and Welford (how much pleasure is associated with those names in the mind of once young book-loving New Yorkers), published 'Poems by Clement C. Moore, LL.D.,' and in this volume were found, among others, all the verses signed 'L.' that had appeared in Mr. Duer's book. Here was 'A Visit From St. Nicholas,' in the company of verses so perfunctory, written in a style so different, so artificial and tame, so empty of matter, that it would be difficult to believe them written by the same hand, were it not that in 'A Trip to Saratoga,' with which the volume opens, there is a distinctly natural tone in the narrative style, and the same is found in the 'Lines to Southey,' with which the volume closes. But the 'Trip to Saratoga' has little to recommend it beyond proving that Dr. Moore could tell a plain tale in plain words, when he was so inclined, or when he was really moved to write. The 'Lines to Southey' were written but never sent, after reading the dedication by that poet of 'A Tale of Paraguay' to his daughter, Edith May

Clement C. Moore,

Southey. In Moore's poem he laments the loss of his wife and two of his children; and his grief has a note that makes its way to the heart in spite of the formal versification that hinders its free motions.

"The wonder would have been perhaps, if anybody in New York at that time had written poetry worth preserving. Certainly the city must have been a pleasant place to live in, half town, half country, as it was—a large village fringed with smaller villages or hamlets, with green fields, fruitful farms and well-kept estates stretching along the once beautiful waters that bounded it on each side. But if it had all the charms of this semi-rural life, it had all the disadvantages of such a condition. We have only to skim the pages of Mr. Philip Hone's diary (Mr. Hone, socially one of the most prominent men of his time, and a warm friend of Dr. Moore) to discover what a Little Peddlington the smaller New York must have been in those days. The two great passions that divided the public mind were politics and trade; and as these were strictly interdependent, it is no wonder that, almost homogeneous as the public was in race, and but little separated in its interests, it took things with a seriousness that kept the social pot forever boiling over.

"But in the midst of all this social turmoil and hubbub, the life of Dr. Moore flowed tranquilly on in his home at Chelsea Farm, among his books, with his music and his flowers, like one of the many small streams that in his day pursued their quiet way through the fields of Greenwich and the streets of the bustling city. His more laborious hours were passed in his work as instructor in the Oriental languages and in Hebrew. In 1809 he published a Hebrew lexicon in two volumes—the first that had appeared in America—and thus became the pioneer in that study here.

"In 1818 Dr. Moore presented to the General Theological Seminary of the Episcopal Church, as a free gift, the entire block* bounded by Ninth Avenue, Twentieth and Twenty-first streets, and extending to the Hudson River. In 1821 he became Professor of the Oriental and Hebrew Languages in the seminary, and continued his work in that field during the rest of his life.

"His Hebrew lexicon has long been superseded; his poems are forgotten; but the noble foundation of the Theological Seminary—a gift such as would hardly be possible for even a multi-millionaire to imitate in our crowded city to-day—this gift to the world of scholars, and the 'Visit from St. Nicholas,' a gift to our children, will long keep green the memory of this learned, modest scholar and friend of his kind."†

Clement Clarke Moore received his A.B. from King's College in 1798, and his A.M. later. In 1829 the degree of LL.D. was conferred upon him. He was Trustee of the College from 1813 to 1857, and Clerk of the Board from 1815 to 1850. From 1821 to 1850 he was Professor of Hebrew and Greek Literature in the General Theological Seminary of the Protestant Episcopal Church; from 1860–3, Professor Emeritus. Mr. Moore was an excellent musician, and for many years gave his services as organist in St. Peter's Church in Twentieth street, in what was then called the village of Greenwich; a mural tablet here commemorates his virtues and benefactions. He was warden of St. Peter's in 1831 and 1841.

601. Margaret Van Cortlandt Ogden⁸ (Mary Clarke Moore⁷, m. Dr. John Doughty Ogden, Prof. Clement Clarke⁶, Bishop Benjamin⁵, Lieut. Samuel⁴, Benjamin³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Francis MacNutt.

"Francis MacNutt was born at Richmond, Ind. The MacNutt's are of Scotch descent, and the founder of the family in this country was one Sir Alexander MacNutt, who settled in Virginia in 1728. When the French were expelled from Acadia (Nova Scotia), he obtained grants of a large section of land in that province from George II. He colonized this grant with Scotch and Irish settlers, and founded the town of Shelbourne. The family remained in Nova Scotia until John MacNutt returned to Virginia in 1821. The family, with the exception of Mr. MacNutt's father, sided with the Confederacy in the War of the Rebellion, and was almost obliterated. Mr. MacNutt's father served with an Ohio regiment, and was mustered out with the rank of captain at the close of the war.

"Francis MacNutt received his education at Phillips Exeter Academy, the Harvard Law School and at Hanover, Germany, where he was first tutored by the Abbe Fischer, who had accompanied the ill-fated Maximilian to Mexico as Confessor and Chaplain, and later at the Polytechnique. After finishing his education he went to London, where he formed the acquaintance of Cardinal Manning, in whose household he lived for over a year. At this period he inclined toward the priesthood, and for the purpose of fitting him for that, Cardinal Manning obtained his admission to the Accademia Ecclesiastica at Rome.

"At this time Mr. MacNutt was appointed a Privy Chamberlain by Leo XIII. He remained a student to within two months of his ordination, when his mind changed, and he shortly afterward returned to this country.

"In the first year of the Harrison Administration he was appointed Secretary of the Legation at Constantinople, Solomon Hirsch, of Oregon, being Minister. He remained in Turkey until 1892, when he exchanged with the Secretary at Madrid, arriving at that city in May, when the resignation of General E. Burd Grubbas Minister made MacNutt Acting Charge d'Affaires until the arrival of General Grubb's successor, Colonel A. Loudon Snowden, in October. Mr. MacNutt remained attached to the Spanish Mission until July 1893.

"He then returned to America, and remained here until the war between China and Japan drew him to the latter country, where he witnessed the mobilization of the army, the departure and return of the fleet and the reception of the news of the victories. He was returning to this country, when at Cairo, in Egypt, he made the acquaintance of Djemil Pacha, first cousin of the Khedive and later his brother-in-law through marriage with the Princess Mnet.

"This Prince, the richest of the Egyptian dynasty, was then only nineteen years old, and almost wholly unused to European customs. Knives and forks were unknown upon his table, and his manners in the drawing-room were of the most primitive character. Mr. MacNutt became the master of his household and taught him the English language and English manners. He spent two years in the household of the Prince and in traveling to and fro through the country and visiting the various estates of the Prince.

"Prince Djemil, besides the palace Monoumira, in Cairo, had a great country place across the Nile known as Boulac-da-Krur, the gardens of which are famous for the finest blood oranges and strawberries in Egypt. He also owned a great cotton estate in the delta of the Nile. Their time was principally spent between these three palaces. Mr. MacNutt could never break the Prince of his habit of eating with his fingers, and often in the club or when dining with friends, when the inclination overtook him, the prince would turn back his cuffs and return to the habits of primitive man to the consternation of those present.

"After Djemil Pacha's marriage, Mr. MacNutt returned to this country, where he has since remained."*

He is survived by his wife, who was with him in Paris, where he had lived most of the time for forty years. He was a graduate of Columbia College, 1844. His apartments in Paris were notably handsome, and were filled with many rare specimens of bric-a-brac, etc., of which he was an assiduous collector. His body will probably be buried beside that of his first wife, in France, where she died many years ago. A large amount of real estate and personal property, comprising the entire estate, is left to his widow, Katherine E. Moore.†

Dr. William Moore⁵ was a physician. "This ornament‡ of the profession and of Christianity, was born at Newtown, L. I., in 1754. He received the rudiments of a classical education under the tuition of his elder brother, afterwards Bishop Moore, and President of Columbia College. He attended the lectures on medicine delivered by Drs. Clossey and Samuel Bard.

"In 1778 he went to London, and thence to Edinburgh, and in 1780 graduated Doctor of Medicine, when he delivered a dissertation on the Bile.

"For more than forty years he continued unremittingly engaged in the arduous duties of an extensive practice, particularly in midwifery, estimating his number of cases at about three thousand. His medical papers may be found in the American Medical and Philosophical Register, the New York Medical Repository and the New York Medical and Physical Journal. For many years Dr. Moore was President of the Medical Society of the County of New York, and an upright and vigilant Trustee of the College of Physicians and Surgeons. On his death the college recorded their testimony of his pre-eminent worth. He was Trustee of Columbia College from 1790 until his death, and chairman in 1823.

"Dr. John W. Francis, at that time Professor of Obstetrics in the college, in his lecture to the class, remarked of this estimable man, as follows: 'Before I conclude,' says he, 'permit me to pay my feeble tribute of homage and respect to the memory of the late Dr. Moore, recently called from among us by the fiat of Providence: a bright exemplar of the virtues and the important qualifications demanded of the practitioner in that department of the profession, the duties of which I have attempted to exhibit. I am persuaded that I do not allow feelings of personal friendship to prevail over the decisions of the severest scrutiny, when I assert that no member of our profession has exhibited in his life and conduct, a more beautiful example of the dignity and benignant lustre of the medical character.

"Honored for many years with his friendship, and admitted to the privilege of his conversation, I was early taught to look upon him with a respect and veneration which all my subsequent acquaintance only served to strengthen and confirm. Thousands among us can testify to the mildness and urbanity of his manners, to his tender and watchful regard for the suffering patient and sympathizing attendants, to his warm-hearted benevolence of feeling, and devotedness to the good of all whom his eminent attainments, or the lesson of a pure and unspotted life could profit, to his strictness of moral principle and uniform devotion to the sacred obligations of religion.

"It was but a few months ago that the governors of this institution were honored with his co-operation and enlightened by his counsels. How great their loss has been, can only be known to those who were acquainted with the liberality of his views, and his freedom from every mean and selfish bias.

"Dr. Moore rose to his great eminence by the force of personal and professional merit. A liberal education had prepared him to commence with advantage his medical pursuits, and amid the toil and cares of his laborious career, he ever continued to recur with ardor and delight to those classical studies, in which he had been imbued in his youth. Seldom, indeed, has it happened that the two professions were adorned with such attainments and such private excellence, as were exhibited in the instances of Dr. Moore and his brother Benjamin, the late pious and venerable bishop of the church. While we cherish their worth, let the regret at our bereavement give place to a noble emulation of their pure virtue and active benevolence.'

"That he was among the most eminent and useful men of which the annals of medicine can boast, is fully established by the disinterested observations of his able, learned and scientific contemporary, and his name adds one more to the already extended list of great and good men, in almost every department of useful knowledge which graces the history of Long Island."

Dr. Moore was a vestryman of Trinity Church.

The following extract from a letter from Miss Maria Theresa Moore, his granddaughter, gives a pleasant picture of family life: "Aug. 29, 1899. Thank you for the pleasure you've given me by that account of my grandfather (Dr. Wm. Moore). I remember the dear old gentleman coming in often, with his knee-breeches, and boots, with a little tassel on each, which we children always investigated, and our Christmas visit to him and grandmother, when each child received a present. This custom was carried on by my uncle, N. F. Moore, whilst in Columbia College, and after he left New York and lived with Uncle William at Garrison, he sent to each niece and god-child $10 in gold." Miss Moore, of Stamford, Conn., has a silver spoon marked W. M.—William and Jane Moore.

The mantle of the distinguished father fell appropriately upon the son, Samuel W. Moore,† and the honor and dignity of the family were preserved and transmitted. Dr. Moore was the typical physician, earnest, sympathetic, equal to emergency and having a genius for mechanics which was often used in surgical cases. He was successful in his practice and had the respect and love of his patients. After his wife's death he spent his leisure in modeling in clay and produced some very creditable busts of his wife and father. He lived in Warren Street, afterward at Broadway and Spring Streets. His portrait may be found in the New York Hospital. He was a vestryman of Grace Church.

The annexed tribute to his memory by Dr. C. R. Gilman, of New York, shows the feelings of his professional brethren.

The life of a practicing physician is very rarely one of startling adventures or striking events. His duties, though important as the value of life itself, are chiefly performed in the privacy of the sick-room; and, of consequence, the manner in which he performs them is known only to the small circles of loving friends who gather around the bed of the sick or the dying.

* Peter A. Jay was the brother of William Jay, who married Augusta McVickar (Anna Moore, m. John McVickar). [785]

† The W. was added to his name to distinguish him from another Dr. Samuel Moore in New York City.

Such a life, it may seem, presents but a barren field to the biographer. Bid him chronicle the victories of the warriors, the triumphs of the statesman, and he will devote to the task all his most brilliant powers, and do it with pride and pleasure. But to trace the every-day life of one who has "pursued the noiseless tenor of his way" in that obscurity which necessarily and very properly shrouds most of the labors of the physician, whose path has been from sick bed to sick bed, and whose contests have been only with the great enemy, death—this, to the ambitious biographer, may seem to be an ungrateful task. But it is not, or at least ought not to be, an ungenial labor, to speak of a life devoted to the service of humanity, spent in the unostentatious performance of varied and important duties. Especially should the task of tracing such a course be grateful when the duties of the man have been performed in the spirit of a Christian.

Such a task I have imposed upon myself, in attempting to write a biographical sketch of the life and character of Samuel W. Moore, M.D., whose recent removal from among us, while it has plunged a bereaved family into deep affliction, has spread throughout a large circle of loving friends and strongly attached patients, a deep and abiding sorrow "that they shall see his face no more forever."

Samuel W. Moore was born in New York City, 11th October, 1786, the son of Dr. William Moore, long one of our most highly esteemed and successful practitioners. From early childhood his constitution was frail, and the delicacy of his bodily organization was equalled by the gentleness of his temper and the kindliness of his feelings.

Such an one might seem to be unfitted to bear the grave responsibilities and act amid the appalling dangers which so often beset the physician's path, but this I believe is not so; and the success of Dr. Moore adds another to the list of those physicians whose lives prove that it is not so. The truth seems to be that a strong sense of moral duty will so nerve the heart and strengthen the hand, that the most acute sensibility will only make its possessor more eager to relieve those sufferings by which his compassion is so strongly excited. Dr. Moore received his early intellectual training from Mr. Samuel Rudd, and entered Columbia College at the age of sixteen years, in 1802. His connection with Columbia College was probably rendered more pleasant and profitable by the fact that his uncle, Benjamin Moore, D.D., Bishop of New York, was then President of the institution. Several of his classmates still survive among us, and we noticed two of them among the sorrowing friends who assembled at his funeral. He graduated in regular course in 1806, and immediately commenced the study of medicine under the guidance of his father, attending lectures in the medical department of Columbia College, in which Dr. Wright Post then taught anatomy, Dr. Richard Bailey surgery, Dr. Hammersley theory and practice of physic, Dr. J. R. B. Rodgers midwifery, and Dr. David Hosack botany. From those distinguished teachers he received, in 1810, the degree of Doctor of Medicine, and immediately entered into full practice, taking a share of the large business of his father. This arrangement continued until 1824, when the elder Dr. Moore died, having practiced physic forty-four years. His son now took his place among the prominent physicians of New York, with a large circle of patients, and a still larger one of friends; for such was the unaffected kindness of his heart, and such the graceful amenity of his manners, that few became his patients without remaining ever his attached friends. With his professional brethren his position was peculiarly pleasant. A thorough medical education, and a large measure of well-improved experience, gave to his opinions deserved weight, and insured him, as a physician, a strong hold on the confidence of physicians, while his conduct, on all occasions so perfectly upright, his manner so dignified yet so gentle, gave him as a man the highest place in their regard. To quarrel with such a man was simply impossible and to distrust him seemed not so much a wrong as a folly. Of him it can truly be said, that after a successful career of more than forty years, and that in times of many professional contests, he made many friends, and not one single enemy in his own profession. Oh, si sic omnes! In 1824 he was appointed one of the physicians of the New York Hospital. For this situation he had moral qualifications which are more important, and alas, more rare, than professional skill. His conscientiousness insured to the poorest and most degraded of his pauper patients a full measure of his attention, while his amiability and benevolence made him the friend of poor and rich alike. In 1828 he was compelled, by failing health, to retire from a position which he was so well fitted to adorn.

In 1828, Dr. Moore was appointed Trustee of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, and continued, from that period to the end of his life, to take an earnest interest in the prosperity of that institution. At the time of his death he was the senior member of the board. In 1849, on the reappearance of the cholera, Dr. Moore, in conjunction with his friends, Dr. Joseph M. Smith and Dr. John B. Beck, was appointed medical counselors to the Committee of the Sanitary Board of Health. To the duties of this position, made more onerous by the fact that his associate, Dr. Beck, was soon, by the state of his health, disabled from taking his share of them, Dr. Moore devoted all his energies; and the report published by the committee affords most satisfactory evidence of the ability and faithfulness with which this important public duty was performed. For several years, the health of Dr. Moore, never very robust, had been gradually declining, and he felt himself obliged to contract the sphere of his professional labor. Still he was unwilling entirely to give up the practice of his profession, and very many of his old friends were still more unwilling to be given up. In March last he met with an accident which, though not immediately followed by grave symptoms, caused, as afterwards appeared, effusion of blood into the cavity of the arachnoid. He continued to visit a few friends, and his venerable form was still seen at church; till in July paralysis very gradually supervened, and on the 26th of August, 1854,

"Gently as an infant to his sleep, Went he to death"—

Dr. Moore married, in 1813, Emily, daughter of William Constable, Esq., by whom he had thirteen children, ten of whom yet survive to give unto God most "heartly thanks for the good example of him who, having finished his course in faith, doth now rest from his labors."

The following resolutions show in what esteem he was held:

At a meeting of the Board of Health held on the 3d day of October, 1849, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the thanks of the Board of Health are eminently due and are hereby tendered to its Medical Counsel, Doctors Moore, Smith and Beck, to the resident physician, Dr. Geer, and to the Health Commissioner, Dr. Morris, for their vigilant, constant and untiring exertions in behalf of and for the preservation of the health of the city, and their efficient aid rendered to this Board during the summer last passed, a summer characterized throughout the prevalence of the cholera with a fearful mortality, imposing great unusual hazard, labor and responsibility upon the medical gentlemen above named.

To DR. SAMUEL W. MOORE.*

NEW YORK ACADEMY OF MEDICINE.

NEW YORK, September 8, 1854.

SIR: At the monthly meeting of the New York Academy of Medicine the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That this Academy has learned with profound regret, of the decease of Dr. Samuel W. Moore, late Fellow of this Academy.

Resolved, That in the decease of Dr. Moore the medical profession has lost a high-minded and honorable practitioner, who, during a long and successful career of practice sustained the dignity of the profession, while by his devotion to its interests, his kind feeling towards his professional brethren, no less than by the purity of his life, he has left an example worthy of all imitation.

Resolved, That the Recording Secretary be instructed to convey to the afflicted family of the deceased our sincere condolence on this mournful event, and that these resolutions be recorded upon the minutes.

Respectfully,
SAM'L. A. PURDY,
Recording Secretary.

At a special meeting of the Trustees of the College of Physicians and Surgeons in the City of N. York held at the College on Friday evening, September 22nd, 1854, the following resolutions were passed:

* Dr. Samuel W. Moore lived at 48 Warren street, Broadway and Spring, Broadway, first door below Ninth, 152 Fourteenth Street.

Resolved, That the Board of Trustees have heard with deep regret of the decease of their Senior fellow member, Samuel W. Moore, M.D., wherehy the College has lost one of its oldest and most valued supporters.

Resolved, That in common with the medical profession of this city and a numerous circle of attached friends, the Trustees entertain for their deceased friend and colleague sentiments of sincere respect and affectionate regards.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be communicated to the family of the deceased with the expression of the heartfelt sympathy of the Trustees in their bereavement.

GURDON BUCK, M.D.,

Emily Constable* belonged to the Constable family which lived near Dublin, Ireland. They originally came from Yorkshire in England and bore the same arms as the Yorkshire family.

*William Constable² (John¹) and Anna White (Townsend, m. Ann Renaudet) had Euretta³, m. James McVickar⁵ (Anna Moore⁴, m. John McVickar, John⁴, Benjamin³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹), Matilda³, m. Edward C. McVickar⁵ (Anna Moore⁴, m. John McVickar, John⁴, Benjamin³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹), William³, m. Mary Eliza McVickar⁵ (Anna Moore⁴, m. John McVickar, John⁴, Benjamin³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹), Emily³, m. Dr. Samuel W. Moore⁶ (Dr. William⁵, Lieut. Samuel⁴, Benjamin³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹), John⁴, m. Susan Livingston, Harriet³, m. James Duane, settled in Franklin County, N. Y., Anna³, m. Hezekiah B. Pierrepont. [821]

Thomas Constable lived at Loggan in the Manor of Wingfield, County Wexford, Ireland. His great-grandson wrote that he was a descendant of one of the judges of King Charles I. In the list of the Long Parliament was Sir William Constable, Baronet (regicide* instead of Benson, the jobber, and in preference to Deerlove '42, Knaresborough, a "recruiter," not an original member).

Thomas Constable and his wife ——— had a son William, born 1693, who married 1716, Elizabeth Owen, of a Welsh family.

William Constable and Elizabeth Owen, his wife, had a son John¹, born in Dublin, Ireland, the first to come to America. He married Jane Kerin, the daughter of William Kerin and his wife Jane Ewer, of Dublin. John Constable was Lieutenant and Surgeon in the Colonial Army in 1762-5. He died at Schenectady, N. Y., in 1785, aged 75, and was buried at St. Paul's, New York City. John Constable¹ and Elizabeth Owen had a son, William².

Emily Constable³ was the daughter of William Constable², born in Dublin, January 1, 1751, who was Aide to General Lafayette, an honorary member of the Society of the Cincinnati, a partner of Gouverneur Morris and an intimate friend of Lafayette, Hamilton, Jay, and Washington. He was the principal owner of the "Macomb purchase." He died in New York in 1803 and was buried in St. Paul's churchyard. William Constable presented a fine portrait head of Washington by Stuart to General Hamilton; a head of William Constable†, by Stuart, is at Constable Hall, N. Y. Amongst the treasures of the family are letters from Gov. Morris, Lafayette, and Robert Morris. He married, February 28, 1782, Anna White, daughter of Townsend White and his wife, Anna Renaudet (m. July 13, 1741), of Philadelphia, who was one of the Queens of Beauty at the Meschianza ball, May 18, 1778. She was a schoolmate and intimate friend of Martha Dandridge, afterward Martha Custis, and later the wife of Washington. A bracelet containing a miniature of Washington is still in existence which was presented by Martha Custis. Her sister Sarah married March 17, 1767, Moore Furman, of New Jersey, who was prominent in the Revolution and a friend of Washington. See Gershom Moore⁴. [11]

645. Maria Theresa Moore⁷ (Dr. Samuel W.⁶, Dr. William⁵, Lieut. Samuel⁴, Benjamin³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹).

The compiler of this work is under many obligations for help rendered by Miss Moore, who lives in Stamford, Conn. Her interesting letters have been a source of pleasure and her investigations have saved from oblivion many facts.

She has several relics—linen napkins with the Moore crest woven in the center, her father's seal with the crest engraved upon it, a silver tankard belonging originally to Lieut. Samuel Moore⁴, the cover marked S. M., left to her father by his grandfather, whose name he bore; a thimble given her by Mrs. de Rham, her godmother, who was named after Maria Theresa Clarke, Bishop Moore's wife's sister, who married Viscount Barrington, and who presented it to Mrs. De Rham. "It is silver, only the top solid, the lower part pretty filigree work and closed by a screw-end, on which 'Maria' is engraved, and makes a seal." Maria Theresa Clarke was a cousin of Theodosia Bartow, the wife of Col. Burr. She has a letter written by Theodosia Burr Alston*, to her mother, from Saratoga. Her reminiscences are exceedingly noteworthy. Here are some: "We were born in Warren Street, and when a child my grandmother called me to the window and, pointing out a white-haired, bent man, leaning on the arm of a tall colored nurse, said, 'that is Aaron' Burr, remember the name when you hear all about him one of these days.'

"All that I know of his grandfather (Bishop McVickar's), is that he had a country seat on the Hudson which he sold to my grandfather, Constable, which has since been used as an institution called 'The House of Mercy,' possibly now it may be included in Greater New York.

"In addition to my grandmother I found old acquaintances of my childhood in 'Mrs. White and her beautiful daughters,' who often visited my grandmother, living in Murray Street, when we lived in Warren, close by, but I feel as if I told of their peculiarities in a former note and how the British officers all besieged their house before leaving, for a last farewell." This on receipt of a book describing the Meschianza ball in Philadelphia in 1778.

"Some time if you ever meet Mr. O. H. Perry will you ask him how he is related to Commodore Perry. I recollect Calbraith and a younger one, Willie, I think. The family were friends of ours."

"Perhaps Theresa Moore in England might recollect some of the old-time talk of her grandmother (the Bishop's widow), who lived in their delightful old house with them, and was always called 'dear;' their mother they could scarcely remember, she and her two elder daughters died so long ago."

"Eugene Bicknell is grandson of a third sister of my mother who married a Pierrepont, and lived in Brooklyn in a large old house on the heights, one of Washington's headquarters long ago destroyed."

"One small teaspoon marked w^M, William and Jane, I suppose, my grandfather and grandmother. She was related to the Hamilton and Stuyvesant-Fish family, I always understood, and I recollect them visiting at our house in Warren Street when I was young."

"Francis Van Rensselaer was the son of Jeremiah Van Rensselaer, and his mother was a Miss Foster, of Boston. Their home was at Greenbush, just across the river from Albany—such a solid old house, walls two feet thick built of brick from Holland, and on each upper floor a brick left out here and there with a regular opening through, for the convenience of shooting attacking Indians."

* Theodosia Burr, b. 1783, m. 1801, Joseph Alston, Governor of South Carolina, lost at sea 1813.

646. William Constable Moore⁷ (Dr. Samuel W.⁶, Dr. William⁵, Lieut. Samuel⁴, Benjamin³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Mary Charlton Holt-huysen.

William Constable Moore⁷, after completing his education, was employed for many years as civil engineer. He was engaged on the first surveys of the Hudson River Railroad and many others. In 1849 he entered the Bank of Commerce (now First National Bank) of New York, where he remained twenty-three years. In 1872 he spent a few months in Europe, and on his return in 1873 settled in Nyack, becoming President of the Nyack National Bank in 1878, in which capacity he served faithfully until he was stricken down by disease. He was also an active member of the Nyack Choral Society, and was conspicuous in good works in many directions. He was beloved by the entire community in which he lived, and his death will long be mourned by all who knew him. His remains were taken to New York and services were held in St. Mark's Church in that city.*

647. Henry Casimir Moore⁷ (Dr. Samuel W.⁶, Dr. William⁵, Lieut. Samuel⁴, Benjamin³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹).

Henry Casimir Moore⁷ died at his home in Stamford, Conn. His early life was spent in New York City. Subsequently he lived for a time in England and Australia, where he became well known and highly respected. Returning to this country, he lived first in New York and then in Stamford, Conn. The funeral was held in St. Andrew's Church, Stamford.

649. Rev. John Wells Moore⁷ (Dr. Samuel W.⁶, Dr. William⁵, Lieut. Samuel⁴, Benjamin³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Frances H. Weber (Rev. William).

Dr. John Wells Moore⁷ was graduated at the head of his class at Columbia College in 1847; he took his A.M. in 1860. His first charge was at North Salem and Summers, Westchester Co., where he preached five years. From there he went to Canton, St. Lawrence Co., where he remained five years, and was afterward one year in New York. Twenty-four years ago last April (1861), he took charge of Christ Church in Red Hook. He brought to his new field an energy and perseverance which was an incentive to the little charge to put forth their best efforts. The good results of his labors are apparent in the strength and influence of the flourishing church he leaves behind. Quiet, unassuming, but sincere in his bearing toward all, with simple tastes that found their highest gratification in the home that he loved and the endearments of a large family circle, he sought no higher place save that which he occupied in the church for which he so zealously labored. The loss of such a man can scarcely be estimated. As a citizen he was so unobtrusive, as a neighbor so kind, as a peacemaker always desiring right, as a Christian man God-fearing and humble, he filled these stations without regard to eye-service. Modest to an unusual degree, he turned aside the many marks of favor with which his friends would have honored him.

At a meeting of the Trustees of Christ Church, Red Hook, N. Y., held May 15th, 1885, there were present Edward Martin, Richard Martin, John Armstrong Chanler, Edward B. Bostwick and John H. Elseffer.

The following minute was adopted:

It having pleased Almighty God to remove to his heavenly rest our beloved rector, the Rev. John Wells Moore, we desire to place on record our deep and lasting sorrow for the loss, not only to ourselves but the whole community, of one who, during the twenty-four years that he has been among us, has always been our guide, counsellor and friend, a helper of the helpless and a comforter of those in affliction.

* Newspaper clipping.

We wish also to bear witness to the purity of his life and the beauty of his character, which, by their example have been such a powerful influence among us for good.

We also desire to express for his family, who have lost a devoted and affectionate husband, father and friend, our deep and sincere sympathy, with the prayer that our Heavenly Father will comfort them with a sense of His goodness, and in their great affliction give them peace.

EDWARD MARTIN, Chairman.

JOHN H. ELSEFFER, Secretary.

At a meeting of the following clergy, the Rev. Drs. Clark, Gibson, Harrison, Olssen and Fairbairn, and the Revs. Messrs. Hopson, Platt and Shober, who attended the burial of the Rev. John W. Moore, rector of Christ Church, Red Hook, Dutchess County, N. Y., on Friday afternoon, May 15th, the Rev. Dr. Olssen and the Rev. Dr. Fairbairn were appointed to make and publish a minute, testifying to the affection and respect of the clergy present for their departed brother.

The Rev. John W. Moore, M. A., was born in the city of New York, February 25th, 1826. He graduated at Columbia College in 1847, and at the General Theological Seminary in 1850. He was known and esteemed by his brethren of the clergy, especially for three things:

The first was his learning. He graduated at Columbia College at the head of his class. He was offered the Professorship of Greek in Burlington College by the Right Rev. G. W. Doane, of New Jersey, on the recommendation of Professor Charles Anthon. His love of learning never waned. He was wedded to his books and lived much in his library to the very last. He was an accomplished theologian. The second trait for which he was esteemed was the purity of his character. His life was adorned by those virtues which have been painted so vividly in Herbert's "Country Parson." His neighbors can testify that for twenty-four years he has always maintained a life void of offence toward God and toward man. Dignified, self-possessed and companionable, he always and without exception maintained the character of a Christian gentleman.

He was also remarkable for his modesty. With his learning and breeding he might have claimed for himself a higher position in the Church. But he was content to labor in the sphere where Providence had called him with contentment and cheerfulness, finding his happiness in his work and in his family.

Frances Weber² was the daughter of William M.¹, born in Peterborough, Madison County, N. Y., who first studied medicine and later entered the church.

656. Dr. Richard Hoffman Moore⁷ (Dr. Samuel W.⁶, Dr. William⁵, Lieut. Samuel⁴, Benjamin³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Anna Beekman Whiley (Richard).

Dr. Richard Hoffman Moore⁷ was a graduate of Columbia Medical School in 1861.

There has seldom been a more popular statuette than that of the caricature dog with the title, "Who's Afraid?" Although they first made their appearance nearly ten years ago, the statuettes are still sold by image-venders, and the grotesque figure of the dog has been used on signs, business cards and in other forms. The name of the designer has never before been made public. It was the late Dr. R. H. Moore. Dr. Moore was a universal genius. He was a capable physician, so clever a mechanic that he could make clocks, an excellent painter and draughtsman, and he wished to add to his accomplishments that of sculpture. He buried two pet black-and-tan dogs and he attempted to make a portrait of one of them in clay. The result was "Who's Afraid?" Of course it was a failure as a portrait, but it was such a capital caricature that his friends begged him for copies and he had a few cast. Somehow, the image-sellers got hold of one of them and since then thousands of the amusing figure have been sold, for which the genial Doctor never received one cent of profit. He died a few years ago, beloved by a large circle of friends to whom he had endeared himself by his gentle and winning qualities.*

Quite a mistake—its being connected with his black-and-tan dogs; it was a caricature of some politician of the day. He left the mold in which he cast his clay model and was amused later on to see them sold about the street. Some figures he made afterwards were very good.†

Anna Beekman Whiley was a great-granddaughter of DeWitt Clinton and was born at the old Beekman mansion at Tarrytown, N. Y.

621. Jane Moore⁶ (Dr. William⁵, m. Jane Fish, Lieut. Samuel⁴, Benjamin³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Henry Major.

Henry Major was of the seventh generation of his name, born in the old homestead where the first of his paternal ancestors, who came from Kent, England, as chaplain to King James in 16—, settled. He was of the firm of Major, Gillespie & Co. Miss Major has miniatures of Dr. William Moore and his wife, Jane Fish Moore.

625. William Moore⁶ (Dr. William⁵, Lieut. Samuel⁴, Benjamin³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Margaret Gouverneur (Samuel, m. Mary Phillipse).

William Moore⁶ died at his home at Garrison's-on-the-Hudson. He was eighty-seven years old, and had been living for many years in the quiet retreat where he died. He was of the old and widely known Moore family of Newtown, L. I., where he was born. William Moore was a typical correct, stately old New Yorker, with a stiff pride and a distinguished honor. In partnership with Henry C. De Rham, he formed the old and almost forgotten banking firm of de Rham & Moore. Their business was largely in French securities, and the partners were brothers-in-law. They retired nearly twenty years ago. Mr. Moore's funeral was in St. Phillip's Church, Garrison's.*

The Rev. Albert Zabriskie Gray pays the following tribute to his memory:†

A gentleman and a scholar in every truest, highest sense of the term, belonging to one of our oldest and best American families, a man who had traveled much in early life, and was a deeply-read scientific student almost to the day of his death, for when all but completely deprived of the social enjoyment of his faculties, he was still and ever pouring over his books, and two books there were that never left his side or his hand—his Bible and his Prayer Book. Humble and devout, courteous and accomplished, unselfish and unstained, a gentleman of the old school, in fine, a school that is rapidly passing away amid the sneering cynicisms of a utilitarian, if not a degenerate age—a school whose word was as good as its bond, whose chivalry was an aegis to womanhood, and whose knees never failed in lowly homage to God.

Never a Lord's day that he was not at his place in the temple; never a day of atoning memory that he was not following devoutly its Litany. Indeed, in the latter days of his life, when enfeebled in memory, he would start up and off for the church, and was with difficulty made to understand that there was no service there. And when in the church, it was beautiful to behold his venerable form, his white head ever reverently bent, his absorbed demeanor and his tottering steps, as almost to the last he insisted upon carrying out his warden's duty of bearing the offerings of the faithful to the altar of God.

His liberality was as grand as it was unostentatious. Never will the writer forget the quiet way in which he once, at a time of parish emergency, made a princely gift of money, and deemed it as always more of a privilege than a duty.

Many a faithful, toilsome missionary in the far west blessed God for the bounty of this true steward, who never turned a deaf ear to any worthy personal appeal or to the pathetic tale of self-sacrificing zeal on some page of The Churchman.

And never again can the writer forget how, when he was endeavoring, under great difficulties, to erect a little wayside chapel for the scattered sheep of his Highland cure, this venerable servant of God, then three-score years and ten, at once volunteered to survey and lay out the plot, and worked faithfully at it through much of a summer day.

We might thus proceed, giving instance after instance of devout fidelity, or we might take up much more of your columns in relating more secular incidents of this pure and beautiful life, contemporaneous with our century and identified with much of its best social, commercial and ecclesiastical history; but we will leave that for a worthier hand to draw out, simply closing this most affectionate tribute with the thought of how aptly such a life and such a death illustrate the solemn and eloquent prayer of our service book, "the testimony of a good conscience, in the communion of the Catholic Church, in the confidence of a certain faith, in the comfort of a reasonable, religious and holy hope, in favor with God, and in perfect charity with the world."

Margaret Gouverneur² was the daughter of Samuel Gouverneur¹ and his wife, Mary Phillipse. In 1795 one of the great commercial firms of New York was Gouverneur & Kemble.* Samuel Gouverneur was a member of this firm. He married the only child, a daughter of Capt. Frederick Phillipse, a half-pay British officer, who lived in a mansion at the corner of Pine and William Streets. Capt. Phillipse was one of the most popular men of the town. He remarried after the war and died about 1813. He joined the St. George's Society in New York, in 1788 and was Vice-President for a long time. The daughter was a favoured belle in her day, said to have been a most charming, as well as beautiful girl. Samuel Gouverneur and Mary Phillipse had a son who dropped the name Gouverneur and took that of his grandfather "Frederick Phillipse."

626. Sarah Ann Moore⁶ (Dr. William⁵, Lieut. Samuel⁴, Benjamin³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Dr. Edward Hodges (Archelaus).

The following tribute by her stepdaughter, Faustina Hasse Hodges,† is interesting :

My second mother, Miss Sarah Ann Moore⁶, was one of the most charming and agreeable women in the large and refined circle in which she moved. Sparkling and fascinating in conversation, unostentatious and natural in manner, it was impossible for her not to attract all in the intellectual society which gathered around her brother, Nathaniel F. Moore, LL.D., who, at the time of her marriage, was Greek Professor and afterwards President of Columbia College, New York. Among the intellectual she had a right to move, being the daughter of a distinguished physician, the niece of Bishop Moore, of New York, and first cousin of Clement C. Moore, LL.D., Hebrew Professor of the General Theological Seminary, New York. She spoke French and Italian with fluency and ease, her preceptor in the latter language having been Signor Daponte, who had arranged the libretto of Don Giovanni for Mozart ; and she numbered literary men of England, Italy and France amongst her friends.

During one of her visits abroad her bust was taken by Thorwaldsen ; and in New York she had received vocal lessons of Madame Malibran. Naturally fond of music and highly cultivated in opera and other branches of study, sacred music of a high order, and the school of our Cathedral composers were quite unknown to her. The services she had heard while in England had not reached her heart.

Unaccustomed to the highest form of German music, she used to exclaim, as she heard my father's daily rendering of one or two of Sebastian Bach's fugues, "Oh, those horrid fugues !" But gradually and surely her tone changed. She began to like and then to love them, and on no account would miss the Doctor's morning fugue. She was very clever at extemporary versification, but withal her character shone brightest in the daily round of her life. She was beloved by all classes, rich and poor, the scholarly and the humble. She could hear of no case of sickness or sorrow without doing her utmost to relieve it. A perfect sincerity governed speech and action, she was exactly the same, whether adorning a literary circle or reading the Bible at the bedside of one of her humble poor. She was generous in spirit, faithful and loving in every relation of life. Perhaps her most beautiful characteristic was the zeal and entirety with which she entered into my father's life. With her practical mind she blended a high and religious ideal. Her spirit was receptive to a great degree, and was capable of great exaltation through sacred music.

On account of the illness of her husband they went to England in 1859. They returned to New York and remained in retirement at "Woodlawn," in the Highlands on the Hudson, the residence of her brother William Moore, Esq., until her death in 1861. Here at her brother's, my second mother lay "sick, even unto death." Devoted to my father's sacred music she asked him to play to her "Rock of Ages." He played the fine old Moravian tune in C minor, to which he always adapted the hymn. It was a supreme moment. Her spirit, borne perhaps on the wings of that music, soon after rose "to world's unknown."

My father had closed the organ; he never opened it again. He presented it to St. Philip's Church in the Highlands.*

Dr. Edward Hodges came from Bristol, England. He was a Doctor of Music and organist of Trinity Parish. He is thus spoken of in the Centennial History of the Diocese of New York: "Dr. Edward Hodges the distinguished organist and musical director of Trinity Parish, our first legitimate master in the characteristic music of the Anglican Church."

The next commencement took place in 1786. He took his A.M. in 1790. He had a grammar school at Newtown, in 1779. Shortly after his marriage he went to England for Episcopal orders. He was ordained deacon by Bishop Lowth in London in September, 1781, and priest by Bishop Porteus, of Chester, in February, 1782. In July, 1783, he returned to America and began preaching at Setauket and Islip, L. I., as a missionary of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts. He preached first in Hempstead Parish, November 7, 1784, and was settled as rector at St. George's Church, March 6, 1785. He remained there until his death.* He was the brother of Rt. Rev. Bishop Richard Channing Moore, D.D., of Virginia, and the son of Thomas³ and Elizabeth Channing, the grandson of John² and Frances Lambert, and great-grandson of John¹ and Rebecca ———.†

731. Richard Riker⁶ (Anna Lawrence⁶, m. Samuel Riker, Esq., Patience Moore⁴, m. Joseph Lawrence, Benjamin³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Jennet Phoenix (Daniel).

Recorder Richard Riker⁶ was educated principally under Dr. Witherspoon at Princeton, N. J. In 1791 he entered the office of the elder Jones and in 1795 was admitted to the bar. He became District Attorney in 1802; in 1815 he became Recorder, which office he held with short intermissions until 1837. "Of the eminent talents and profound judicial knowledge of the late Recorder little need be said; they are both extensively known and universally acknowledged. The able manner with which he presided for so long a period in the Court of Sessions in New York, and the extraordinary qualities he displayed in the discharge of his onerous and important duties, are conclusive evidence of his great attainments and high moral worth." His memory has been perpetuated in Halleck's poem, "Our Recorder," which was the term by which he was affectionately known for years after his long incumbency of that office had ceased. He was a second in the duel between DeWitt Clinton and Swartwout, and afterward fought a duel with the latter himself, and was wounded in the leg.

Jennet Phoenix was the daughter of Daniel Phoenix, Treasurer of the City of New York.

740. Elizabeth Platt Riker⁷ (Richard⁶, Anna Lawrence⁶, m. Samuel Riker, Patience Moore⁴, m. Joseph Lawrence, Benjamin³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Dr. Edward Spring² (Rev. Gardiner¹).

In the days of her father the Recorder was as important a functionary as the Mayor, and when Lafayette visited this country in 1824 many of the duties of receiving him fell to Recorder Riker. With her sister, Mrs. Spring, who was then a mere child, accompanied her father when he received Gen. Lafayette at the Battery and she was present as a member of his party at the ball given him in Castle Garden. Before Lafayette's return to France, he said he would like to meet the Recorder's relatives, and to give him this opportunity, a great reception was held at the Riker residence, at which Mrs. Spring was present and was made much of by the General.

With her father, who was an intimate friend of Gov. Clinton, Mrs. Spring made the inaugural trip through the Erie Canal as a member of the Governor's christening party. Mrs. Spring lived for many years at her father's country home, "Arch Brook," on the site of which is now the new power house of the Manhattan Elevated.

Dr. Edward Spring⁷ was the son of Rev. Gardiner Spring¹, D.D., LL.D., who was born at Newburyport, February 24, 1785, was graduated from Yale College, 1805, Andover Theological Seminary, pastor of the Brick Presbyterian Church of New York City for over fifty years, trustee of Lafayette College 1853-61, and chairman of the Board of Trustees of Columbia College, 1858-9. He received D.D. from Hamilton College, 1809, and LL.D. from Lafayette College, 1853. He wrote a life of Samuel J. Mills, "The Sabbath a Blessing to Man," etc. He died 1873.

About 1806,† the first ladies of New York City began to discover that there was a great field open for their aid in relieving suffering and misery, and they commenced to band together in organizing societies. The first was the Orphan Asylum. It was founded in March, 1806. Mrs. McVickar was one of the trustees, and associated with her were Mrs. Bethune, Mrs. Fairlie, and other leading ladies. They appealed to the public, and started off with the bold declaration, that no institution so much merited the aid of the well-inclined as this—to feed and clothe the infant bereft of father and mother. They said: "We believe charity in this country consists more in finding employment for the needy, than in supporting them in idleness."

"Pity, I own, to the distress is due;
But when the afflicted may themselves relieve,
The fault's their own if they will suffer on."

The next year a society was started for the "Relief of Poor Widows," of which also Mrs. McVickar was a first manager.

In the estimate of her character‡ it is not easy to say how much was due to natural temperament, how much to the early operation of religious principles.

‡ Newspaper clipping.

Neither is it necessary, for in her both unquestionably concurred to form a character so peculiarly blameless, that they who knew her best and longest can now recall to mind no one word or action, through the varied events of a long life and the trying duties of all its social relations, which did not seem marked by a sense, both of Christian duty and of native kindness. Her religion was truly that of the heart; it entered into all the daily duties of life, and under its abiding influences was she formed to that unpretending truth of character, that single-mindedness of heart and intention, that unruffled sweetness of temper, that spirit of quiet yet active benevolence, and that constant reference of every religious question to religious principles by which her life and conversation were so peculiarly distinguished.

John McVickar was a merchant of New York.* He was born in Ireland and came to America in 1786 at about the age of seventeen. He was among the founders of the St. Patrick Society in 1792. At that time Mr. McVickar was established and doing a leading business, under his own name, at 27 Queen Street (Pearl). He commenced in this city in Maiden Lane, No. 39, before 1786. In 1793 he was elected a director in the Bank of New York, and continued to be re-elected annually until 1810. In 1795 he was made a director of the Mutual Insurance Company. At the same time he was a director in the United Insurance Company, of which his friend Nicholas Low was president, and so was until 1809. At that time he lived in 228 Pearl Street, his old place, and kept his place of business at 2 Burling Slip. He was Vice-President of the St. Patrick's Society in 1797. In 1798 Nathan, his brother, got here, and the firm was John and Nathan McVickar. In 1801 the style was changed to John McVickar & Co. John moved from 228 Pearl Street to 231 Broadway, and Nathan went to housekeeping in the house John left. In all this time John had continued a director in the Bank of New York. In that year he was elected a vestryman of Trinity Church, and held it until he died in 1812.

In 1805 John McVickar became one of the directors of the Western & Northern Coal Co. In 1809 John took into partnership his son James and a Mr. Stewart, and the firm was "John McVickar, Son & Stewart," at the old stand, No. 2 Burling Slip. But both son, and John the father, lived at 231 Broadway, while the old Nathan lived at 20 Dey Street. In 1810 Mr. John McVickar moved to No. 6 Vesey Street. I think he gave up business in 1811, to his brother Nathan, and the firm was McVickar & Stewart until 1812. In that year John McVickar died. His widow removed from No. 6 Vesey Street back to the old No. 231 Broadway. The firm dissolved and Nathan resided at 24 White Street.

Among the leading traits of the character of John McVickar may be noted that nice sense of commercial honor which gives to the merchant his highest dignity and leads to the noblest use of wealth. He was marked accordingly by generous aid to deserving young merchants in trouble, so much so that it became a common speech on Change, in disastrous times, "Well, who is McVickar going to help to-day?" In building churches and aiding the clergy he was always prominent.† On the "Dongan Domain," Staten Island, he both gave the land and built the church. Of this large Domain coming down from Dong, an the first Governor of the Province, one legal claim still remains to the heirs of McVickar, viz., the original reservation to the Lord of the Manor, of "all ponds, water courses and mines," such reservation being expressly named and provided for in all the early deeds.

At his late seat at Bloomingdale he was one of the original founders of St. Michael's Church, and during the occurrence of the yellow fever in the city, he provided for the family of Rev. Dr. Hobart, his clergyman, a safe country retreat.

As a merchant he was marked by sound judgment and large views. In addition to his regular business of importation he was a large ship owner, and one of the earliest in the direct trade with China from the port of New York. His favorite ship "Betsy," Captain Carberry, was familiarly known.

* Old Merchants of New York, 2d series.

† Trinity Chapel on the north side of Staten Island, St. Michael's, Bloomingdale, St. James's, New York, St. Paul's, Constableville, N. Y., owe their origin, in whole or in part, to him and his wife.

Though himself without classical education, he highly valued it for his sons, and prized and patronized the best schools. One, Archibald, enjoyed the farther advantage of an English University training, and all in turn had the benefit of a European visit for health or pleasure.

In 1804, he revisited, for the second and last time, his native land, accompanied by his son John, born in America, a circumstance which, in the days of alien laws in England, led to a singular controversy with government, the office refusing to regard the father as alien, and McVickar insisting that as an American citizen he was an alien, and demanding that he should be included in all the penalties and restrictions that rested on such—a proof of patriotism, we may add, more unquestionable than many that now pass for such.

In his visit to Ireland, so familiar was his name and reputation in commercial circles that it was jokingly proposed that the Lord Lieutenant should confer on him the dignity of knighthood, as a benefactor to Ireland.

Old John McVickar had a country seat out at Bloomingdale, where he used to spend a great deal of his time in summer, after he retired from business, and while he lived at No. 6 Vesey Street. That was a large mansion.

The old merchant, John, was one of the most sterling men in the city. His firm did a general commission business, receiving vessels and cargoes from all parts of the West Indies, as well as from Europe. In addition, his house dealt heavily in Irish goods. John McVickar & Co. were the heaviest importers of Irish linen into the New York market. Every vessel from Belfast brought them heavy invoices. They never sold less than a case of their linens. The store of old John, where he did business so many years, was on the right hand side of Burling Slip as you go from Pearl to Water. It was about in the rear of where a bank is now located. In these times we can form no idea of the vastness of the Irish linen trade sixty years ago. It was all old-fashioned made, spun and wove by hand in Ireland, and, of course, there was no machinery as now. It was the great article of trade. Here we had no such goods. The highest of our manufactures then was old "tow cloth." We had no cotton or woollen goods made here. No sattinets, and the numerous fabrics of American manufacture were made in a thousand factories. So for this small village in the olden times, Irish linen was a great article of trade.

All the buyers used to go to old John himself, or if not in, to the brother, Nathan. Clerks were not deemed the right persons to buy of. The buyer thought, of course, he could get better bargains of the principals, and their say, too, as to prices, was final, while with the clerks it was not. Old John was not above his business. Sometimes, he would take out his watch and look at it. "I am to meet the Board of Directors at the Bank, won't brother Nathan do?" If brother Nathan would not do, although such an answer was rare, then brother John would do the selling until the customer was satisfied, for he regarded good sales as one great element of success in the career of a leading merchant, and he was always the salesman when at home. He was rather tall, somewhat sharp-featured, and looked like a foreigner. An early portrait of him, supposed to be by Copley, gives the impression of a fine and resolute will, yet gentle heart.

779. Rev. John McVickar⁶, S. T. D. (Anna Moore⁵, m. John McVickar, John⁴, Benjamin³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Eliza Bard (Dr. Samnel).

There is one name which I think was not mentioned this morning, and it ought to have been—the honored name of Dr. McVickar. He was one of the best preachers I heard in my early days, and his sermons, if not strictly what are called eloquent sermons, were most instructive, and were delivered from the pulpit with a critical use of language and a command of his subject which made me look up to him and feel what a glorious thing it is to be a minister of Christ.*

He was a graduate of Columbia College in 1805, after which he went to Europe. In 1807 he offered his name to Bishop Moore as a candidate for Holy Orders. He pursued his theological studies until 1811, when he took orders and became rector of St. James's Church, Hyde Park, N. Y., where he remained until 1818. In 1812 he was ordained priest in Trinity Church, New York, by Bishop Hobart. In 1817 he was elected Professor of Moral Philosophy, Rhetoric and Belles-Lettres. He delivered the first course of lectures on Political Economy, established in any college in America. He filled the professorial chair for over forty years.

In 1820 he was elected by the convention a member of the Missionary Committee of the Diocese and was secretary; 1826, trustee and member of the Standing Committee of the General Theological Seminary; Vice-President of New York Bible and Common Prayer Book Society; Vice-President of Tract Society and Chairman of its Committee for Selection; 1840, Vice-President of the City Mission Society and one of its founders, its presiding officer for many years; trustee and Superintendent of Society for Promoting Religion and Learning; 1828, trustee of Trinity School, official visitor, Chairman of School Committee; President of New York Atheneum; 1834-1868, member of Standing Committee of Diocese of New York, President; Trustee of St. Stephen's College, Annandale, from its foundation.†

From 1844 till 1862 he was chaplain to the U. S. forces at Fort Columbus, Governor's Island, N. Y. In 1864 he retired from active duty in the college, and was honored with the title of emeritus professor. Columbia gave him the degree of A.M. in 1818 and S.T.D. in 1825. Besides numerous occasional essays and addresses, etc., he published "Narrative of the Life of Dr. Samuel Bard" (1822), "First Lessons in Political Economy" (New York, 1825), "Memoir of the Rev. Edmund D. Griffin," appended to the "Remains" of the latter (1831), "Early Years of Bishop Hobart" (1834), "Devotions for the Family and the Closet from the Manual of a Country Clergyman" (1835), and "Professional Years of Bishop Hobart" (1836).

780. Henry McVickar⁶ (Anna Moore⁵, m. John McVickar, John⁴, Benjamin³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹).

In 1814 Henry McVickar⁶ started in business at No. 55 Pine Street, and the next year took in a partner, and the firm was H. McVickar & Co.* In the office of the Clerk of the Court of Appeals M. 106, in his will dated December 11, 1816, proved August 6, 1827, he mentions Godson William Henry Constable. His brother, Edward Corp McVickar, is principal heir and executor of his real and personal estates. The witnesses are Annah McVickar, Hannah Moore and Benjamin McVickar. Henry McVickar was a graduate of Columbia College in 1809.

781. Edward Corp McVickar⁶ (Anna Moore⁵, m. John McVickar, John⁴, Benjamin³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Matilda Constable (William², m. Anna White, John¹, m. Jane Kerin).

Edward C. McVickar⁶ resided principally in northern New York; he was a graduate of Columbia College in 1812.

Matilda Constable³ was the sister of Emily³, who married Dr. Samuel W. Moore. [620]

Thomas Egleston[†], mining engineer and metallurgist, born in New York, December 9, 1832, graduated at Yale, 1854 (A.M., 1857), graduated at École des Mines, Paris, E.M., 1860 (Ph.D., Princeton, 1874, LL.D. Trinity, 1874), chevalier 1890, officer, 1895, Legion of Honor of France. In charge of mineral and metallurgical products, Smithsonian Institution, 1861-4; founded, 1864, School of Mines, Columbia; Professor of Mineralogy and Metallurgy there 1864-97, emeritus professor since 1897. Author: "Lectures on Mineralogy" (4 vols.), "Metallurgy of Silver," "Metallurgy of Gold," "Tables for Determination of Weights, Measures, and Coins in the Metric and English Systems," "Life of Major-General John Paterson of the Revolutionary Army," "Life of Major Egleston of the Revolutionary Army;" also over 100 monographs on the metallurgy of various metals.

Trinity Church[‡] received a costly and beautifully wrought jeweled communion chalice, which was presented by Professor Thomas Egleston, of Columbia College, in memory of his wife, Augusta McVickar Egleston, who died on January 9, 1895. In addition to the great intrinsic value of the gift, a peculiarly interesting and touching sentiment attaches to it, for the chalice has been fashioned almost wholly out of the rich gems and their settings which Mrs. Egleston wore in life. Of the precious stones which adorn the cup, many are extremely rare, and in several instances represent the only known specimens of the kind in existence. All were selected by Prof. Egleston, an able mineralogist and expert in precious stones, in his travels in foreign lands. It was his custom, in the course of his travels, to procure such specimens and present them to his wife, and in that way Mrs. Egleston possessed one of the most valuable collections of jewels in this country.

This chalice, which has been pronounced by experts to be the most beautiful of its kind in America, if not in the world, was made in London under the eye of Prof. Egleston. It is nine inches in height, with a bowl four and three-eighths inches in diameter. The cup into which the chalice sets is embossed with crosses in the shape of fleur-de-lis, which are ornamented with three Russian amethysts and three carbuncles. It rests upon a stem of openwork three-quarters of an inch high, which sets upon a highly ornamented ribbed boss, in which are set three sapphires, two yellow diamonds and one Nevada garnet. The knob or boss into which these jewels have been placed is one and five-eighths inches high, with openwork behind the jewels; it rests upon another piece of openwork, richly ornamented and one and one-half inches in height, which, in turn, sets directly upon the base. The upper part of the base is ornamented with six chrysoberyls and one green tourmaline.

Below are six panels, three of which are designs, while three are floriated. All the designs are made of gold of the settings of the jewels as Mrs. Egleston wore them. In the front one of these panels is the cross. In the panel above the cross are three colored diamonds, exactly as they were set in one of Mrs. Egleston's rings. To the right and left above the cross are a ruby and a diamond, to represent the sun and moon. Below the arms of the crucifix are clusters of grapes made of rubies. At the foot of the cross are two diamonds and a sapphire. These are placed as they were worn in a finger ring, and below them is a circle of eight green garnets, with small diamonds between, as they were worn in a lace pin, which has been bent to suit the purpose. On one side of this panel, to the left, is a chrysoberyl, and on the other side a Brazilian topaz. To the right, above the panel, is a Nevada garnet. In the upper part of the panel are two passion flowers in diamonds, the center being an emerald and the repoussé work being the leaves of the passion flower. In the center is a large moonstone, surrounded by diamonds, as it was worn in a ring. Below are two passion flowers, each with an emerald in the center, and between them a peridot, which was a very favorite ring. To the right, at the foot of the panel, is a red tourmaline. Above the next panel of the Baptism of our Lord, is a chrysoberyl, and at the foot, a carbuncle. To the right, at the bottom, is a chrysoberyl.

Back of the crucifix, and to the right of the panel last described, is a cross made of large stones. Above the panel is a star ruby. The arm of the cross, which was a lace pin, is made up, beginning on the left, of a red zircon, a stone whose dazzling brilliancy is little less than that of a diamond, a yellow sapphire and a muldovite. Above, forming the vertical arm of the cross, is a green sapphire, and below a green zircon and an andalusite. Around the cross are four rubelites. At the foot of the cross, upon one side, is a large, green garnet, and upon the opposite side is a Nevada garnet. To the right at the bottom, is a Brazilian topaz. The next panel represents the Adoration. It has a chrysoberyl above and a very large peridot below, and on the right below is a pink tourmaline. The next panel has a Nevada garnet above, and in the center a large diamond surrounded by four passion flowers, the center of which are sapphires, and below a large, yellow sapphire.

The foot of the chalice is ornamented with six moonstones, and between them are five carbuncles, and on each side of these are twelve green garnets, which were originally pendant from the lace pin at the foot of the crucifixion panel. At the foot of the crucifix there is the American gem chlorastolite. In all, there are 180 stones on the chalice.

On the under side of the paten and underneath the foot of the chalice is this memorial inscription:

"TO THE GREATER GLORY OF GOD, AND IN LOVING MEMORY OF AUGUSTA MCVICKAR EGLESTON, DAUGHTER OF EDWARD MCVICKAR AND WIFE OF THOMAS EGLESTON, WHO ENTERED INTO LIFE JANUARY 9, 1895. TRINITY CHURCH, NEW YORK.

The body of Mrs. Egleston lies in the crypt under the altar of Trinity.

832. Howard Constable⁸ (James Constable⁷, Mary Eliza McVickar⁶, m. William Constable³, Anna Moore⁵, m. John McVickar, John⁴, Benjamin³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹).

Howard Constable⁸ is an architect and engineer, son of James Constable⁷, of Constableville, New York, and Sarah Lippincott Richards², of Philadelphia. He is a descendant of William Constable, aid-de-camp to General Lafayette, of William Richards, who was with General Washington at Valley Forge, also of B. W. Richards, Mayor of Philadelphia, 1829-1832, and of Samuel Wetherell, one of the founders of the free or fighting Quakers. He prepared for college at the Episcopal Academy, Philadelphia, from which he entered the Scientific Department of the University of Pennsylvania, and was graduated in 1874. After the completion of his college course he devoted a number of years to practical training in the bridge and building departments of the Reading, Pennsylvania and Erie Railways, and his studies were concluded with a course in architecture abroad. From 1886 to the present time he has been located in New York City, and is one of the prominent architects and engineers of the metropolis, having recently been adjudged first-honor man in a civil service competition for the po-

William Jay⁵ was graduated from Yale College in 1808. In 1810 he assisted Elias Boudinot and others in forming the American Bible Society. In 1818 he was appointed to the bench of Westchester County by Gov. DeWitt Clinton. He took a strong position against the extension of slavery, and was a vigorous writer against slavery itself. In 1848 he suggested, in "War and Peace: the Evils of the First with a Plan for securing the Last," international arbitration for the settlement of international disputes, stipulated upon treaty. He was a voluminous writer upon ethical and political subjects. He was the second son of John Jay⁴ and Sarah Van Brugh Livingston, married April 28, 1774, daughter of William Livingston, Governor of New Jersey. John Jay⁴, the friend of Washington, born December 12, 1745, died at Bedford, N. Y., May 17, 1729, was of Huguenot descent. He was graduated at King's College, 1764, admitted to the bar, 1768, member of Committee of Correspondence, 1776, and delegate to Congress at Philadelphia, September 5; he helped to prepare the "Address to the People of Great Britain;" he was an active member of the Committee of Observation of N. 840. John Jay⁷ (Augusta McVickar⁶, m. Judge William Jay, Anna Moore⁵, m. John McVickar, John⁴, Benjamin³, Capt. Samnel², Rev. John¹) and Eleanor Kingsland Field.

John Jay⁷ was graduated from Columbia College in 1836, and admitted to the bar in 1839. He had the intense vitality of his race, and was a prominent figure in New York life for sixty years. He was the bitter foe of slavery, a tireless philanthropist, and a leader of the civil-service movement. He served as United States Minister to Austria in 1869. A fluent writer, he contributed hundreds of timely articles to the American press.

In 1854 he organized the meetings at the Broadway Tabernacle that resulted in the State Convention at Saratoga on August 10, and in the dissolution of the Whig and the formation of the Republican party at Syracuse, 27th September, 1855. He was president of the Union League Club in 1866 and 1877. He was appointed Republican member of the State Civil Service Commission by President Cleveland. He was active in the early history of the American Geographical and Statistical Society, was Manager and Corresponding Secretary of the New York Historical Society, was first President of the Huguenot Society, organized in 1855 in New York.*

846. William Jay⁸ (Minister John Jay⁷, Augusta McVickar⁶, m. Judge William Jay, Anna Moore⁵, m. John McVickar, John⁴, Benjamin³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Lucy Oelrichs.

William Jay⁸ who is best known as Col. William, son of the Minister to Austria, volunteered at the breaking out of the rebellion, and served throughout the great conflict, making an enviable record for gallantry and fidelity. But to him war was a matter of duty, and not of pleasure and profit. With the coming of peace, he resigned, entered the bar, and rose rapidly to a high rank in the profession. He was graduated from Columbia in 1859, and the Columbia Law School in 1867. He married Lucy Oelrichs, by whom he has one surviving daughter. To Col. Jay, New York owes largely the development of the old-time sport of coaching, he having been the President of the Coaching Club from 1876 to 1896. He is a member of the vestry of Trinity Church, and it is worthy of note that a Jay has been either a churchwarden or vestryman of that church since its foundation in 1697.

James Sackett Moore⁶ went to New Orleans in 1831, and thence to Columbus, Ga., in 1832. He followed merchandising in Columbus, where he was a member of the firm of Moore & Tarver, and afterwards in Girard, Ala., opposite Columbus, where he was also Postmaster for several years. In 1858 he removed to Auburn, Lee County, Ala., where he engaged in the hotel business until 1866, when he removed to Motts Mill, Lee County, Ala., engaging in agriculture until his death. He took part in the Indian War of 1836–37, as a member of the Columbus Guard. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Martha M. A. Tarver was born in Clinton, Jones County, Georgia, November 5, 1815, and moved to Columbus, Ga., in 1830, with her parents, Elisha and Maria L. (Sanders) Tarver. Her grandparents, Billison Tarver, died December 23, 1817, and Selah Tarver died May, 1808. Her father, born December 27, 1787, died March 18, 1860, and her mother, born August 6, 1793, died September 9, 1851.

Her father was one of the oldest settlers of Columbus, which was laid out in 1829, and he arrived the following year and was elected one of its Commissioners for 1832. She was the oldest of nine children, a member of the Methodist Church, and died July 22, 1890, at Motts Mill, Lee County, Ala.

Capt. Daniel Sackett Moore⁵, after his trip to England under Admiral Howe, followed the sea and was for many years a successful shipmaster. He owned the paternal residence near Newtown village. The Philadelphia Post, October 10, 1771, speaks of a difference as great as that between crab-apples and Newtown pippins. The far-famed Newtown pippin, which, "when perfectly matured, is considered by some the finest apple in our country," was first cultivated in an orchard near Newtown village by one of the Moore family. Last winter (1851) they sold in England at five cents each, or $20 a barrel, wholesale.* Tradition says that the orchard belonged to D. S. Moore.

Daniel Sackett Moore paid a visit to his relatives in Kent County, England, and brought home the coat of arms which now hangs on the walls of the "Old House" at Newtown (Elmhurst), Long Island.

topher Farmar, called Billopp⁴, Thomas Farmar, called Billopp³, Anne Billopp,² m. Thomas Farmar, Christopher Billopp¹, Royal Navy).

Capt. Thomas Billopp⁵ (Farmar) was a participant in the events described in the following article:*

There was unveiled at the seaport of Puerto Cabello, Venezuela, a monument to the memory of the Americans who died there in 1806 in the cause of Venezuelan independence. The erection of such a monument was first decreed two years ago by the State of Miranda, inspired by its President, General Andrade (now President of the Republic.) The Federal Government, promptly following this lead, decreed that an imposing monument should be put up at Puerto Cabello, the place where the little band of Americans met their death. This is the memorial which has just been finished and unveiled with impressive public ceremonies. Addresses on the subject of the aid which Americans rendered to Venezuela at that time, and of the cruel fate which several of them suffered for it, were delivered by Dr. Alberto Smith, Venezuelan Minister of Public Works, and W. W. Russell, Secretary of the United States Legation.

The monument commemorates an affair, now nearly a century old, the story of which, although it is familiar in Venezuela as an incident in the country's history, is unknown to or forgotten by most Americans. Francisco Miranda, the Venezuelan patriot, to whose aid the Americans came, had many friends in this country, where he had served as a young man with the Continental Army in the Revolutionary War. In the year 1805 he thought he saw a favorable opportunity to strike a blow for his native country's independence by creating a revolution against the Spanish rule. Coming to New York, where he was fairly well known, he soon succeeded in interesting in his project a man of no less importance than the Surveyor of the Port, Colonel William Smith, who was a son-in-law of John Adams. Colonel Smith introduced Miranda to Samuel G. Ogden, a prosperous merchant of the city, and the three set to work with energy to organize an expedition to go to Venezuela.

Mr. Ogden's part consisted chiefly in the placing at Miranda's disposal of a good-sized ship, the Leander, or Leandro as it was usually called after Miranda received it. Two hundred men were then secured to sail on the vessel, under Miranda's command. These men were engaged in the most secret manner, and the information vouchsafed to them was of the vaguest kind. They simply knew that they were to go wherever Miranda led them, and it was rumored that the expedition was in some way destined to attack the Spanish rule in South America, but nothing definite was known. These two hundred men, who thus volunteered in the dark, were, for the most part, steady, brave, efficient fellows, who deserved a happier fate than they received.

The Leandro was well fitted out for her war-like purposes. Besides the eighteen cannon which she mounted along her sides, in the old-fashioned way, she carried fifteen hundred muskets, a few rifles, three hundred pairs of pistols, forty cannon of different sizes, two hundred swords, twenty tons of ammunition, gun-carriages and other articles of the same military nature.

Sailing from New York on February 2, 1806, with Thomas Lewis for her captain, the Leandro proceeded to the little port of Jacmel, on the south coast of Hayti, where she was to make further preparations. While here, Captain Lewis was sent to make arrangements for securing another vessel, the Emperador, and a crew, to join the expedition. Meanwhile Miranda was occupied in instructing his men in their coming duties. He disclosed to them the object of the voyage, and told them they were to form the nucleus of his "Colombian Army," which was to overthrow Spanish despotism in South America. Certain of the men were selected by him to be officers of different ranks, and commissions were written out on the spot. Captain Lewis returned from his mission, reporting that he could not get the Emperador, and a search was made for something to take her place. Two small schooners, the Baco and the Abeja, were secured, and the little fleet set sail after a delay at Hayti of six weeks.

* N. Y. Tribune, May 17, 1899.

On the 27th of April the three vessels lay off the Venezuelan coast, near the town of Ocumare, not far from Puerto Cabello. In the distance, two Spanish coast-guard ships were visible, and trouble was at once anticipated. At midnight, signals were noticed passing between the fort at Puerto Cabello and the guard-ships. Capt. Lewis beat to quarters and kept his men at their guns until daylight, but there was no immediate attack. In the morning, the position of Miranda's vessels found the Leandro six or eight miles from shore, the Abeja further in, and the Baco nearest of all, being only about a mile from the land. The story of what happened that day is thus told by a man named Sherman, one of the Americans in the expedition.

At about 9 o'clock in the morning, Powels, Donohue and two others, tempted by the beautiful aspect of the shore, took a boat and two sailors and went on shore to recruit themselves. In the course of an hour the wind rose and we immediately saw the Spanish schooner bear down on the Baco. The men who were on shore, on observing this, hastened to return to the ship, but on entering the boat were capsized by the violence of the waves. The schooner, now within cannon shot of the Baco, opened fire on her; in this situation the only recourse left to the Baco was to cut her cable and escape from the Spaniard. The Leandro and the Abeja came to her assistance. The Leandro opened fire on the Spanish ships, which replied. The Abeja received orders from the Leandro to approach the Baco in order soon to board the enemy, the Leandro on the starboard and the schooners on the larboard side. In conformity with this order, the Abeja approached the Baco, whose captain, Gagner, obeyed the orders of Huddle. The two schooners together hoisted sail to execute this order, when, to the surprise of all, the Leandro was seen to tack and flee.

At the beginning we believed that this was a feint to deceive the Spaniards, but on seeing the ship steadily deserting us we lost all hope. Abandoned, and with only six cannon to defend ourselves, except a howitzer, which we threw into the water, we tried to follow the Leandro. The enemy pursued us. * * * * But the Baco, with the Spaniard on the weather shore, changed her course and escaped; the enemy then followed up the Abeja, which could only surrender without resistance, after several broadsides from the Spaniards. * * * * The Spanish brigantine then went in pursuit of the Baco, which also surrendered.

There is nothing left to be said concerning the conduct of the Leandro. The public has judged it and condemned it as cowardly and treacherous. If the Leandro had done her duty, and boarded the enemy, according to the orders given to the Abeja and by her to the Baco, victory would have been ours.

So far as can be learned, the discreditable action of the Leandro has never been satisfactorily explained. It may have been that Miranda, put to the choice between sacrificing his comrades without a struggle and exposing himself, and consequently his enterprise to great peril, deliberately chose the former as the less important evil, yet it is hard to believe that the man who had fought bravely in both the American and French revolutions would have shown this overcautious spirit. It is known that Miranda and the Leandro's skipper, Captain Lewis, were on exceedingly bad terms, clashing repeatedly over their authority on the ship, and the responsibility for the retreat from the fight may belong as much to Lewis as to his chief.

The Spaniards, having captured the two little vessels, with sixty men, proceeded to treat their prisoners with their usual cruelty. They were all tried for piracy; ten of them, who held commissions as officers from Miranda, were hanged at Puerto Cabello, and the rest were sentenced to the chain-gang. The men killed, in whose memory the monument has been raised, were Captain Thomas Billopp, Lieutenant Francis Farquharson, Lieutenant Charles Johnson, Lieutenant Miles L. Hall, Gustave A. Bergutt, John Ferris, James Gardner, Thomas Donohue, Paul T. George, and one other whose name is missing. The titles of the last six are not given, but they probably held positions similar to those of second lieutenants.

The sentence was executed on July 21, on the front of the castle. Before it began, Miranda's proclamation and one of his tri-color flags were burned by the executioner. The hanging of the condemned men began at 6 o'clock in the morning, and was over shortly after noon. All the men died bravely, and most of them in silence. Bergutt turned as he was being led to the gallows and said: "Our cause will not be long in triumphing. This flag which is being burned to-day will float victoriously over this very site." The fulfilment of the promise came in the year 1821, when Bolivar won independence for the Colombian federation.

After being hanged, the ten men were beheaded. As a warning against future attempts like theirs, six of the heads were sent to Caraccas, two to La Guayra and two set up on poles at Puerto Cabello.

As for Miranda, after several subsequent attempts to create a republic in Venezuela, all of which were failures, he died in a Spanish prison at Cadiz.

To return for a moment to the New York end of Miranda's expedition, it is not to be supposed that Colonel Smith and Mr. Ogden escaped being brought to trial for their connection with the affair. Although it is believed that several other persons helped to furnish the money with which it was organized, they were manifestly the leaders, and they were promptly arrested. The charge against them was that they had helped to furnish munitions of war and thus foster an attack upon the dominions of a ruler with whom the United States was friendly and at peace—"to wit, His Majesty the King of Spain." It was at the time of Jefferson's presidency, and when political feeling ran high between Democrats and Federalists, and the trial created great public interest. The President removed Colonel Smith from his office of Surveyor of the Port of New York. This was regarded then as an extremely harsh measure, and at the trial the "tyranny" of it was put forth strongly by the defence. Popular sympathy was strongly with Smith and Ogden—it was only twenty-three years after the close of the Revolution, and oppressed colonies were a powerful appeal—and the jury brought in a verdict of acquittal. The proceeding is of special interest, in that it was the first filibustering trial in this country.*

Among those sentenced to imprisonment for ten years at Omoa was Lieut. John Moore, whose identity has not been discovered. It has been suggested that he was John Moore, son of James Moore and Elizabeth Hallett, the nephew of Abigail Moore, wife of Capt. Billopp.

The following is an incomplete list of those who were sentenced to ten years' imprisonment at Omoa:

The first monument was erected at Maracay, then the capital of Miranda, and unveiled September, 1898.

Capt. Thomas Donohue, Philadelphia, Lieut. Thomas Billopp, New York, Privates James Gardner, New York, Gustavus Burgutt, Poland, Charles Johnson, New York, Paul T. George, Portugal, Daniel Kemper, New York, Miles L. Hall, New York, John Ferris, New York, Sergeant Francis Farquharson. Worthy officers of Gen. Francisco Miranda were these heroes who offered their blood and life with Spartan courage as a sacrifice to the Independence of Venezuela, the 21st day of July of 1806, in the City of Puerto Cabello. On the eastern and western bases are the coats of arms of Venezuela and the United States. On the southern base is "The Government of the State erected this monument in 1898." The monument is of granite 32 feet high with base 21 feet square.

The second monument dedicated February 25, 1899, was erected at the expense of the National Government of Venezuela, and cost about $50,000. It is an imposing and handsome structure in bronze, resting on a granite pedestal, and is sixty-five feet high. The front panel of the pedestal contains the coats of arms of the United States and Venezuela interwoven. On the rear there is a bronze crown of laurel, and on the east panel a bronze plate containing the names of the men in whose honor the monument was erected. The names on the tablet are Captains Thomas Donohue and Thomas Billopp, Lieutenants Gustavus A. Bergutt, Charles Johnson, Daniel Kemper, Miles L. Hall, Paul T. George, James Gardner and John Ferris, and Second Lieutenant Francis Farquharson.

Capt. Thomas Billopp⁵ (Farmer) was the son of Col. Christopher Billopp⁴ (Farmer), born 1732, died 1827, at St. Johns, New Brunswick, and — Willis.

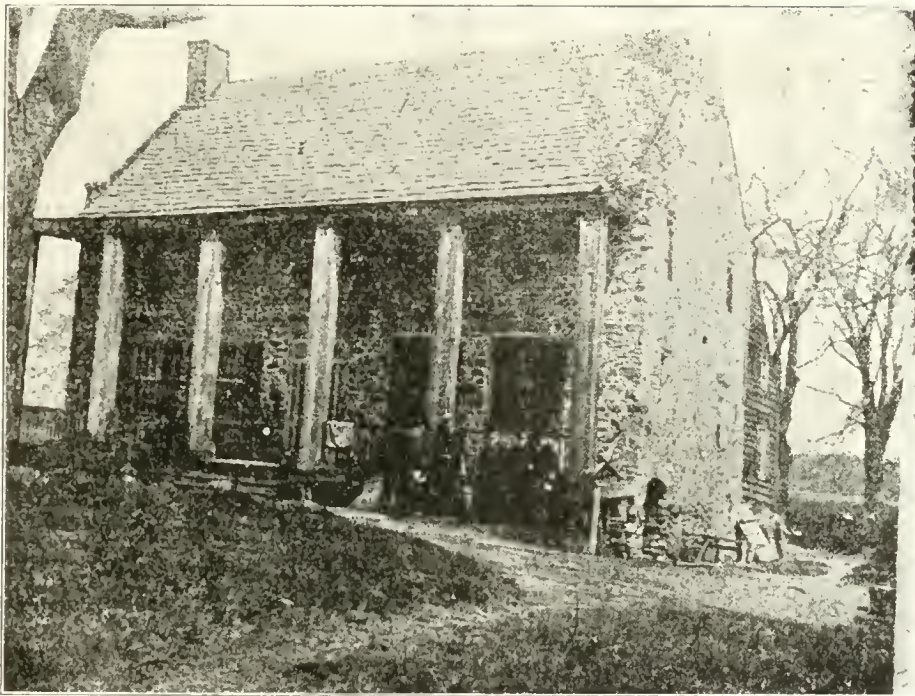

He was a gentleman of character and property, and a member of the House of Assembly. He commanded a corps of Loyalists, or of loyal militia, raised in the vicinity of New York City, and was actively employed in military duty. He was taken prisoner by the Whigs and confined in the jail at Burlington, New Jersey. Mr. Bondinot, the commissary of prisoners, in the warrant of commitment, directed that irons should be put on his hands and feet, that he should be chained to the floor of a close room, and that he should be fed on bread and water in retaliation for the cruel treatment of Leshier and Randal, two Whig officers who had fallen into the hands of the royal troops. In 1782 Colonel Billopp was Superintendent of Police of Staten Island, where he lived and where he had an estate. His property, which was large, was confiscated under the Act of New York. At the old Billopp House*, which he erected, Lord Howe, as a commissioner of the mother-country, met Franklin, John Adams and Edward Rutledge, a Committee of Congress, in the hope of adjusting difficulties, and of inducing the Colonies to return to their allegiance. During the war, Lord Howe, General Knipphausen, Colonel Simcoe, and other officers of rank in the royal service, were frequent guests of Colonel Billopp at this house. In 1783 he was one of the fifty-five petitioners for lands in Nova Scotia. He went to New Brunswick soon after, and for many years bore a prominent part in the administration of its affairs. He was a member of the House of Assembly and of the Council, and on the death of Governor Smythe, in 1823, he claimed the Presidency of the Government, and issued his proclamation accordingly, but the Honorable Ward Chipman was a competitor for the station, and was sworn into office. His two sons settled in the city of New York, and were merchants. They were partners, and in business at the time of the yellow fever (1798), the one married, the other single. The unmarried brother (John) said to the other: "It is unnecessary that both should stay here. You have a family and your life is of more consequence than mine, go into the country until the sickness subsides." The married brother, the husband of Abigail Moore, retired from the city accordingly, while the other remained and was a victim of the fever. The survivor, whose name was Thomas, failed in business some time after, joined the expedition of the celebrated Miranda, and was appointed a captain; he was taken prisoner by the Spaniards and executed.†

Capt. Thomas Billopp⁶ (Farmer) was the grandson of Thomas Billopp³ (Farmer), born 1711, who married first — Stelle, by whom he had no children, and second Sarah Leonard (S—), died about 1741, of New Jersey. The inscription on his tombstone is "Thomas Billopp, son of Thomas Farmer."

He was the great-grandson of Anne Billopp², who married Thomas Farmer. Her sister, Mary Billopp, married first, Rev. Mr. Brooke, who with Rev. Thoroughgood Moore was lost at sea, 1707, and second, Rev. William Skinner, of Perth Amboy, N. J.

Capt. Thomas Billopp⁵ was the great-grandson of Christopher Billopp¹,* captain Royal Navy, born about 1650, died 1726, was the grandson of Christopher Billopp, of the town of Beverly, in Yorkshire, and the son of Christopher Billopp, of London. The Christopher, of London, is mentioned in Pepy's Diary as an employee of Sir Christopher Wren.

Christopher Billopp¹ was, in 1671, made lieutenant in the Navy and appointed to the "Portsmouth," thence to the "Bristol," thence to the command of the "Prudent Mary" (1673), on 3d February, 1674, was made captain of the "Rainbow." In 1674 "Major," later Sir Edmond Andros, was appointed Governor of New York. He raised a company of 100 men to take with him, the first soldiers ever raised in England for service in America. Andros was commissioned captain, Billopp a lieutenant. On page 221, Volume 3, of "The Documents Relating to the Colonial History of New York," is to be found a copy of his commission, dated July 2, 1674, and signed James, Duke of York. Soon after Billopp arrived in New York he received a patent for 1165 acres for land on the west end of Staten Island, which was followed shortly by another patent for 2000 acres contiguous to the first, in all 3165 acres, which "plantation" was known as "Bently Manor."

In 1677 Andros appointed Billopp to command on the Delaware, headquarters at New Castle. In about a year he had difficulty with Andros, was recalled to New York, and "for talking against the Governor in a loud voice at the Custom House" was requested to resign (1678).

Billopp remained in America about a year and then was, on the 20th of July, 1680, appointed to the command of the "Ossory," a ship of 90 guns, "and was promoted the May following to the 'Victory,' a 'first-rate,' and on the death of Sir J. Ashby in the following month, Capt. Billopp was removed to the 'London,' the largest ship at that time in the English Navy." By his will dated April 25, 1724, he left a fine estate and perpetuated the Billopp name. He had no sons, his only children being two daughters, Mary and Anne. Anne married Thomas Farmar and had twelve children. In Capt. Billopp's will "The Manor of Bently" was left to his daughter Mary during her life only, and at her death to her heirs male according to premogeniture, but should she die without such heirs, the property should be inherited by Christopher Farmar, the second son of his daughter Anne, and to his heirs male; failing such issue it was to descend in regular order to his brother in succession with like restrictions. They are all mentioned except the eldest, "Jasper," and the youngest, "John;" the latter was probably born after the will was drawn. Jasper was left the sum of £20. Should there be no heir among the Farmars, the property was to go to his "right" heirs, male, of the name of Billopp, "which name was to be assumed by such one of the Farmars as might become his heir. The property, according to the terms of the will, went to the Farmars, Christopher being dead. Thomas, the third son, inherited and took the name of his maternal grandfather.

The Farmar family is much older, as far as documentary evidence goes, and much more distinguished than the Billopp. Thomas Farmar and his wife Emmotte, the widow of Henry Weuman and the daughter of Mr. Hervey, of Herefordshire, are the first of the name of whom we now have any documentary evidence. The will of the said Thomas is dated September 9, 1485.

Sir John Farmor was knighted in 1553, his son Sir Ewing was knighted in 1586, his son Sir Hatton Furmor knighted in 1603. Sir Hatton's son, Sir George, created Bart, 1641, and his son created Baron Leomenster in 1692. In the year 1721 the then Baron Leomenster was created Earl of Pomfret and Pontepact. The title became extinct in 1867. Our line is from Robert Farmar, third son of Sir George and brother of Sir Hatton, who went to Ireland with Queen Elizabeth's army in which he was an officer of rank. For his services he received several large estates in the counties of Cork and Tipperary. He was killed in battle, leaving a son, Robert Fermour. This second Robert Farmour's second son, was Jasper Farmar, who married the eldest daughter of Anthony Gamble, of County Cork, and resided at Garron-Kenny Fange in that county. Jasper's eldest son was Major Jasper Farmar. When Oliver Cromwell carried his war into Ireland, among the Royalists opposed to him was the Farmar family, and few of the friends of the unfortunate King, Charles 1st, suffered more in their estates than did Jasper Farmar and his sons. They were deprived of their lands and with what property they were able to carry with them were eventually compelled to take refuge in England where they remained until after the restoration, when they received some compensation for their losses. That the family was not in a state of utter poverty may be deduced from the following, taken from the Pennsylvania Magazine of History, Volume 8, page 336, where we find the account of the arrival of the family in Philadelphia. "The 'Bristol Merchant,' John Stephens commander, arrived here the 10th of 9th month, 1685." The passengers named are as follows, viz., "Jasper Farmar, Senior, his family; Mary Farmar, widdow, Edward Farmar, Edward Batsford, Sarah Farmar, John Farmar, Katharine Farmar, Jasper Farmar, Junior's family; Thomas Farmar, Katharine Farmar, widdow; Elizabeth Farmar, Katharine Farmar, Junior." The family brought with them twenty servants; their names are recorded in the same article, page 337. Some of these servants were the progenitors of some of the most prominent people in Pennsylvania. Both the Jaspers died on the voyage, which accounts for Mary and Katharine both being represented as widows. The will of Jasper, Sr., is dated "7 mo. 25, 1685," and was proved "2d of 11th mo., 1685." Letters of administration to the estate of Jasper, Jr., were issued 19th 11th mo., 1685. From the same fertile source of information I find the following (Pennsylvania Magazine of History, Volume 4, page 354): "Mary Farmar, widow of Joseph Farmar, * * * settled on a tract of five thousand acres of land purchased from William Penn, embracing all of Farmar's or Whitmarsh Township, Philadelphia County, south of Skippack Road."

Thomas Farmar, son of Jasper and Katharine Farmar, who could have been but a mere boy when he arrived in Philadelphia, is frequently mentioned in letters from Penn to his agents. In 1701 Penn appointed him Sheriff of Philadelphia (idem, Volume 3, page 211). The following year he resigned that office to return to England, probably to marry Anne Billopp. Anyhow the eldest son, Jasper, was born 1707.

A certain Thomas Farmar lies buried in the chapel of Ummerton Church in Oxfordshire, where the tombs of others of his family are also found. This Thomas died in 1580, and his executors erected a raised monument of white marble, whereon lies his effigy in armor and the effigy of his wife, and around the verge is the following Latin inscription: "Thomæ Farmar, armigero, viro animi magnitudine contra Hartes beneficentia erga Doctos admirabili-Domino hujus territorii benignissimo & Novae scholae Fundatori optimo in perpetuum sui suæq conjugis Brigittæ pæminal lectissimæ memoriam, ex Testamento executores sui hoc monumentum flentes erexerunt-Obiit vero Anno Domini Millesimo quingentesimo Octogesimo die Augusti Octavo.

"Arms: Argent a fess, sable, between three lions heads, erased, gules.

"Crest: Out of a Ducal coronet or, a cock's head issuing, gules, crested and wattled, or.

"Motto: 'Hora e sempre.' '*"

39. Nathaniel Moore³ (Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Joanna Prudden³ (Rev. John², m. ———, Rev. Peter¹, m. Joanna Boyse (Rev. John, m. Joanna ———)).

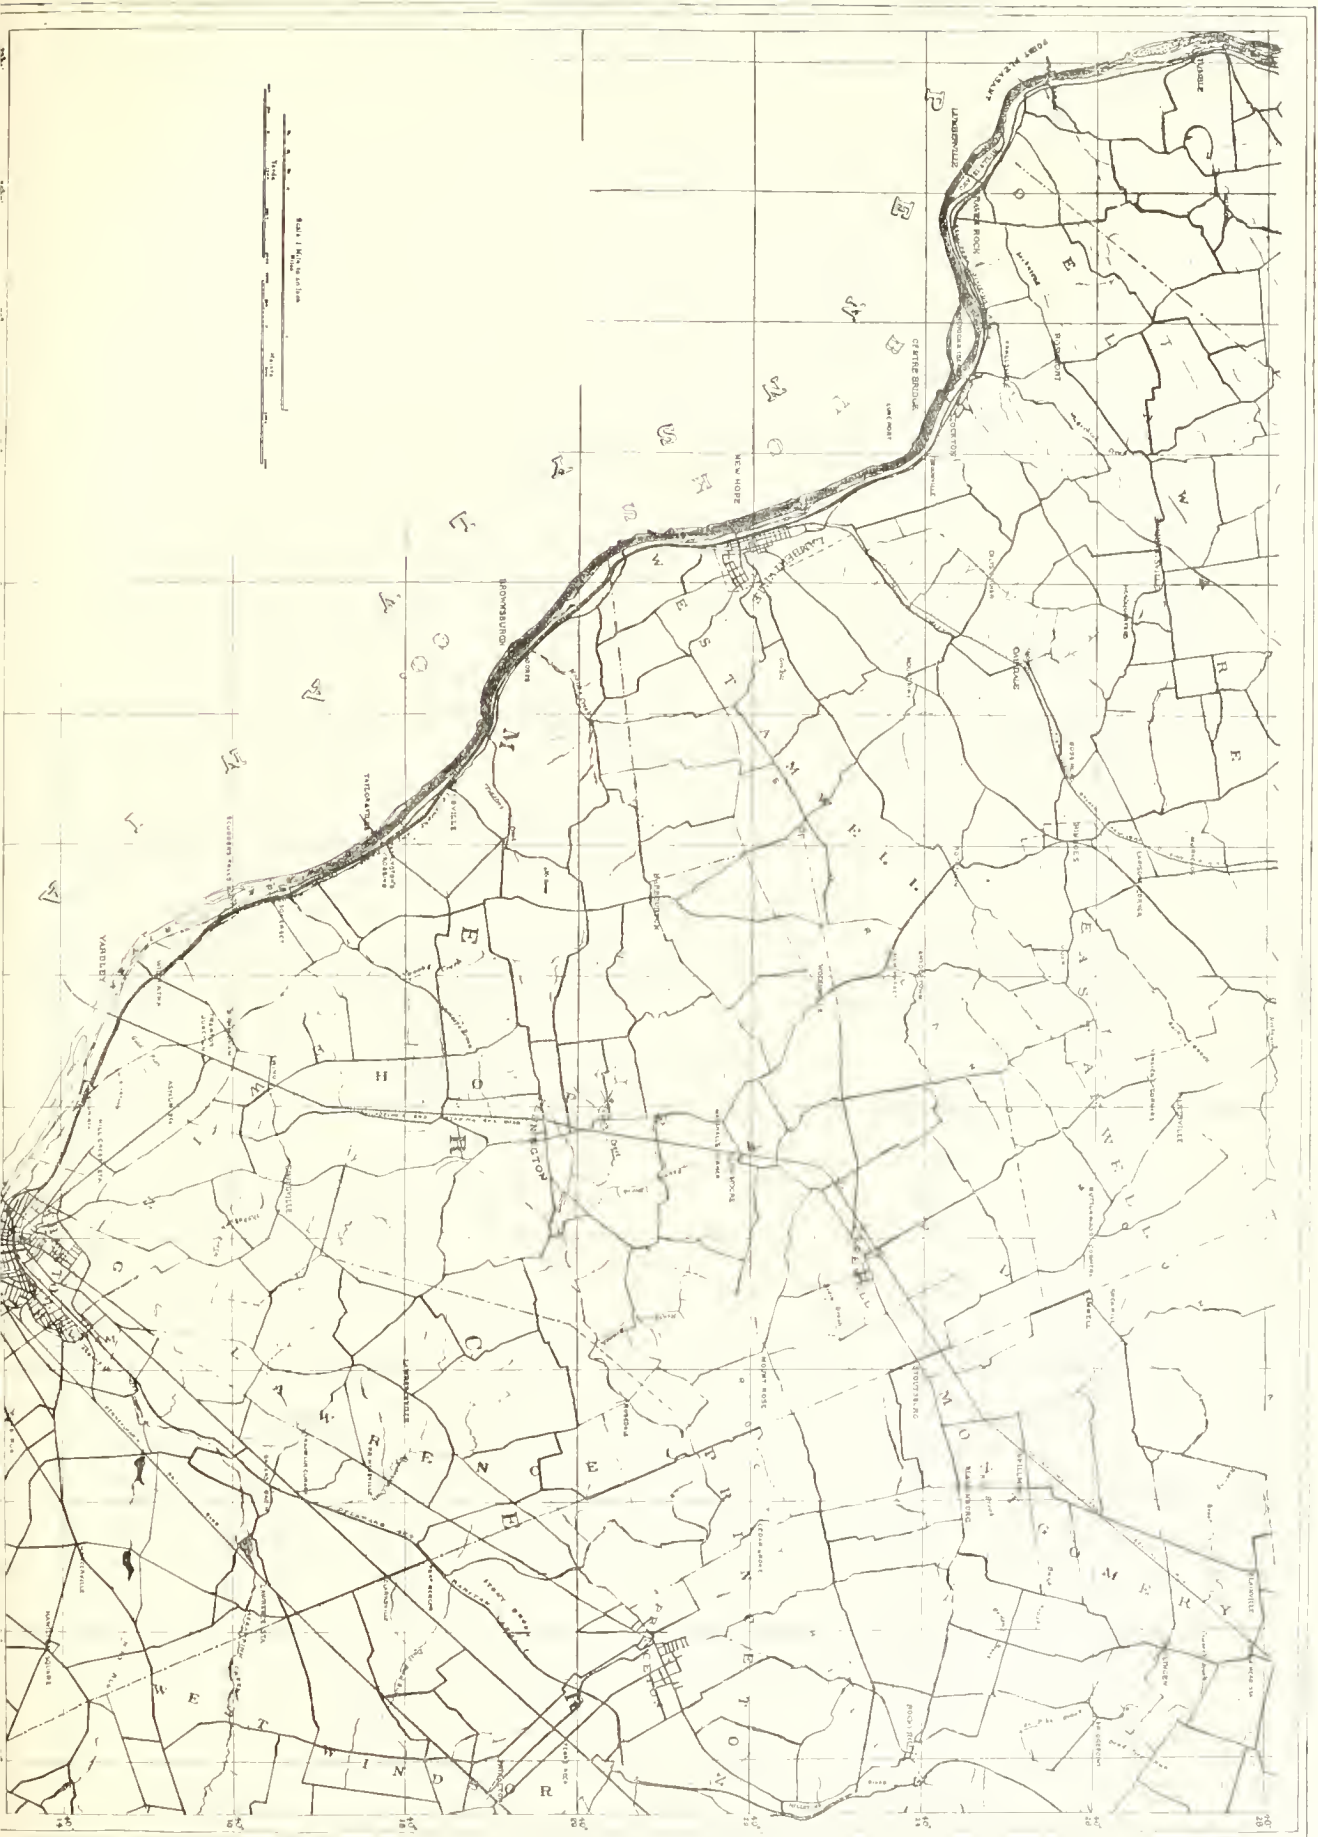

If a plan for the scattering of their sons had been deliberately formed by the early settlers, no better one could have been found than that employed in the settlement of the land on Long Island by the English. A company was formed which secured a patent and bought a tract of land. Each member was granted a lot upon which to build a house in addition to twenty or forty acres for tillage for his household wants. The remainder of the land was held in common for pasturage and fuel. The right to the use of this common was proportioned to the original cash paid in. The only way for a son to obtain a lot was to inherit it or buy it from a neighbor. With the large families neither was possible. This arrangement checked the home growth, and when New Jersey lands were offered for sale there was a rush from Long Island. The lands of New Jersey were desirable and cheap and the taxes were low, on which account the younger sons of Long Island settlers were attracted. Several of the grandsons of Rev. John Moore¹ settled in New Jersey, one, John Moore³, as early as 1695. In 1708, at the age of twenty, Nathaniel Moore³ came to Hopewell Township, Hunterdon County. As these young men of Long Island started out to found a new state, it will not be amiss to give a rapid history of the territory they were to develop. March 12, 1664, Charles II, King of Great Britain, by royal charter*, made a grant of territory in America to his brother James, Duke of York. June 23, 1664, James conveyed† to John, Lord Berkley, and Sir George Carteret the portion which then for the first time was named New Caesarea or New Jersey, and which corresponds to the state of that name. March 18, 1673 John, Lord Berkley, sold what afterward became West Jersey to the Quaker, John Fenwicke, trustee for the Quaker, Edward Billinge and others. February 9, 1674, John Fenwicke and Edward Billinge sold to William Penn, Gawen Lawry, Nicholas Lucas, the half of New Jersey. July 1, 1676, New Jersey was divided into East Jersey and West Jersey, Sir George Carteret getting East Jersey and William Penn, Gawen Lawry, Nicholas Lucas and Edward Billinge, West Jersey. This deed settled the line between the two parts of New Jersey. West Jersey was divided into one hundred parts and distributed among the proprietors, the portion called "the 30,000 acres," above the Falls of the Delaware (Trenton), becoming the property of Thomas Sadler and Edward Billinge. October 20, 1685, Dr. Daniel Coxe, of London, bought of Thomas Sadler and Edward Billinge the 30,000-acre tract which was the original township of Hopewell. March 30, 1688,‡ Dr. Daniel Coxe, through his agent, Adlord Bowde, bought the land from the Indians. March 4, 1691, Dr. Coxe, who owned twenty-two shares, conveyed the territory and government to the West Jersey Society. In 1707, Daniel Leeds§ made a resurvey of the Hopewell tract for Col. Coxe. January 21, 1709-10, by act of Provincial Assembly, Burlington County included Maidenhead, Hopewell and Amwell. March 15, 1713-14, Hunterdon County was set off, making the Assunpink the southern boundary. "Old Hunterdon" included then the townships of Trenton, Ewing, Lawrence and Hopewell in Mercer County, and Morris, Sussex, Warren and Hunterdon Counties. March 2, 1719-20, Hopewell Township was diminished on the south side by order of the Court.

§ Appendix, XXXIX.

March 2nd, 1719-20. Ordered by the Court that the bounds of Trenton be entered upon the record as followeth, ordered accordingly.

Beginning at the landing on Delaware River in Nottingham, running up sd river to the mouth of Jacob's Creek, thence along said creek to a run called Jacob's run, thence up sd run to Thatcher's swamp, along a run that runs into Shabbakunk including Ralph Hart's plantation to the line that divides Hopewell from Maidenhead. Thence along sd line until it comes to the sd line of Mr. Trents and Tho^s Lamberts land, thence along sd line between Mr. Treuts and Thomas Lamberts to Delaware River and so along sd river to the first mentioned station.

On the 12th day of July, 1697, Thomas Revell, agent of the West Jersey Society, sold to Johannes Lawrenson, of Maidenhead, 1050 acres of land.* On May 14, 1700,† Johannes Lawrenson conveyed his right to "Richbell Mott, of Hamstead bounds, upon the Island of Nassau in the Province of New York."

Nathaniel Moore's first appearance on record is on November 11, 1708, when Mott sold out to John Cornwall, John Mott, Nathaniel Moore and Thomas Reed. The land actually amounted to thirteen hundred acres. The village of Pennington was built on this section of land, measuring about one mile and three-eighths from north to south and from east to west, embracing about two square miles. In honor of Queen Anne it was called Queenstown. As early as 1747 it began to be called Pennington. The names Cornwall, Mott, Moore and Reed still exist in this part of New Jersey. Nathaniel Moore's mother's name was Reed and it is surmised that Thomas Reed‡ was related to Nathaniel Moore. As far as the records show, there was nothing to disturb the serenity of these early settlers of New Jersey.

The next record discovered of Nathaniel Moore shows that in 1715 he was Lieutenant in the third company of New Jersey troops, the roster being at Albany N. Y.§

In an old account book kept by John Johnson, of Maidenhead, New Jersey, in 1722, the name of Nathaniel Moore appears. A copy of this book is in the possession of the New Jersey Historical Society.

As late as 1722, the list of taxables shows 138 men subject to taxation in Hopewell, N. J., 16 of whom were single. There were 11 slaves, 785 cattle and horses and 480 sheep. Nathaniel Moore was taxed for 16 cattle and horses, 25 sheep, and 300 acres of land; he was on the list of married men.

In 1725 Nathaniel Moore was made a Justice, as is shown by the following, the original parchment being still in a good state of preservation in the Court House at Flemington, N. J.:

GEORGE by the grace of God of great Britain, France, and Ireland KING defender of the Faith; To our well beloved and faithful Daniel Coxe, Thomas Leonard, and James Trent, Esquires, KNOWYE that we have assigned, constituted and appointed and by these presents do assign, constitute and appoint you the said Daniel Coxe, Thomas Leonard and James Trent to be Judges or any one of you to be Judge of our County Court for holding of pleas for our County of Hunterdon in our Province of New Jersey in America, with authority to use and exercise all powers and jurisdictions belonging to said Court; and you the said Daniel Coxe, Thomas Leonard and James Trent, assisted with Joseph Stout, Jacob Doughty, Jasper Smith, John Budd, Isaac Herring, Nathaniel Moore, John Dagworthy, and Joshua Anderson, Justices of the Peace in our said County or any two of them to hear, try & determine all causes and matters Civil, by Law cognizable in the said Court and to award execution thereon accordingly. IN TESTIMONY whereof we have caused the great seal of our said Province of New Jersey to be hereunto affixed. Witness our trusty and well beloved WILLIAM BURNETT, Esq., our Captain General and Governor in chief of our Provinces of New Jersey, New York, and territories thereon depending in America and Vice-Admiral of the same, etc., at Fort George in New York, this twentieth day of September, in the Twelfth year of our reign, 21.; and in the year of our Lord One Thousand seven hundred and Twenty Five.

‡ Thomas Reed may have been a son of either John Reed or Joseph Reed, sons of Elizabeth Reed (widow), who married John Burroughs; Elizabeth was the mother of Mary Reed, the wife of Capt. Samuel Moore².

§ New York and New Jersey were combined under one government from 1702 to 1738.

The next record is of "March ye 9th, 1725-6, agreed upon by the majority of the town to hold their town-meetings insuing at the new meeting house by John Smiths." This John Smith was a merchant in the village, and owned the lands adjoining the church lot east and south. There is a tradition that before a church was built, there was stated preaching in the schoolhouse which stood on the ground that is now the south part of the Pennington graveyard, known from time immemorial as the schoolhouse lot.* This lot was conveyed by John Smith, for ten pounds, to Nathaniel Moore, William Cornwell, John Everitt, Ralph Hunt, Jonathan Furman, Reuben Armitage, and Stephen Baldwin.

In 1731 it appears that the title to the land was imperfect, and the following document ushered in the great land suit which engaged the attention of the people and the Courts for several years :

Whereas the subscribers whose names are hereunto affixed having purchased several considerable Tracts of land of one Thomas Revell an Agent of ye honourable Societie of West Jersey (and other the residentors therein) being part of the tract known by ye name of ye Thirty Thousand above ye falls of Delaware Lying in ye Township of Hopewell, county of Hunterdon and Western Division of New Jersey and of him received such conveyance as by virtue of the Commission of Agency in the behalf of ye Hononrable Society are Deemed and esteemed in law Effectual till a more fezable title can be made appear and whereas there is now claim laid to our severall Tracts aforesaid by Colonel Cox under a pretence of being Chief Proprietier thereof whose right to us has not been made appear, Therefore not thinking ourselves not ye least obligated to surrender up our respective lands to the use of said Cox till more legall proprietorship can be made apparently by him appear we think it reqesit on such a claim to stand a Tryal as ye law Tantely shall Direct.

In order to which proceeding ye sd Cox by his attory has Ejected several of us from our p'mises obliging us to an Issne and we subscribers thinking it a hardship to carry on this Snit by one p'ticular person wherein so many is concerned we draw this iustrment obliging each of us the subscribers our heirs Executors and administrators to ye each other in ye penal sum of fif Teu pounds curr't money of this province to be paid by the defauter if he stand not to and abide by evry of ye clauses abovesaid and well and truly perform this Covenant, That is to say Each of the Subscribers oblige themselves to each other in the penalty exprest equivalent to the land ye possess (he possesses) to emburse so much money towards ye carrying of this suit as the whole complement shall be found sufficient to defray the contingent charge of Trying this Title. In Testimony whereof we have hereunto set the haud this twenty Second of Aprill annogre Dominy 1731.

Col. Coxe gained the suit, but many of the settlers remained on the land upon which they originally settled, having been compelled to pay for it the second time, as indicated by the following notice :

Notice is hereby given, to all Persons settled on any Part of those two Tracts of Land commonly known by the Name of the 30,000 and 15,000 Acres, scituate in Hopewell and Maidenhead in Hunterdon County, who have not purchased or leased of Daniel Coxe deceased, in his Life time, that they come and agree for the Lands whereof they are in Possession with Samuel Bustill of Burlington, or John Coxe of Trenton, two of the executors of the last Will of the said Daniel Coxe, who are empowered to sell the said Lands ; or that they quit their respective Possessions, or yield up the same to the Executors by the Tenth Day of November next, or they will be proceeded against according to Law.*

In 1731 the following subscription shows who were the prominent people in Hopewell :

We hereunto subscribed inhabitants of Hopewell, in the county of Hunterdon, in the province of West Jersey, do promise and oblige ourselves, our executors and administrators, to pay or cause to be paid unto Nathaniel Moore, Philip Ringo and Thomas Reed, their heirs, executors, administrators or assigns, or to any one of them, the several sums of money that are to our names annexed, one-half at or before the first day of May next ensuing the date hereof, and the other half at or before the first day of May, in the year of our Lord 1731, the said money being in trust with the said Nathaniel Moore, Philip Ringo and Thomas Reed, toward the purchasing of a plantation to be a dwelling place at all times for such a gospel minister of the Presbyterian persuasion as shall be duly and regularly called by the major part of the inhabitants of Hopewell, which compose the Presbyterian society in that town, but to be enjoyed by such a minister no longer than he continues to be such a lawful and regular minister to that society, and when the relation between such minister and that society shall cease, then the said plantation shall return to the said society, to be a dwelling place for the minister yt shall next be regularly called, to dwell on as aforesaid, and if the subscribers shall judge meet that if there be above one hundred acres purchased, that the said shall be set apart towards the founding of a Latin School upon the said plantation so purchased as above.

Attached are the names of the subscribers :

Timothy Titus, William Lawrence, Thomas Burrowes, Jr., John Branes, Cornelius Anderson, Benjamin Severance, Francis Vannoy, Jonathan Moore, Edmund Palmer, Alexander Scott, Edward Hunt, Thomas Hendrick, Robert Akers, Peter LaRue, John Fidler, Andrew Milbourn, Roger Woolverton, Benjamin Wilcocks, Johannes Hendrickson, Henry Oxley, Roger Parke, John Parke, Ralph Hunt, Joseph Hart, Abraham Anderson, Barth. Although Justices were appointed as early as 1725, and perhaps earlier, the earliest record of the proceedings of the Justices and Freeholders is given in the following article :

"Records of the Proceedings of the Justices and Freeholders of the County of Hunterdon on Public affairs Relating to said County, Beginning Sept. 7, 1739." Such is the inscription upon the outside cover of what is the earliest official record extant of the board of freeholders of this county. It is a leather-bound volume, and the inscription appears to have been written with a red-hot iron. It is possible that the records of their proceedings prior to 1739 were not preserved in any book, which supposition is rather strengthened by one of the first items entered in the above volume :

"Order that there shall be a record Book provided for the said clerk of Ten Shillings Price at the expense of the county." The following is the account of the proceedings of the first session of the board, as found in the above-mentioned volume.

At a meeting of the Justices and Freeholders for the County of Hunterdon on the Seventh Day of September, 1739, at the Court-House in Trenton, Its agreed, ordered and directed as follows : first, That there be Twelve pounds allowed for the Chief Justice and the Expense of the Special Commission for the Tryal of James Fitzgerald, now in Prison for Murder. In the unfortunate division in the Presbyterian Church, which culminated in 1741, it is surmised that Nathaniel Moore³ affiliated with the "New Side" party, for in the call to Rev. John Guild, August 15, 1739, his name does not appear, though he had previously been prominent in the church. The "New Side" party wished to hear Mr. James Davenport. Perhaps old associations had something to do with this desire, as Mr. Davenport was the son of Rev. John Davenport, of Stamford, and grandson of Rev. John Davenport, of the New Haven Colony. Rev. Peter Prudden was associated with Rev. John Davenport, and Nathaniel Moore's wife was the former's granddaughter and daughter of Rev. John Prudden, of Newark.

In 1753 the name of Nathaniel Moore appears again in "A Duplicate for the Township of Hopewell." ‡

The following advertisement from an old newspaper is interesting. No evidence of sale has been found :

September, 1753. For sale Nathaniel Moore's Mills and plantation six miles above Trenton, 400 acres : apply to William Clayton or William Pidgeon, Trenton.

The will of Nathaniel Moore, here given in full, was discovered in the Department of State, Trenton, N. J. :

Joanna Prudden* was the daughter of Rev. John Prudden², and —
Rev. John Prudden² was born at Milford, Conn., November 9, 1645, and died at Newark, N. J., December 11, 1725. In 1668 he was graduated at Harvard College; afterward he had charge of the celebrated Roxbury Grammar School.

On the 6th of March, 1670, the inhabitants of Jamaica, L. I., voted that "he (Mr. Prudden), receive forty pounds a yeare in Corent county paye of the townd" with the house and lot then in the possession of Mr. Walker and also "A convenient new pew be made for the minister to preach in."†

On May 24, 1670, he succeeded Rev. Zechariah Walker, whose wife was Sarah Prudden, his sister, as pastor at Jamaica, L. I., and remained there for four years.

On January 13, 1674, the town records relate that the town desired a positive answer from Mr. Prudden whether he would remain with them as their minister and his answer was "that he was under an engagement to another people soe that he could not stay with us any longer."‡

It appears that about 1674 there was some difficulty connected with his contract. The only record found is a note as follows:

COURT, JAMAICA, December 11, 1674.

Mr. Prudden's business ordered for his contracts.§

After 1674 he preached for some time at Rye and Bedford, N. Y.

There is a charge against him in the store account of William Mudge at Worcester Cove for a pint of wine and a loaf of bread, probably used at a communion service, in 1675. ††

He returned to Jamaica in 1676 and was again pastor from June 19, 1676, until 1692. He agreed "to continue in this towne, discharging the work of a minister in this towne for the terme of ten yeer, according to the rules of the gospel of this towne." They agreed to give him forty pounds a year and his firewood, nineteen men to bring a load "a pese yerely." There is evidence that while he more than fulfilled his part of the contract the inhabitants of the town failed in theirs.

Some of the inhabitants of Jamaica refused or neglected to pay the salary agreed upon, probably, as in other places, objecting to the method of assessment. The following official documents will throw light upon the subject:

MATHIAS NICHOLS TO THE REV. MR. PRUDDEN, OF JAMAICA.

Reverend Sir I must crave yo^r Excuse that I have not ere now returned you an answer of what you desired at Jamaica, touching liberty of Setting a day a part for yo^r Conegregation to assemble together to worship God more particularly at this Season, I have comunicated the Same to the Councell, who are well content therewith & that you make vse of the publicke meeting house in yo^r Towne any day this week or next following where none are to presume to give you disturbance in yo^r divine exercise You laying no injunctcon on any but leaving them to their freedome who are willing to partake with you therein. PETITION OF THE REV^d MR PRUDDEN.

To the Excellent Collon^l Thomas Dongan Governour Comander in Chief under his majesty over the province of New Yorke & its dependan^{es}

The humble petition of John prudden quondam minister of Jemaica in Queens County upon Long Island Sheweth.

That your humble petitioner having served the town of Jemaica in the work of the minister for the space & term of Ten years late past, hath suffered much wrong upon y^e account of a certain sallary engaged by y^e inhabitants of y^e said Town to be paid unto him yearly for his labour, y^t a considerable part of his sallary is unjustly withheld from him through y^e defect of severall Inhabitants denying to pay their proportion levied by yearly rates though no priviledg or advantage of my ministry hath been denyed to them. Wherefore your humble petitioner makes his application to your Excellency and Honourd Council for Relief and Redress as you shall see meet; not doubting of your Readines to doe what ever shall appear to be Rationall & just; and cause it also to be done by others, but hoping y^t your excellency together with your Honored council considering the circumstances of y^e premisses will take the most effectuall care and order that what is due to your petitioner by contract & agreement for y^e time past may be honestly payed and performed to him (without trouble and constraint by course of Law which would be unpleasant and discomendable on all hands) your petitioner willingly submits to your pleasure therein being persuaded that your Excellency will not allow y^t after your petitioner hath (to his disadvantage) served a people ten years upon y^e account of a firm contract he should be defrauded and deprived of a considerable part of his reward engaged, nor necessitated to desert his calling and the collony to prevent y^e like abuse which would unavoidably carry some reflexion upon those in whose power it is & remaines to prevent or redres such wrongs.

Your humble petitioner only requesteth further that if a considerabl numbr of the congregational profession & perswasion should be desirous y^t he would continue to be their minister and maintain him at their own cost & charge by a voluntary contribution your Excellency & the Honored Council would pleas to give approbation thereunto which we hope will neither be offensive nor prejudicial to any person or persons under y^e Liberty granted by our gracious Sovereign: your so doing will give encouragement unto us y^t are settled in this province & an invitation to others or at least remove evill surmizals against y^e government which too many in y^e Neighbouring Collony are apt to entertain to the prejudice of his Majesties intrest in this province. Thus craving y^e heavens assistance & direction to guide your consultations to y^e glory of God & comon good your petitioner Remaines at your service.

CERTIFICATE.

We whose names are subscribed doe testifie that the inhabitants and freeholders of Jemaica at a publick meeting call to treat with Mr John Prudden to be their minister June y^e 19th 1676 did (after he had declared his judgment and proposed his terms) by a town act freely and firmly promis and engage to give unto Mr prudden the accomodations which he now possesseth and a yearly sallary of fourty pounds to be paid to him or his order so long as he should continue in y^e Town employed in y^e work of y^e ministry and his fire-wood brought home free as specified in y^e town registry. Furthermore we doe testifie that Mr John prudden hath continued in this towne discharging the work of a minister according to the way of y^e churches in New England the full term of ten years and more since the Town caled him & covenanted with him for his labour in y^e ministry.*

Nehemiah Smith.
John Carpenter.

It has been said that Rev. John Prudden was the first regular pastor of the first regularly organized Presbyterian Church in America. Considerable discussion has resulted bnt the matter seems to be a question of terms. Rev. John Moore was pastor at Newtown, L. I., in 1652, and a similar discussion has arisen in reference to him. Rev. James M. MacDonald, D.D., for many years pastor at Princeton, N. J., and a trustee of the Seminary there, says: "The Church of Jamaica is the oldest Presbyterian Church† established by the English in America. It had been in existence some eight or ten years before Francis Makemie, styled the father of American Presbyterianism, arrived in Maryland."

Also from the same authority: "And for the confirmation of this Agreement the town did voluntarily engage themselves at a town meeting held the 3d of June (1672), that they would not obstruct or hinder but rather further the coming into a 'church way,' according to the rules of the Gospel in this town by Mr. Prudden and such as will join him.* The coming into a 'church way,' according to the rules of the Gospel, is language that cannot be mistaken; it must refer to the organization of a church. It proves that up to 3d June, 1672, there had been no regularly constituted Church of Christ in this place."

* Documentary History of New York, III, 194, etc.

† The same claim is made for the Hempstead Church.

While undoubtedly there were many Presbyterians among the Congregationalists of New England it is exceedingly difficult to decide the question. The Newark settlement was Congregational, and Rev. John Prudden was pastor there as late as 1698. Rev. John Brooke was appointed by the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts one of its missionaries in America. In his first report, August 20, 1705, he says: "There are five Independent Ministers in and about the places I preach at and the greatest part of the people are followers of them." The places he "preached at" were Elizabeth Town and Perth Amboy. The five Independent Ministers were Messrs. Harriman and Melyen, of Elizabeth Town, John Prudden, of Newark, Samuel Shepard, of Woodbridge and the minister of Piscataway.†

For some unexplained reason, in 1686, Rev. John Prudden deeded his property to Grace, the widow of his elder brother, Samuel. Grace Judson was the daughter of Lieut. Joseph Judson, of Stratford, Ct., and his wife, Sarah, daughter of John Porter, of Weathersfield.

In 1689 he was chosen, by Jamaica,‡ Deputy to the Colonial Assembly of New York. At a town meeting held on the 10th day of June, 1689:

Mr. Prudden & Nathl Denton, Sr., was chosen to go to York to meete with the rest of the deputis of the respective townes for to consider and advise one with another of what shall be for the good welfare and services of the contry and to act with the rest of the deputies in anything that may tend thereunto and also if they will see cause to make any application to our Sovereign King & Queen for anything that may tend to the good of the whole Collony to act with them.

By order of the Town per me

Nathaniel Denton, Clerk.

The proceedings of the people of Newark, N. J., in reference to their call of Mr. Prudden in 1692, are annexed:

At a Newark, N. J., Town Meeting, August 23rd, 1692,§—It was consulted, consented, and unanimously agreed, that Mr. John Pruden should be called to be their Minister; and in Case he should come and settle among them in that Work, they would freely and readily submit themselves to him and to his Dispensations and Administrations, from Time to Time in the Discharge of his ministerial Office and Works, as God shall assist and direct him therein by his Word and Spirit, for their Spiritual Good and Edification. It also is consulted, voted, consented to, and agreed by the said Inhabitants then convened, for Mr. John Pruden's Encouragement to come and settle among them, and that he may the better attend upon the Work of the Ministry as his Business, and for the more comfortable Sustainance of his Family in his Attendance therein; that he shall have £50 p. annum, and his Fire Wood free: to be paid yearly, according to several Contributions voluntarily subscribed by them, to Mr. Pruden or his Order, so long as he shall continue with them employed in the Ministry: this also voted.

It is moreover voted and agreed, that Mr. Pruden shall have and hold such a Propriatie, and other Conveniences for his Accommodations in the Town, as shall be agreed upon between him and the Committee appointed to treat with him (viz) Mr. Ward, Mr. Johnson, John Curtis, Azariah Crane, Jasper Crane, Thomas Ludington, and Stephen Bond, nominated and impowered by the Town for that Purpose.

August 23rd, 1692—The Result of a Treaty between Mr. John Pruden and a Committee chosen, constituted, and impowered by the Inhabitants and Freeholders of Newark to act in their Behalf, is as followeth, (viz): It is concluded and agreed by the said Committee, that Mr. Pruden shall have and hold the accomo'dations purchased of Mrs. Falconer, for his own Propriatie, to him and his Heirs forever; he paying or causing to be paid the two last Payments indented for with Mrs. Falconer; excepting only five Pounds which the town is to discharge besides what is already done, in prime Bill of Debt made to the s'd Mrs. Falconer—as Witness our Hands—subscribed, Mr. John Pruden. Committee for and in Behalf of themselves and their Neighbours—Mr. John Ward, Mr. Johnson, John Curtis, Azariah Crane, Jasper Crane, Thomas Ludington, Stephen Bond.

Town Meeting, 28th October, 1692—It was voted, whether the Charges for purchasing that Accomo'dations that was Mrs. Falckner's and the Charge of transporting Mr. John Pruden, should be equally levied on every person's Estate; and it was agreed with a unanimous Consent, that it should be so.

2ndly, It was also voted, that the Charge for the Payment and Transport should be Charged by a Rate, according to our Agreement formerly made, that is by Heads, Lands, and Stock. 3rdly, It was voted that Mr. Johnson and Jasper Crane should give Mr. Pruden Possession of the Accomo'dations that was purchased of Mrs. Falkoner.

It was also voted, that Zachariah and Ephraim Burwell, for the South end of our Town, and Samuel Harrison and Nathaniel Ward for the North end, for to see after the bringing the Wood for Mr. Pruden; and for to call out the People for that Purpose, when there is need for his Supply therein.

Town Meeting, - - - 16—Benjamin Baldwin, Jabez Rogers, William Camp and Seth Tompkins are chosen, to collect the Money that is gathered by the Subscriptions in Newark, for the Maintaineance of the Ministry in the year 1692.

He accepted the call to Newark and left Jamaica, becoming pastor at the former place, August 23, 1692. On or before June 9, 1699, he resigned the Newark pastorate.

Town Meeting, * June 9th, 1699—Item—the Revered Mr. Pruden and Mr. John Brown are chosen by vote, to return our Thanks to the Revered Counsel for their faithfull and painfull Services for our Settlement; signifying we will take sufficient Care to defray the whole Charge of this their Journey and Trouble, till they return.

Item—Capt. Curtis, Mr. Treat, Mr. Pierson, and Thomas Richards are chosen by a full vote, to return our Thanks to the Revered Mr. Pruden for his hitherto Services amongst us; with a signification that We will speedily pay of our Arrears due to him by our particular Subscriptions: and by a full Vote we declare our Desire of his Continuance among us, and his Service at present in preaching the Word to us, till God shall favor us with some other Supply.

Item—it is agreed and voted, that we will allow him for his further Ministry according to what he formerly had, in Proportion to the Time We have occasion to use him as a Minister.

Item—it is voted, that all Persons, from 16 to 60 Years of Age, shall give to Mr. Pruden each of them one Load of Wood, for the Year ensuing, whether he serve the Town in the Ministry another Year, or no.

Item—Mr. Treat, Mr. Curtis, Mr. Pierson, and Thomas Richards are chosen by Vote, to desire Mr. Pruden to carry on the Work of the Ministry with us, till God shall favour us with a Supply.

After his resignation he devoted himself to teaching. Many of his scholars became prominent. In 1706 and after, he had for scholars Nat. and Sam. Dugles, David and Mary Ogden, Jos. and David Peck, John and Steph. Dod, The. and Eliph. Johnson, Nat. and Dan. Morris, Jos. and Steph. Harrison, Jos. and Phebe Brown, Sam. and Sim. Hnntingdon, Ben. Pierson, John Plum, Eben Lyon, Dan. Lindley, and others, night and day. Casperus Schuyler and Gerardus Beekman entered for board and school in 1707. In 1702 he sent to the weaver at Flushing "linen warp and woollen heft to be wrought into curtains." In 1712 John Conduit wove 31 yards of woollen cloth for him for 1£ 3s 6d—288 pounds of beef had from Jasper Crane, being worth 2£ 8s od.†

A deed is still preserved in possession of a descendant of Abraham Kitchel, dated May 5, 1713, and given by "John Prudden, quondam minister," conveying a tract in Newark to Abraham Kitchel, of Newark.‡

Rev. John Prudden died in 1725, and was buried in the old burying ground at Newark. Over his remains was placed a slab inscribed :

WHO DEPARTED THIS LIFE
DECBR 11TH 1725, AGED 80 YRS.

" NOR GRACE NOR FAVOUR FILL

In 1748 his body was removed to the rear of the First Presbyterian Church.

The original slab, having the above inscription, was placed in the walls of the First Presbyterian Church of Newark by Mr. William R. Alling, one of the descendants of Rev. John Prudden, where it still remains.

Joanna³ was the granddaughter of Rev. Peter Prudden^{1*} and his wife *Joanna Boyse*². He was born in Yorkshire, England, 1601, died at Milford, Ct., July 6, 1656. He preached in Yorkshire and Herefordshire and brought his congregation with him probably in the "Hector" or its consort the "Martin," landing at Boston June 26, 1637, with Rev. John Davenport, John Harvard, Samuel Eaton and other prominent Puritans. In March, 1638, he sailed from Boston and in April reached Quinnepiac, now New Haven, Conn., and assisted in laying the foundation of a Colony there. He preached his first sermon in the Colony at New Haven, 18th April, 1638, under a large spreading oak which stood near the present corner of George and College Streets, from the text†: "The voice of one crying in the wilderness, prepare ye the way of the Lord and make His paths straight." In the summer of 1638 he preached at Weathersfield. In February, 1639, land for a new settlement was purchased from the Indians, and later Milford was founded. He was one of the "Seven Pillars of Wepanwang or Milford," and one of the Judges of the Colony, 1640, as shown below :

The first general or town meeting of the planters was held November 20, 1639. It was then determined that the power of electing officers and persons to divide the land into lots and take order for the timber and manage the interests of the plantation should be in the church only. It was also agreed that they should guide themselves in all their doings by the written word of God as they had light from it.

William Fowler, Esq., Edmund Tapp, Esq., Zachariah Whitman, Deacon John Atwood and Richard Miles were then chosen for Judges in all civil affairs and to try all causes between man and man as a Court, to punish any offences and sin against the commandments therein, till a body of laws shall be established they are to observe and apply themselves to the rule of the written word of God.

This Court was to sit once in six weeks and was authorized to call a general meeting or Court of the planters, to examine witnesses upon oath and to punish all misdemeanors. These five men were invested by the planters with powers in the place of magistracy for the public good according to the tenor of the writing and agreement to that purpose.

About twelve months after, November 24, 1640, Mr. John Sherman was chosen one of the Judges in the room of Mr. Miles. The next year the Rev. Mr.

Prudden was elected one of them in the place of Mr. Atwood. The following May 27, 1641, Mr. Prudden excused himself from serving any longer in the capacity of Magistrate and Mr. Atwood was re-elected.*

It was not until April 8, 1640, that Mr. Prudden was ordained pastor of the Milford Church. We have his own words for it, in his own handwriting, in which the early Milford records were kept.

I, Peter Prudden, was called to the office of pastor of this church and ordained at New Haven, by Zachariah Whitman, William Fowler, Edmund Tapp, designed by ye church to that work, Zachariah Whitman being the moderator for that meeting in a day of solemn humiliation upon ye third Wednesday in April, 1640, being, I remember, ye 18th day of ye month.†

The following tribute is paid to his memory by Cotton Mather:‡

That greatest of peace-makers, the Son of God, has assured us, "Blessed are the peace-makers, for they shall be called the children of God." I am sure then, 'tis a blessed child of God whose name is now before us; (Prudden shall we call him? or, Prudent?), who, besides his other excellent qualities, was noted for a singular faculty to sweeten, compose and qualify exasperated spirits and stop or heal all contentions. Whence it was that his town of Milford enjoyed peace with truth all his days, notwithstanding some dispositions to variance, which afterwards broke forth among them.

God had marvellously blessed his ministry in England, unto many about Herefordshire and near Wales, from whence, when he came into New England, there came therefore many considerable persons with him.

At their arrival in this country, they were so mindful of their business here, that they gathered churches before they had erected houses for the churches to meet in. There were then two famous churches gathered at New Haven; gathered in two days, one following upon the other, Mr. Davenport's and Mr. Prudden's; and this with one singular circumstance, that a mighty barn was the place, wherein the duties of that solemnity were attended. Our glorious Lord Jesus Christ himself being born in a stable and laid in one of those moveable and four-squared little vessels wherein they brought meat unto the cattle, it was the more allowable that a church, which is the mystical body of that Lord, should thus be born in a barn. And in this translation, I behold our Lord, "with his fan in his hand, purging his floor, and gathering her wheat into the garner."

That holy man, Mr. Philip Henry, being reproached by his persecutors that his meeting-place had been a barn, pleasantly answered, "No new thing, to turn a thrashing-floor into a temple." So did our Christians at New Haven.

The next year Mr. Prudden, with his church, removed unto Milford, where he lived many years, an example of piety, gravity, and boiling zeal, against the growing evils of the times.

And though he had a numerous family, yet such was his discretion, that without much distraction, he provided comfortably for them, notwithstanding the difficult circumstances wherewith an infant plantation was incumbered.

He continued an able and faithful servant of the churches, until about the fifty-sixth year of his own age, and the fifty-sixth of the present age, when his death was felt by the colony as the fall of a pillar which made the whole fabrick to shake.

Like that of Piccart, now let our Prudden lie under this

Gov. Winthrop said of him: "He was useful in his place, and of much esteem in the Colony." Mr. Prudden, with other settlers, left large estates in England. His posterity received the interest money and rent of this property for many years.

On the occasion of the celebration of the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the town of Milford, Conn., on August 28th, 1889, there was dedicated a memorial bridge over the river at that point, in honor of its founders. One of the end stones on the south parapet is inscribed to the first pastor of the church, Rev. Peter Prudden. On August 25th, the two-hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the First Church of Christ, of Milford, Ct., a mural tablet was unveiled to the memory of Rev. Peter Prudden.

In the Memorial Hall at Hartford, Conn., among the members of the early clerical fathers of Connecticut are selected three for special honors in a memorial window—Hooker, Davenport and Prudden.

*Joanna Boyse*² was the daughter of Rev. John Boyse and his wife Johane —, of Halifax, Yorkshire, England. *Rev. John Boyse*¹ died, as indicated by his will, about 1620, and his wife, Johane, about 1631, as shown by her will. One of Joanna Boyse's sisters was the wife of Rev. John Raynor, pastor of the Church of Plymouth, Mass., from 1637 to 1655, and later of Dover, N. H. It is not known when she married Rev. Peter Prudden, but various indications point to about 1638, and that the marriage took place in this country. Her father was a man of estate. In her will, dated 1681, November 8th, she mentions two sons and five daughters, all of the name Prudden. She was one of four coheiresses to property in Edgton and Welburn. After the death of her husband she married, September 20, 1671, Capt. Thomas Willett,* died August 4, 1674, who was the first Mayor of New York. Later she became the wife of Rev. John Bishop, for fifty years pastor of the church at Stamford, Conn.

THE MEMORIAL, TOMBSTONE OF REV. PETER PRUDDEN, MILFORD, CONN.
[Copyright, 1901, by Lillian E. Prudden.]

TOMBSTONE OF REV. JOHN PRUDDEN, FIRST PRESBYTERIAN
CHURCHYARD, NEWARK, N. J.

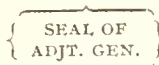

1069. Capt. John Moore⁴ (Nathaniel³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Keziah Phillips⁶ (Theophilus⁵, m. Elizabeth Betts³ (Richard², Capt. Richard¹), Theophilus⁴, Theophilus³, m. Elizabeth Jessup (Edward, m. Elizabeth Burroughs), Zerubabel², Rev. George¹, Christopher).

Capt. John Moore⁴ owned the farm which eventually became the property of his granddaughter, Rebecca, the daughter of his son Amos, who married Aaron Hart, Senior.

In the troubles during, and subsequent to, the French and Indian war, Capt. John Moore took part. The only record discovered, however, is the following :

State of New Jersey.
Office of Adjutant General.
Trenton, July 23, 1895.

It is Certified, That the records of this office show that JOHN MOORE, was enrolled March 26, 1762, as a Private in Colonel* Samuel Hunt's Company, Colonel* Samuel Hunt's Regiment, which was raised in the Province of New Jersey in 1762, for the FRENCH AND INDIAN WAR.

WILLIAM S. STRYKER.
Adjutant General.

Whether his title was an official one, or only of courtesy, cannot be determined from any records known to be extant.

In the inventory and settlement of the estate of Joseph Moore, Sr., of Hopewell, John Moore is styled Captain. The date of the discharge of the executors is February 14, 1760, two years before the date of the above certificate.

The following is the will of Capt. John Moore :

The will of Theophilus³, 1688, is appended :*

In the name of God, Amen.

This three & twentyeth day of January in the year of our Lord God one thousand six hundred eighty & eight.

THEOPHILOS PHILLIPS of Newtowne in Queens County on Long Island in the province of New Yorke in America being in perfect memory in sound & whole mind, God the giver of all good gifts be praised, considering that it is appointed for all men once to dye & that the time when it shall please God to call man out of this miserable world is uncertaine, wherefore not willing to depart this transient life intestate, revoking & clearly abrogating all former wills & testaments & making this my last will & testament.

First & before all things I commend my soul into the hands of the Almighty God & Merciful Father, Then first I will & require that all my just debts shall be paid, then I give unto my loving wife, Elizabeth the one half of the moveables within doors and the third part of the moveables without doors, then I doe order that my negros shall live with my wife ten years & then to returne to my son Theophilus, then I will that my wife shall enjoy the house & land soe long as she remains a widow or that she pleases to live with my children, viz; during the time of her widowhood. Then I will and require that my son Theophilus shall have my house & land that my dwelling house stands upon & the land that the barn stands upon running from the Hill to Jonathan Hazard's land & the third part of the meadow in Smith's meadow. Then I bequeath unto my son Theophilus six acres of woodland bounded on two sides by Jeremiah Burroughs his land & a piece of meadow at the head of the Kills.

Then I bequeath unto my two sons, viz; William & Phillip all the rest of my land to be equally divided between them. Then I bequeath unto my son William a piece of meadow at South lying on the south side of Long Neck joyning to Edward Hunts meadow. Then I bequeath unto my son William one third part of my meadow in Smiths Meadow. Then I bequeath the one third part of my meadow in Smiths Meadow to my son Phillip & one piece of meadow at south lying at the east end of long neck with half the right that shall appeare, the other half right that may appeare to my son William. Then I bequeath unto my daughter Hannah one feather bed. Then I bequeath the other half of my moveables to be equally divided between my daughters Hannah, Elizabeth & Mary & my child that is not yet borne whether it be a son or a daughter. Then I bequeath unto my two youngest children seen & the third that is not seen to each of them one cow. Then I bequeath unto my wife the bed whereon I lye with the furniture belonging to it & that in part of her half of the moveables. Then I bequeath to my daughter Anna the furniture belonging to the bed which I gave her. Then I bequeath to my daughter Anna one three year old heifer. Then I will that when the negros come to return to my son Theophilus at the expiration of ten yeares that he shall pay within one yeare after unto the rest of my children three pound apiece beginning at the eldest first soe paying yearly three pound. Then I bequeath the rest of the moveables within doors unto my three sons, viz; Theophilus, William & Phillip. Then my will is that if the Towne will be so kind as they have partly promised to give me a quantity of land I bequeath it unto my child that is not yet borne if it lives, if not I would have it divided between my three daughters as witness my hand and seal the day & year above written.

Theophilus Phillips, L.S.

Signed & Sealed in the pressence of us
Daniell Phillips,
George Wood.

Then my will is that my wife & my son Theophilus shall administer upon the estate & she to keep her power during her widowhood & my desire that my children shall live together if they agree, if not I desire that father Townsend & brother Joseph Phillips & brother Edward Hunt & brother John Hunt shall look after them & pnt them out to a trade, viz; the two youngest William & Phillip or either of them it is to be understood that the six acres of woodland that I gave to my son Theophilus lyes on the west side of my land.

Then I give unto my son Theophilus my longest gun and biggest sword & my buff coate. Then I bequeath my short gun & rapier to my son William, Jt. I bequeath all the corn within doors & without for the use of the family as witness my hand the day & year within mentioned.

Signed & sealed in the sight & presence of us Theophilus Phillips L.S.
Daniell Phillips,
George Wood

This eighteenth day of February 1688-9 these appeared before me George Wood & Daniell Phillips & testified upon oath that they saw the within mentioned Theophilus Phillips, deceased affix his hand & seale to both these within mentioned writings.

Ralph Hunt's wife *Elizabeth Jessup*² was the daughter of *Edward Jessup*¹, who came from Yorkshire, England, prior to 1649, belonged to the Broom Hall family of the name living near Sheffield, England, was one of the first settlers of Stamford, Conn., afterward of Newtown, L. I., and one of the two original patentees of West Farms, N. Y., where he was a magistrate, and died in 1666 (will). He married Elizabeth Burroughs, sister of John, of Newtown* came to Newtown in 1652, was nominated as magistrate, not confirmed by Directors and Council, 1653 deputy to Boston, September 15, 1655 present at New Amsterdam on the night of the battle with the Indians, 1656 "Indian Rate" £4, January 15, 1657 applied for "the liberty of the aforesaid creek (Wessel's Creek) to build a mill," 1659-62 magistrate under the Dutch, March 13, 1662 empowered to levy a tax of five stivers on the acre to pay town debt, July 7, 1662 appointed to wait upon the Director in reference to tithes, September, 1663 went to Westchester for company to beat arms against the Dutch, 1663 denounced as traitor by the Dutch, and 1665 deputy from Westchester County to convention which formulated the Duke's Laws.†

Elizabeth Burroughs and John Burroughs, says Dr. Cooley,‡ are "most probably of the family of Rev. Jeremiah Burroughs," a Westminster divine, who preached at Stepney and Cripplegate, a graduate of Cambridge, a learned man, and the author of twenty-five works, who died November 14, 1646, aged 46.

Keziah Phillips⁶ was the great-great-granddaughter of *Zerubabel Phillips*², who was born at Watertown, Mass., April 6, 1632, and died on Long Island, 1687. He removed from Massachusetts to Southampton, L. I., where he is found upon the tax list in 1657 as Ensign and head of a family. "July 12, 1662, Sorobabell Phillips marked a 3-year old horse with a hapeny under the off ear and J. C. on the far shoulder, being a blackish brown and sould it prsently to Isacke hedges, brought up by Jeremy mechin and George Miller."§ In the same year he was Ensign, and in 1668 and 1669 was Lieutenant of Militia. His name appears in 1668 on the occasion of the reception given to Governor Lovelace. July 4, 1672, he was granted a license for a house of entertainment in Southampton, L. I. In 1683, on his report of the taxables, he signs himself Constable. He appears to have been married three times. His first wife's name is unknown, his second, to whom he was married in 1663, was Ann White, widow of John White. In 1687 he was married to Martha Herrick, daughter of James.

Keziah Phillips⁶ was the great-great-great-granddaughter of *Rev. George Phillips*¹, sometimes called "the founder of Congregationalism in America," was born in Rainham, Norfolk County, England, in 1593, and died at Watertown, Mass., July 1, 1644. He was originally minister of the established church* in Boxted, Essex County, England, was a non-conformist; he received his B.A. at Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge, in 1613, and his A.M. in 1617. He left England, April 12, 1630, and came to America in the Arbella with Gov. Winthrop, arriving at Salem, Mass., June 12, 1630, and was one of the founders of Bay Colony. He became the first pastor of the Watertown Church July, 1630. At one time he was a member of the Governor's Council. It is said that "he was the first to bring about the institution of a representative government." He was the ancestor of a distinguished body of men, notably, of John Phillips, first Mayor of Boston, of Lieutenant-Governor Phillips, of Massachusetts, of Samuel and John Phillips, founders of the Phillips Academies at Exeter and Andover, of Edward, the benefactor of Harvard, of Wendell, the great American orator, of Phillips Brooks, late Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Cotton Mather in his Magnalia† thus eulogizes him:

THE LIFE OF MR. GEORGE PHILIPS.

Vita Ministri est Censura et Cynosura.

Not only the common sign-posts of every town, but also some famous orders of knight-hood in the most famous nations of Europe, have entertained us with traditions of a certain champion, by the name of St. GEORGE dignified and distinguished. Now, whilst many do, with Calvin, reckon this notable St. George, with his brother, St. Kit, among the larvae and fables of the romantic monks, others from the honourable mention of him in so many liturgies, do think there might be such a man; but then he must be no other, neither better nor worse, in the most probable opinion of Rainolds, than George the Arrian bishop of Alexandria, the antagonist and adversary of Athanasius; of this memorable trooper, the Arrians feigned miracles, and with certain disguises imposed the fame of him upon the orthodox. But the churches of New England being wholly unconcerned with any such a St. George, and wishing that they had been less concerned with many Quakers, whose chief apostles have been so many of them called Georges, but in effect so many dragons, there was one George who was indeed among the first saints of New England! and that excellent man of our land was Mr. George Philips.

He was born at Raymund,* in the county of Norfolk; descended of honest parents, who were encouraged by his great proficiency at the grammar school to send him unto the university, where his good invention, strong memory, and solid judgment, with the blessing of God upon all attained a degree of learning that may be called eminent. The diligent reading of the fathers, while he was yet himself among young men, was one of the things that gave a special ornament unto that skill in theology, whereto he attained; but that which yet further fitted him to become a divine, was his being "made partaker of the divine nature," by the sanctification of all his abilities for the service of God, in a true regeneration.

Devoting himself to the work of the ministry, his employment befel him at Boxford, in Essex; whereof he found much acceptance with good men; as being a man "mighty in the scriptures." But his acquaintance with the writings and persons of some old non-conformists had instilled into him such principles about church-government, as were like to make him unacceptable unto some who then drove the world before them. Some of these principles he had intimated in his publick preaching, whereupon some of his unsatisfied hearers repaired unto old Mr. Rogers, of Dedham, with some intimations of their dissatisfaction. But Mr. Rogers, although he had not much studied the controversy, yet had so high a respect for Mr. Philips, that he said, he "believed Mr. Philips would preach nothing without some good evidence for it from the word of God, and therefore they should be willing to regard whatever Mr. Philips might, from that word, make evident unto them." And as for Mr. Philips, the more he was put upon the study and searching of the truth, in the matter controverted, the more he was confirmed in his own opinion of it.

When the spirit of persecution did at length, with the extremest violence, urge a conformity to ways and parts of divine worship, conscientiously scrupled by such persons as our Mr. Philips, he, with many more of his neighbors, entertained thoughts of transporting themselves and their families into the deserts of America, to prosecute and propagate the glorious designs of the gospel, and spread the light of it in those "goings down of the sun," and being resolved accordingly to accompany the excellent Mr. Winthrop in that undertaking, he, with many other devout Christians, embarked for New England, where they arrived in the year 1630, through the good hand of God upon them. Here, quickly after his landing, he lost the desire of his eyes, in the death of his desirable consort, who, though an only child, had cheerfully left her parents, to serve the Lord Jesus Christ with her husband in a terrible wilderness. At Salem she died, entering into the everlasting peace, and was very solemnly interred near the Right Honorable the Lady Arabella, the sister of the Earl of Lincoln, who also took New England in her way to heaven.

Mr. Philips, with several gentlemen and other Christians, having chosen a place upon Charles River for a town, which they called Water-Town, they resolved that they would combine into a church-fellowship there, as their first work, and build the house of God before they could build many houses for themselves; thus they "sought, first, the kingdom of God!" And, indeed, Mr. Philips being better acquainted with the true church discipline than most of the ministers that came with him into the country, their proceedings about the gathering and ordering of their church, were methodical enough, though not made in all things a pattern for all the rest. Upon a day set apart for solemn fasting and prayer, the very next month after they came ashore, they entered into this holy covenant.

"July 30, 1630.

"We whose names are hereto subscribed, having through God's mercy escaped out of pollutions of the world, and been taken into the society of his people, with all thankfulness do hereby both with heart and hand acknowledge, that his gracious goodness and fatherly care towards us, and for further and more full declaration thereof, to the present and future ages, have undertaken (for the promoting of his glory and the church's good, and the honour of our blessed Jesus, in our more full and free subjecting of our selves and ours, under his gracious government, in the practice of, and obedience unto all his holy ordinances and orders, which he hath pleased to prescribe and impose upon us), a long and hazardous voyage from east to west from Old England in Europe, to New-England in America; that we may walk before him, and 'serve him without fear in holiness and righteousness, all the days of our lives,' and being safely arrived here and thus far onwards peaceably preserved by his special providence, that we may bring forth our intentions into actions, and perfect our resolutions, in the beginnings of some just and meet executions; we have separated the day above written from all other services, and dedicated it wholly to the Lord in divine employments, for a day of afflicting our souls and humbling ourselves before the Lord, to seek him, and at his hands, a way to walk in, by fasting and prayer, that we might know what was good in his sight: and the Lord was intreated of us.

"For in the end of that day, after the finishing of our publick duties, we do all, before we depart, solemnly and with all our hearts, personally, man by man for our selves and ours

* Savage says St. Martins, Raynham.

(charging them before Christ and his elect angels, even them that are not here with us this day, or are yet unborn, that they keep the promise unblameably and faithfully unto the coming of our Lord Jesus) promise, and enter into a sure covenant with the Lord our God, and before Him with one another, by oath and serious protestation made, to renounce all idolatry and superstition, will-worship, all human traditions and inventions whatsoever, in the worship of God; and forsaking all evil ways, do give our selves wholly unto the Lord Jesus, to do him faithful service, observing and keeping all his statutes, commands and ordinances, in all matters concerning our reformation; his worship, administrations, ministry, and government; and in the carriage of ourselves among ourselves and one towards another, as he hath prescribed in his holy word. Further swearing to cleave unto that alone, and the true sense and meaning thereof to the utmost of our power, as unto the most clear light and infallible rule, and all-sufficient canon, in all things that concern us in this our way. In witness of all, we do ex-animo, and in the presence of God, hereto set our names or marks, in the day and year above written."

About forty men, whereof the first was that excellent Knight Sir Richard Saltonstal, then subscribed this instrument, in order unto their coalescence into a church-estate, which I have the more particularly recited, because it was one of the first ecclesiastical transactions of this nature managed in the colony. But in after time, they that joined unto the church, subscribed a form of the covenant, somewhat altered, with a "confession of faith" annexed unto it.

A church of believers being thus gathered at Watertown, this reverend man continued for divers years among them, faithfully discharging the duties of his ministry to the "flock, whereof he was made the overseer;" and as a "faithful steward giving to every one their meat in due season." Herein he demonstrated himself to be a real divine; but not in any thing more than in his most intimate acquaintance with the divine oracles of the Scripture; being fully of Jerom's persuasion, Ama Scientiam Scripturarum, et Vitia Carnis non amabis. He had so thoroughly perused and pondered them, that he was able on the sudden to turn unto any text, without the help of Concordances; and they were so much his delight, that as it has been by some of his family affirmed, "he read over the whole Bible six times every year:" nevertheless he did use to say, "That every time he read the Bible, he observed or collected something, which he never did before." There was a famous prince of Transylvania, who found the time to read over the Bible no less than twenty-seven times. There was a famous King of Arragon, who read over the Bible fourteen times, with Lyra's Commentaries. A religious person, who was a close prisoner in a dark dungeon, having a candle brought him, for the few minutes in the day when his poor meals were to be eaten, chose then to read a little of his Bible, and eat his necessary food when the candle was gone. Yea, the Emperour Theodosius wrote out the New Testament with his own hand; and Bonaventure did as much by the Old; and some have, like Zuingle and Beza, lodged vast paragraphs of it in the memories. Among such memorable students in the Scriptures, our Philips deserves to have some remembrance: who was fully of the opinion expressed by Luther, "If the letters of Princes are to be read three times over, surely then God's letters (as Gregory calls the Scriptures) are to be read seven times thrice, yea seventy times seven, and, if it could be, a thousand times over;" and he might say with Ridley, giving an account of how much of the Bible he had learnt by heart, "Though in time a great part of the study departed from me, yet the sweet smell thereof, I trust, I shall carry with me to heaven." Indeed being well skilled in the original tongues, he could see further into the Scriptures than most other men and thereby being "made wise unto salvation," he also became "a man of God, thoroughly furnished unto all good works."

Hence also he became an able disputant, and ready upon all occasions to maintain what he delivered from the word of God, for which cause his hearers counted him, "the irrefragable Doctor," though he were so humble and modest, as to be very averse unto disputation, until driven thereto by extremity necessity. One of his hearers after some conference with him about infant-baptism, and several points of church-discipline, obtained a copy of the arguments in writing for his further satisfaction. This copy the man sends over to England, which an Anabaptist there published with a pretended confutation; whereby the truth lost nothing, for Mr. Philips hereupon published a judicious treatise, entitled, "A Vindication of Infant-Baptism," whereto there is added another, "Of the Church." This book was honorably received and mentioned, by the eminent assembly of London ministers; and a preface full of honour was thereto prefixed by the famous Mr. Thomas Shepard; notwithstanding the difference between him and Mr. Philips, upon one or two points, whereabout those two learned neighbors managed a controversy with so much reason, and yet candor and kindness, that if all theological controversies had been so handled, we need not so much wish, Liberari ab Implacabilibus Theologorum Odiis.

About fourteen years continued he in his ministry at Watertown, in which time his ministry was blessed for the conversion of many unto God, and for the edification and confirmation of many that were converted. He was, indeed, "a good man, and full of faith, and of the Holy Ghost: and for that cause he was not only in publick, but in private also, very full of holy discourse on all occasions; especially on the Lord's day at noon, the time intervening between the two exercises, he would spend in conferring with such of his good people as resorted unto his house, at such a rate as marvellously ministered grace unto the hearers; not wanting any time then, as it seems, for any further preparations than what he had still afore-hand made for the publick sermons of the afternoon.

He laboured under many bodily infirmities: but was especially liable unto the cholick, the extremity of one fit whereof, was the wind which carried him afore it into the haven of eternal rest, on July 1, in the year 1644, much desired and lamented by his church at Watertown, who testified their affection to their deceased pastor by a special care to promote and perfect the education of his eldest son, whereof all the country, but especially the town of Rowly, have since reaped the benefit.

EPETAPHIUM.

Hic Jacet Georgius Philippi.

Vir Incomparabilis, nisi Samuelem genuisset.

Tradition says that the old house on the Watertown road, opposite the ancient burial ground, was the residence of the Rev. George Phillips. This house has been somewhat modernized in its external appearance. According to the old style, the second story projected over the first, but that has been made into a modern piazza. The interior retains many marks of its antiquity. By a record in "Prince's Annals," Mr. Phillips's first house was built in 1630, and this was probably his second house built on the parsonage lot. It stands back from the road, and still makes a very respectable appearance.*

Rev. George Phillips's first wife, Elizabeth Sargeant, died shortly after his arrival in America. His second wife was probably the widow of Capt. Robert Weldon; she died June 27, 1681.

Keziah Phillips⁶ was the great-great-great-great-granddaughter of Christopher Phillips, who was born about 1560 and lived at St. Martin's, Raymund, Norfolk County, England, neighbor of Sir Roger Townsend, Baronet, the ancestor of Elizabeth Townsend who was the third wife of Theophilus Phillips³, "a gentleman of moderate fortune."

Nathaniel Moore⁵ lived at a place six miles from Trenton and two from Pennington. During or after the Revolution he removed to Trenton, residing on Calhoun Street.‡ He owned Beatty's Ferry. Adjutant General Stryker later owned and occupied this property. During the war he was Sergeant§ of Capt. Hoppock's Company of the Third Regiment, Hunterdon County. The following loss which he suffered is on record :

In the proceedings of the New Jersey Historical Society†† the following interesting letters are found :

Mr. Beesley presented, with the Box, its history as written by his father-in-law, Mr. Amos C. Moore, in 1849, as follows :

This Tobacco Box‡‡ formerly belonged to one of the Hessians captured by General Washington at Trenton on the memorable morning of the 26th, December, 1776. After the battle, some of the Hessians were allotted to different families in the town, and among the rest eight of them were placed with my father, Nathaniel Moore, for whose kind treatment when they left, one of them presented him with this Tobacco Box, stating it was all he had to give and expressed regret that he had nothing of more value to offer. It was received by him and kept as a memento until his death in 1798, since which time a period of fifty one years it has been in the possession of the subscriber, his son. My father kept the ferry at Lambertton for many years, during and after the Revolution, and I recollect when General Washington crossed the river on his way to New York, in 1789, to be inaugurated, my father had his ferry boat tastefully decorated with an arch of evergreens at each end. I was then a boy about thirteen years of age and immediately after crossing, he with a number of gentlemen and officers among whom were Generals Mifflin, Proctor, Patterson, Col. Wray, Col. Hooper and General Philemon Dickinson mounted on horses and proceeded to Trenton Bridge on the Assanpink, where the grand civic arch was erected and where the matrons and their daughters dressed in white were in readiness to receive him. I had followed on after the cavalcade and as soon as the General came up to the arch he stopped his horse and remained uncovered until the ode was sung, when he acknowledged the compliment briefly and passed onward, the matrons and misses strewing his way with flowers. The words of the ode are a matter of history. I still have a distinct recollection of them.

Dr. Beesley says in addition :

Mrs. Sarah Hand sister of Amos C. Moore, who signed the within paper, was one of the thirteen misses who were dressed in white and sung the ode and threw flowers in the path of Washington in his passage over the Assanpink Bridge in 1789. She is still living at Cape May Court House with her son, Jonathan Hand, Esq., County Clerk, has a vivid recollection of the scene at the Assanpink, is now in her 87th year and is probably the only person living who was present upon that interesting and memorable occasion.

Nathaniel Moore⁵ died intestate in 1798 and his son Cornelius was made administrator the same year on April 21.

Nothing has been learned of Eleanor Van Brunt, except that Mrs. Sarah Ellen Husted says that her Grandmother Hand used to sing Dutch songs to her which she had learned of her mother, that Eleanor came to this country from Germany (Holland?) when she was twelve years old and lived in Trenton until she married Nathaniel Moore.

1090. John Moore⁶ (Nathaniel⁵, m. Eleanor Van Brunt, Capt. John⁴, Nathaniel³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Hannah Price.

The following sketch was written by Maj. John Moore Orr, of Leesburg, Loudoun Co., Va.:

John Moore⁶ was my grandfather. He resided at No. 279 Race Street. I have but little personal knowledge of him prior to 1832. On the death of my mother, March 5, 1832, I again became one of his family and so continued until his death, February 12, 1834. Being then twelve years old, his character, bearing, and conduct made an indelible impression on my memory.

John Moore was in partnership with Timothy Caldwell. In person he was of fine physique, of commanding presence, of strong frame and most active life, of untiring industry and of great accuracy in figures, and in fact, whatever he did he conscientiously did well and thoroughly. He was a model of genuine manhood. He was endowed with a broad, clear, strong mind, of sound practical judgment and having the courage of his carefully considered opinion as to what was right. He was often chosen to arbitrate disputes, and his awards were accepted or submitted to because of the confidence in his strict integrity and sound judgment and sagacity.

If I am not mistaken, he was at one time a member of the City Councils. He had the confidence of all who knew him and he never betrayed it. His word was literally as good as his bond.

He was bright and cheerful and his presence was a home happiness. The mutual bearing of himself and wife was beautiful. His help was always ready to be given to the needy and the deserving. He was just and charitable in thought and word. He was a humane man, merciful to his beast. On one occasion he had to go out of town on a raw windy day, and finding that the top of his gig gathered the wind and made it hard for his horse, he put the top down and rode exposed to the cold. The consequence was a cold which developed into a throat affection which ended his life in 1834, in his 69th year.

His wife survived him but a short time, dying in 1835. They were buried beside each other in the lot fronting on Arch Street belonging to the Second Presbyterian Church on which lot stood the Church "Session House." Their remains were afterward removed to Laurel Hill Cemetery or Woodlands. John Moore was at first an Episcopalian, but in later life he united with the Presbyterian denomination and was an active and consistent member and ruling elder in the Second Presbyterian Church. When the Rev. C. C. Cuyler, of New York State, was called to the pastorate of that congregation, he, by Mr. Moore's invitation, made his house his home, at 279 Race Street, until his family could come to Philadelphia and be settled in a residence. John Moore was a thorough Christian gentleman in every fiber of his being, an earnest, humble, cheerful Christian who loved his God with all his heart and mind and soul and strength and his neighbor as himself. Love to God and man was the motive and guide of his life and conduct. The Rev. Dr. Ashbel Green, of Philadelphia, the Patriarch of the Presbyterians, was his warm and intimate friend. Dr. Green's words on the occasion of his death, in commemoration of his excellences, are a monument to his memory and an honor worth living or dying for. Mr. Moore's portrait* was painted by Ord or Conano (I forget which). It is life-like and shows that he was every inch a man and a good man. He died without shadow of spot or blemish on his name. His descendants may well be proud of having such an ancestor.

John Barker Ellison, the founder of the widely known firm of John B. Ellison & Sons, was born in Philadelphia. Mr. Ellison received an excellent academic education at the well-known Westtown School. His taste developing in the direction of mercantile pursuits, he became in early years a confidential clerk with Benjamin Warner, a prominent publisher and bookseller of this city. In 1823 he established himself in the woolen business at the S.E. corner of Second and Market Streets, thus inaugurating a mercantile house which eventually developed into one of the most extensive of the numerous commercial features of this city. In after years his two sons, William P. and Rodman B., were admitted into partnership with him, and the firm became John B. Ellison & Sons. Under this name the business is still carried on. Members of the firm now comprise, in addition to those men, Henry Howard Ellison, William Rodman Ellison and John Barker Ellison, grandsons of the founder. The business of the house, established through the inflexible industry and unblemished integrity of John B. Ellison, has attained extended proportions, with branch offices in New York, Boston, Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Baltimore, London and Montreal. The quarters at Nos. 22, 24 and 26 South Sixth Street, extending through to Decatur Street, were erected by the firm in 1881. It is the oldest, and there is no wholesale woolen importing house in America more extensive in its operations. In addition to the great mercantile enterprise which he founded, Mr. Ellison was identified with several other institutions of high standing, of a financial as well as of a public character. Emphatic in the interest which he took in the affairs of government, as well as of party development, he ardently espoused the principles of the Republican party when it came into power in 1861, and was its earnest supporter and believer in the success of the Government in the War of the Rebellion. Mr. Ellison was a member of the Society of Friends, as were his ancestors for over a century. He was retiring in his disposition, and in an individual and quiet way, largely given to charitable deeds. In early life he took an active interest in the Philadelphia Society for the establishment and support of charity schools, incorporated in 1801. He was treasurer of the Society from January 5, 1841 to January 3, 1860, and at the time of his death, had been Chairman of the Board of Managers from January 11, 1860, and a member since January 6, 1829.*

"The loved and lost!
 God's unseen angel o'er our pathway crossed,
 Looked on us all, and loving her the most,
 Straightway relieved her from life's weary load; and has left us with hearts crushed and sorrowing, that we shall see her face no more—no more in life be greeted with her loving smile; never again hear that gentle voice, or clasp that hand always so ready to help the poor and needy. But as her one thought was love and gratitude to Him who gave her strength to bear all suffering, and whose 'rod and staff comforted her through the dark valley,' so let us, through our tears, thank Him that now

"No pain, no tears, no sorrow,
 Her gentle heart will borrow;
 Sad life is past;
 Shielded and safe from sorrow,
 At home at last;

and let One most loving of us all say, 'Not a tear on her must fall. He giveth his beloved sleep.' '*

in secret. Never unduly depressed nor exalted, she maintained a calm, unwavering confidence in the grace of Jesus Christ as sufficient for her, and was never disappointed. In spite of physical suffering her life was happy—not merely in the assurance of Divine love and the hope of glory, but in countless acts of beneficence by which she was ever seeking to illustrate her gratitude towards God, and her sympathy with all his children, especially with the humblest and poorest. Many knew her chiefly through these charitable services, which were always rendered so gracefully as not to offend the most delicate sensibility, and with such evident enjoyment on the part of the giver as to make the receivers feel that in their acceptance they were conferring a pleasure greater in value than the gifts. Those who were admitted to the nearer intercourse of her home-life—a home shared by one of kindred spirit with herself, and whose loving care for her never wearied in its watchfulness and devotion by night or day—while they found in it a singularly genial and refined hospitality, found also the source of all this kindness in the truly loving, sympathetic spirit which the gospel of Christ enjoins and the grace of Christ imparts. There could be no doubt as to His presence when the proofs of it were so various and abundant. She dearly and intelligently loved the church of which she was a member. Her heart was in its worship and its welfare, and her hand ever ready for its help. So often absent from its public ordinances as she was compelled to be, her love grew the stronger, her interest in it deeper, and the more earnestly she longed for the communion of the saints, and for the truth, on which she fed as on the finest of the wheat. To no one out of her immediate family can her memory be more precious than to the pastor, who owes so much to her sympathy and regard, and to her ready response to every call he might make on her heart or hand. Evidently growing more prepared, during the latter part of her life, for her removal, her end was but a peaceful falling asleep, in the confident assurance that all was well, and that she would awake to be satisfied in beholding the face of Him whom she had loved so sincerely and so long.*

X. J. Maynard had every quality requisite to command success and to insure respect in the business of life. His judgment was accurate, clear and discriminating, never perverted by passion, and aided by a deliberate self-possession. He had a mind remarkably well balanced, and a firmness and decision which nothing could daunt. He was a wise counselor, and a liberal, enterprising man of business; joined to these attributes he had a heart of almost womanly tenderness, ever ready to anticipate and care for the feelings and wants of others. In him strength and gentleness were blended into the manly proportions of a polished Christian gentleman. He was a man of consistent, humble piety. He so lived as to show that practical religion was in perfect harmony with every attribute of a manly character, and when he came to die he could trustingly rely on the promises of his Maker, and calmly welcome death as a messenger of good. Though he lingered long in hourly expectation of his departure, he never murmured nor doubted, and finally he quietly breathed his last, leaving a name without spot or blemish, fragrant with the memory of good deeds and lovely qualities.*

1095. Sarah Moore⁶ (Nathaniel⁶, m. Eleanor Van Brunt, Capt. John⁴, Nathaniel³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Stewart Wilson and Jonathan Hand⁵ (Jonathan⁴, Shamgar³, Shamgar², John¹).

Miss Sarah Moore⁶ was one of the thirteen young girls who represented the States and greeted General Washington as he passed under the triumphal arch on entering Trenton, April 21, 1789. The following contemporary accounts* are of interest :

Trenton, April 21.—This day we were honored with the presence of his Excellency the President of the United States of America on his way to New York. A troop of horse, commanded by Capt. Carle, and a company of infantry, commanded by Capt. Halon, completely equipped, and in full uniform, with a large concourse of the gentlemen and inhabitants of the town and neighbourhood, lined the Jersey bank of the Delaware, to hail the General's arrival. As soon as he set foot on shore, he was welcomed with three huzzas, which made the shores re-echo the cheerful sounds. After being saluted by the horse and infantry, he was escorted to town, in the following order : A detachment of the horse—The Light Infantry—His Excellency, on horseback, attended by Charles Thompson, Esq., and Col. Humphreys—The troop of horse—The gentlemen of the town and neighbourhood on horseback.†

When the procession arrived at the bridge south of the town, they were presented with a scene to which no description can do justice.

As Trenton had been rendered twice memorable during the war, once by the capture of the Hessians, and again by the repulse of the whole British army, in their attempt to cross the bridge over the Assanpinck Creek, the evening before the battle of Princeton—a plan was formed by a number of ladies, and carried into execution, solely under their direction, to testify to the General, by the celebration of those eventful actions, the grateful sense they retained of the safety and protection afforded by him to the daughters of New Jersey. For this purpose, a triumphal arch was raised on the bridge, about 20 feet wide, supported by 13 columns—the height of the arch to the center was equal to the width. Each column was entwined with wreaths of evergreen. The arch, which extended about twelve feet along the bridge, was covered with laurel, and decorated on the inside with laurel, running vines, and a variety of evergreens. On the front of the arch the following motto was inscribed in large gilt letters : “ The Defender of the mothers will also protect the daughters.” The upper and lower edges of this inscription were ornamented with wreaths of evergreen and artificial flowers of all kinds, made by the ladies for the occasion, beautifully interspersed. On the center of the arch, above the inscription, was a dome, or cupola, of artificial flowers and evergreens, encircling the dates of the glorious events which the whole was designed to celebrate, inscribed in large gilt letters. The summit of the dome displayed a large sunflower, which, always pointing to the sun, was designed to express this sentiment, or motto—“ To you alone”—as emblematic of the affections and hopes of the PEOPLE being directed to him, in the united suffrage of the millions of America.

A numerous train of ladies, leading their daughters, were assembled at the arch, thus to thank their Defender and Protector. As the General passed under the arch, he was addressed in the following SONATA, composed by Major Richard Howell, and set to music for the occasion, by a number of young ladies dressed in white, decked with wreaths and chaplets of flowers, and holding in their hands baskets filled with flowers :

WELCOME, mighty Chief ! once more,
Welcome to this grateful shore :
Now no mercenary foe
Aims again the fatal blow—
Aims at thee the fatal blow.

* Pennsylvania Magazine of History, October, 1895.

† Pennsylvania Packet, May 1.

Virgins fair and Matrons grave,
Those thy conquering arms did save,
Build for thee triumphal bowers.
Strew, ye fair, his way with flowers—
Strew your Hero's way with flowers.

As they sung these lines, they strewed the flowers before the General.

When his Excellency came opposite the little female band, he honored the ladies by stopping until the Sonata was finished. The scene was truly grand—universal silence prevailed—nothing was to be heard but the sweet notes of the songsters—and the mingled sentiments which crowded into the mind in the moments of solemn stillness during the song, bathed many cheeks with tears. The General most politely thanked the ladies for their attention, and the procession moved on to his lodgings.

A copy of the song taken from the lips of Mrs. Sarah Moore Hand is a cherished relic of the old times.

Jonathan Hand⁵, born November 15, 1780, died April 2, 1834, was Captain of the Independent Battalion in the War of 1812; he was appointed County Clerk of Cape May County, in 1831. He was the son of Jonathan Hand⁴, 1st, who served in the Colonial Assembly in 1769, 1771 to 1776, the grandson of Shamgar Hand³, who with his brother acquired large property interests in Cape May County in 1685, the great-grandson of Shamgar², who removed from Southampton, L. I., to Cape May, where he was as early as 1699, the great-great-grandson of John Hand¹, who came from Stanstete, Kent County, England, who was in Southampton, L. I., in 1644, and in 1648 helped to found Easthampton, and his wife, Alice, the sister of Josiah Stanborough.

WASHINGTON'S RECEPTION AT TRENTON.

This reproduction of a crude steel engraving is interesting because it shows what actually occurred when Washington was on his way to the inauguration ceremonies, which were to make him the first President of the United States.

From early life she devoted much of her time to deeds of charity and not only took an active and leading part in the organized charities of the city, but gave most generously to many private enterprises. Her benevolences were wide-spread, and many families were made happy and comfortable through her kindly efforts. No appeal for aid to her went unheeded. She was a member of the Board of Managers of the Children's Industrial Home, of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A., and also took an active interest in the Wells Memorial Hospital. She was an attendant at the Episcopal Church of St. John the Evangelist.*

and warm personal friend of Henry Clay. He was three times elected to the Legislature and, declining reelection, was appointed Prosecutor of the Pleas for Middlesex County on March 12, 1839, by Governor Pennington, and two years later Attorney-General of New Jersey, by the same Governor. During the three years in which he held this office, he acquitted himself with great credit in the midst of unusually arduous and harassing circumstances. He was an active member of the First Presbyterian Church of New Brunswick, N. J., was superintendent of the Sabbath-school and ruling elder. He was unaffectedly religious, cordial, winning and popular with all classes. He was the eldest son of Elias Molleson, a merchant of New Brunswick, N. J., a ruling elder of the First Church, who was born October 28, 1782, went to New Brunswick in 1798, married November 25, 1802, Sally Plum, daughter of George Plum, and died September 5, 1831. He was the grandson of Gilbert Molleson, of Piscataway, N. J., who is said to descend from Gilbert Molleson, of London, merchant, one of the Scotch proprietors of East Jersey.

Dr. James Hall Mason Knox, LL.D., was born in New York. His father was Dr. John Knox, for more than forty years senior pastor of the Collegiate Reformed Dutch Church, of New York, and his mother was the daughter of Dr. John M. Mason, the eminent Presbyterian divine.

He was graduated from Columbia College at the age of 17, and after a year's interval entered the theological seminary of the Dutch Reformed Church at New Brunswick, N. J., and was at the completion of his course ordained to the gospel ministry. Among other calls then received he accepted one from German Valley Church, of Newton Presbytery.

He remained at German Valley five years, when he removed to Easton, in response to a call from the Reformed Dutch Church of this city, Classis of New Brunswick. He remained here two years and was then succeeded by Dr. C. H. Edgar. His next church was the First Presbyterian, of Germantown, Pa., Second Presbytery of Philadelphia, now Presbytery of Philadelphia North. There he spent sixteen years. It was during his stay at Bristol the first Mrs. Knox died.

Dr. Knox afterward went to Bristol, Pa., leaving that charge at the end of ten years to accept, in November, 1883, the presidency of the faculty of Lafayette College, succeeding Dr. Cattell, whose work he successfully continued.

This office he filled until his resignation in 1890. He then spent two years in Europe and soon after took up his residence in Baltimore. He became a trustee of Lafayette College in 1863.

He filled many offices of trust in the Presbyterian Church, being known as an able counselor. He was specially interested in the effort to care for aged ministers, and personally superintended the starting of the Home at Perth Amboy where so many ministers and their wives have been comfortably provided for. For thirty-seven years an active trustee of Lafayette College, he rarely missed a meeting. It was perhaps twenty years ago that he interested the philanthropist, Daniel B. Fayerweather, in the college, this being accomplished through the kind intervention of Dr. Hitchcock, the acting president of the Union Theological Seminary. The beautiful structure standing between Martien and Powell Halls bears his name as a slight tribute to Mr. Fayerweather's generosity. The corresponding building at the western end of the campus bears the name of Dr. Knox.

His own alma mater, Columbia College, recognized his worth in conferring on him the degree of Doctor of Divinity in 1861, and that of Doctor of Laws in 1885. Dr. Knox left the college with more students than when he began his presidency, and in a much better financial state.

When he resigned his position as the head of Lafayette College, the Board of Trustees placed on record their high appreciation of him "as a Christian gentleman and bore witness that he had labored diligently, faithfully and earnestly to promote the best interests of the institution, and sincerely invoked the blessings of Almighty God upon him, in whatever position he may hereafter be placed."

Dr. Knox is well remembered for his impressive presence, his tall and graceful form, and his genial address. He was a specially graceful writer.

IN MEMORY OF ROBERT A. JOHNSTON.

At a meeting of the members of the Hamilton County Bar, held December 31st, 1888, the following report and resolutions were adopted :

The Cincinnati Bar meet to-day to mourn the decease of one of its most worthy and honored members, Judge Robert A. Johnston. In the full vigor of life his career of usefulness and honor has ceased. His presence among us, his kindly greetings, will be known no more forever. We, his brethren of the Bar, can bear testimony to his uniform courtesy, on and off the bench, his kind and considerate bearing to both old and young of the Bar, his unpretending manner and his adherence at all times, to what he considered the right. He has closed an honored life, justly meriting and cordially receiving the approbation of his fellow men. He graduated at Hanover College and at the Cincinnati Law School. He commenced the practice of law in Cincinnati in 1857. In 1864 he formed a partnership in the practice of law with his brother, John Johnston, and soon thereafter he volunteered in the hundred days service. Upon leaving the army he returned to the practice of his profession with his brother. In 1876 he was elected Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, which office he held two terms, or a period of ten years. The duties of his office as Judge he discharged with ability and integrity, to the satisfaction of the Bar and the community. By all he was regarded as a just, upright and impartial Judge. In 1887, at the close of his judicial term, he returned to the practice of law, with his brother, and was so engaged at the time of his death. Judge Johnston was happy in his married life. His wife was a woman possessed of those gifts and graces that make a husband's home attractive and his family life a blessing and a joy—a woman of many acquirements and of rare mental gifts. She was a stay and support to her husband, in whose affairs she took an active interest, and she set for him the highest standard of honor and truth. To her wise counsel and loving heart he ever turned for guidance, aid and support. The members of the Bar knew his worth. He was noble in his manhood. His associates respected and esteemed him—they loved him.

Resolved, That the Bar, sorrowing at its own great loss, tenders to the family of Judge Johnston, its sympathy and condolence in their sad bereavement.

Resolved, That a copy of these proceedings, expressing the feelings of the Bar for their deceased brother, be forwarded to his family and also spread upon the minutes of the Court of Common Pleas.

1081. Amos Moore⁵ (Capt. John⁴, Nathaniel³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Ann Smith³ (Jonathan², Andrew¹) and Dorothy Hutchinson.

Amos Moore's⁵ name appears in the following document,* which was the result of the incorporation of the Hopewell Church :

* Hale's First Presbyterian Church of Hopewell, N. J., 107.

SEPTEMBER 30, 1786.

A number of members of the First Presbyterian Church, of the Township of Hopewell, met at the Meeting House in Pennington and proceeded to elect Trustees for sd church, at which time and place the following men were chosen, viz :

John Welling, Jr.,
John Smith, Esq.,
John P. Hunt,
Amos Moore,
Stephen Burrowes, Jr.,
Nathaniel Hart,
Hezekiah S. Woodruff.

Oct. 4th the abovesd Trustees met at Mr. Henry Baker's, in sd Township, at which time and place they each took and subscribed the oaths directed by an Act of Legislature made and provided for that purpose, and immediately proceeded to make choice of a President, when John Welling, Jr., was unanimously chosen to that office. And at the same time drew a certificate to certify the name of the church, which is as follows, viz :

We, the Subscribers, being duly elected agreeably to a Law in that case made and provided, do assume the name of

The Trustees of the First Presbyterian Church of the Township of Hopewell, in the county of Hunterdon, in the state of New Jersey.

Witness our hands and seals, this 4th day of October, 1786 :

John Welling, Jr.,
John Smith, Esq.,
Stephen Burrowes, Jr.,
Amos Moore,
John P. Hunt,
Nathaniel Hart,
Hezekiah S. Woodruff,

which certificate was recorded, October 5, A. D., 1786, in the Registry of Deeds, &c., for the County of Hunterdon, page 135.

Four hundred acres of land were surveyed for Amos Moore, July 1, 1784, in Northampton County, Penna.*

Ann Smith³ was the daughter of Jonathian Smith², and his wife, — Hixon, the granddaughter of Andrew Smith¹, a surveyor by profession. The naming† of this township (Hopewell) probably originated from the naming of his early purchase of land here, in date, so far as the records show, anterior to any other purchase for occupation. On the 20th of May, 1688, Cornelius Empson, of Brandywine Creek, sold to Andrew Smith two hundred acres, which tract the deed says: He, the said Empson, "doth enfeoff and confirm unto the said Andrew Smith heretofore laid forth in the county of Burlington aforesaid, and also settled upon, and by him, the said Andrew Smith, called and to be called, Hopewell."

Amos Moore⁵ and Ann Smith and Dorothy Hutchinson had

* * * * *

2076. Rebecca Moore⁶ (Amos⁵, Capt. John⁴, Nathaniel³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Aaron Hart (Joseph, Joseph).

Rebecca Moore⁶ inherited the property which belonged to her grandfather, Capt. John Moore⁴.

Aaron Hart was the son of Joseph, who died in 1794, and Frances, the daughter of Theophilus Phillips, the grandson of Joseph Hart, whose will is dated 1776, and — —. He and his brother John were the ancestors of the "White Harts."

1082. William Moore⁵ (Capt. John⁴, Nathaniel³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Mary Smith³ (Jonathan², Andrew¹).

William Moore⁵ was a private in Capt. Tucker's Company, First Regiment, Hunterdon County, N. J., in the Revolutionary War.

The compiler is inclined to think that this William Moore married, August 22, 1778, Mary Smith, the sister of Jonathan Smith, who married Mary Moore, the daughter of Samuel Moore⁴ (Nathaniel³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹), and removed to Sussex County, N. J. The only record found is in the will of his sister, Elizabeth Moore, who left a legacy of five pounds to his daughter, Elizabeth.

William Moore⁵ and Mary Smith had 1084. Keziah Moore⁵ (Capt. John⁴, Nathaniel³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and — Titus.

Keziah Moore's sister, Elizabeth⁵, in her will, mentions "daughters of her two sisters."

was left an orphan at the age of fourteen. In the stirring times of 1775 and 1776 he took an active part, and when the storm of war came he was a "Minute Man."* Samuel Moore⁶, son of the Revolutionary soldier, has frequently told the compiler of this genealogy that his father had been called out seventeen times, when acting in the capacity of a "Minute Man." It is not known what the occasions were. Living as he did in the part of New Jersey swept by the ravages of war, these years must have been exciting. Upon the dissolution of the battalions of "Minute Men," Samuel Moore⁵ joined Capt. John Mott's Company, First Regiment of Hunterdon County Militia. In 1781 he married his cousin, Sarah Green. One of the wedding presents on that occasion—a pewter platter—was used and misused for many years in the family of Samuel Moore⁶, the only son of this union. An old-fashioned iron platter with open-work raised border is also still in existence. This was the property of Sarah Green Moore. In 1782 they removed to the Forks of the Delaware.† He bought land on the south side of Northampton Street, and built a stone house, a part of which still stands. Easton as a residence could not have been very comfortable. The first house built in Easton was that of David Martin, in 1739; in 1752 there were only 11 families in the town, 40 persons; the Court House was finished in 1766; in 1763, there were 11 houses; in 1773, 69 houses; in 1782, when Samuel Moore arrived, there were 85; as late as 1795 there were only 150 houses. The Penns still held land in Easton in 1800, as may be seen by an examination of the old deeds in the possession of the family. In 1783 a census showed that there were 104 cows, 25 horses, about 200 sheep and perhaps 200 hogs.‡ The pigs were allowed to run abroad and wallow in the mud in the pond, on what is now North Third Street. The friends at Trenton spoke of the family as those who had gone to "The New Country." The houses were mostly log and only one story high; there was therefore naturally great surprise manifested when Samuel Moore built his "New Mansion" on Northampton Street. In those early times carpets were unknown and the floors were covered with clean white sand in which various designs were worked with a stick. The first "rag carpet" was laid, in Easton, in this old house, and it was the occasion of much delight and surprise to the neighboring housewives who had never seen one. The samples of cut glass, silverware and mahogany furniture which are prized as relics by their descendants show that the style of living of our ancestors was not nearly so simple as we are apt to imagine. In an old account book the following prices are noted in 1797: One clock case cost £11 5s, another, £7, another, £5 5s. A bedstead was billed at £5 5s in 1795, a dining table at £3, a chest of drawers at £5 15s, a bureau at £5 5s and a coffin at £6. Samuel Moore was evidently a man of means. Besides building the stone house, he bought the Easton Ferry, the most valuable piece of property in this section. The Easton Ferry§ was established by David Martin, in 1735. In 1755 it was owned by Nathaniel Vernon. In 1762 it was the property of Daniel Broadhead and Lewis Gordon. In 1782 it was run by Jacob Able. It was worth 555 pounds. It was bought by Samuel Moore later.* It was run by his widow after his death, in 1799; the ferryman was Robert Youells. At some time it was the property of Moore & Green, as shown by charges in an old shop blotter. He also owned the Ferry Hotel. He also did an extensive business in building and cabinet-making and had many men on his pay-roll. Several pieces of cabinet work, made in his shop, are still in the family, among them a small walnut chest, on the back of the cover of an inner compartment of which is: "This box was made in the year 1786," a small veneered box on the back of which is the name W. S. Kelley, who was a grandchild, an old-fashioned bureau, etc.

Upon the opening up of the Genesee Country, Samuel Moore went there to see what the prospects were. Upon his return he announced that he had purchased land enough to make his whole family very wealthy. He walked up Northampton Street, and in a few minutes was stricken with apoplexy, and died at the southeast corner of Centre Square. This land was said to be at Painted Post, N. Y., but after a thorough examination, no deed has been found. The following was discovered in the old clock—"Sam's Clock"—† which illustrates some of the land transactions of that day :

To all people to whom these presents shall come Peter Faulkner of the borough of Easton in the county of Northampton and state of Pennsylvania, sendeth greeting. HALF OF THE OLD MOORE HOUSE ON EAST NORTHAMPTON STREET, EASTON, PA., BUILT BY SAMUEL MOORE? [1683] ABOUT 1782.

In an old book* in the possession of the compiler, the births of the different children of Samuel Moore and Sarah Green are given; some of the names are written by Samuel Moore himself and others by Rebecca who had received the book as a present from her father; written in a childish hand is "Becca Moore her book presented to her by her Father 1795;" she was twelve years old at that time. Just above at the top of the page is written in another hand "Samuel Moore his book february 26 1783." This inscription has faded; just below in different ink, by a different hand, is "his Book february 1783." On the first page of the first fly-leaf are the following records: "Phebe Moore was born July the 7 1782." This was evidently written by the father and with the same ink he used to write his own name, which is rapidly losing its blackness; "Rebekah Moore was born September the 9 1783; Mary Moore was born 18 November 1784; Elizabeth Moore was born July 17th 1786; Ann Moore was born December 15th 1787; Martha Moore was born 1789 October 3." Turning over the page we find the following additional records; "Samuel Moore was born September 28 1794; Sarah Moore was born 14 of May 1793; Sarah Green Moore was born November the 19 1797;" on the fly-leaf opposite the second title-page, which is "An Extract from the Works of Mr. Baxter, A2 'Sammual Moore and Sarah green was mar'd September the 27 1781.' " Opposite the next page, which contains the title The Saints Everlasting Rest: A Treatise of the Blessed State of the Saints in Their Enjoyment of God in Glory, A3, there is written in the same hand, which had written the record of the marriage, "Samuel Moore departed this life March the 9 1799." The birth record is repeated in the back part of the book in a childish hand; several of the children seem to have practiced writing on the fly-leaves, but the book being the property of Becca or Rebekah in fee, her writing predominates. On the last pages, the birth of Samuel is given as 1793 instead of 1794, which is a mistake; Here "Sara Moore was born June the 22 1797;" "Abigail Moore was Born november 19 1798;" "Nancy Moore was born December 15 1787," the year being underscored, no doubt to correct an error given on a previous page; this last record is in a new hand, feminine. A comparison of the record of the marriage and death of Samuel Moore with Sarah Moore's signature to a receipt in Mary Porter's Receipt Book, July 27, 1818, shows that the record is in her handwriting. Samuel Moore's signature in this book, which shows that he wrote a good hand, much resembling his son's, agrees with the signature on the title-page of A Shop Blotter, in the possession of the compiler. This blotter was presented to the grandson by Mr. Benjamin F. Riegel, who was the administrator of the Green estates. Further on, Rebeka is still practicing writing, with this difference, that she now writes: "Miss Becca Moore: Rebekah Innes her friend," etc.

The entries in the blotter are made in various hands, but the prices are filled in by another hand and a reference made to "book number 3." Some of the charges are transferred from "book number one" into this. Doctor Ledlie's begins in 1787, May 10. Most of the entries indicate that the workman who entered them was German. John Worman is entered "John Vurman;" Pete Voight is "Peat fote"; "vider Nunkester" for Widow Nungessor; "Roberd" for Robert; "Tomtites" for Tom Titus; "a vinder fraim" for a window frame; "vite led" for white lead; "puten in ten lites of glass" for putting in ten lights of glass; "vife" for wife; "bois" for boys. There are entries from 1794 to 1799.

Some of the men who worked in the shop were John Innes, John Titus, Israel Butler, David ———, John Striker.

Samuel Moore⁵ took an active part in the affairs of the town. His name appears on the return of an election of Town Clerk, July 6, 1793. He was interested in educational matters and was prominent in the establishment of Easton Union Academy. March 8, 1794, at a meeting of the inhabitants of Easton held in the old Court House, a committee consisting of Rev. Charles Solomon Frederick, the Lutheran minister, Rev. Christian Ludwig Becker of the Reformed Church, Samuel Sitgreaves, Peter Shnyder, John Barnet, John Herster, John Arndt, Samuel Moore, and Robert Traill were appointed to consider a plan for building a schoolhouse. This action resulted in the birth of the Easton Union Academy. He was a member of the first Board of Trustees. Messrs. Sitgreaves, Moore, Barnet, Shnyder, and Shouse were constituted a committee to estimate the cost of a proper building for the institution. March 25, Messrs. Sitgreaves, Moore, and Shouse were appointed to prepare and report a plan for the building which they had estimated would cost £702 10s. The building was soon afterwards built, the first story finished, and later the Academy was established.

In 1794 he was drafted to take part in the "Whiskey Insurrection," but was compelled to send a substitute on account of family matters which could not be neglected.

In the Office of Register of Wills in the Court House at Easton is the following record: Samuel Moore, John Green,* Administrator, Sureties, Robert Traill, Benjamin Green: 600 pounds, March 23, 1799. There is no inventory and no settlement. Samuel Moore having died without a will, the real estate was divided by the Orphans Court in 1816. The division is recorded on a large parchment 23x36 inches, a copy having been made for each heir. Several of these parchments are still in the family. He was buried in the old Lutheran Churchyard, corner of Fourth and Ferry Streets, Easton. The inscriptions on the box tomb were:

SACRED TO THE MEMORY OF SAMUEL MOORE WHO DEPARTED THIS LIFE MARCH 9, 1799 IN THE 45TH YEAR OF HIS AGE.

HERE ARE LIKEWISE DEPOSITED THE REMAINS OF SARAH MOORE WHO DEPARTED THIS LIFE JAN. 15, 1829, IN THE 70TH YEAR OF HER AGE.

The grandson, J. W. Moore, removed the bodies and box tomb to the Easton Cemetery. The tomb, owing to a misunderstanding, was broken up and used as a foundation for the present monument.

Sarah Moore[†] was the daughter of *Richard Green*³ and *Phebe Moore*⁴ (Nathaniel³, Capt. Samuel³, Rev. John¹). She and Samuel Moore⁵ were married September 27, 1781. They were first cousins.

*Richard Green*³ lived at Ewing, N. J., and died in 1797.

*Richard Green*² was of Ewing, N. J., and died 1741; he married *Mary Ely*³, daughter of *George Ely*², of Trenton. The heirs of Richard Green, in 1798, manumitted their slaves, prior to any legislative action looking to their liberation.‡

William Green¹, the father of Richard², was born in Englaud, came to this country at the age of twenty, and on Long Island met Joanna Reeder, who subsequently became his wife. He came to Ewing Township, N. J., about 1700. He bought 345 acres of Daniel Cox, by deed dated 1712, and in 1717 built on it the first brick house in the township. He was the first Assessor of Hunterdon County and in 1721 was Judge of the Court of Common Pleas. He was also a Justice. His tombstone, in Ewing Churchyard, records his death in 1722. His will* follows:

*Mary Ely*³, the wife of Richard Green², was the daughter of George Ely² of Trenton and Jane Pettit who were married in 1703.

*George Ely*² was born at Dunham, England, in 1682 and died in Trenton Township, N. J., 1750, as indicated by his will at Trenton. He bought 100 acres of his father's original purchase at Trenton. In 1746 he was a member of Council of Trenton.

*Joshua Ely*¹, the father of George Ely², was of Dunham, Nottinghamshire, England, and came to America in 1685. On April 20, of the same year, he bought 400 acres where Trenton now stands. The name of his first wife is unknown. In 1699 he married his second wife Rachel Lee. He died in 1704; his will* is dated 11, 6, 1700, and was proved 4, 1, 1704. His executor was "cousin and friend Thomas Revell of Burlington."

*Joanna Reeder*², the wife of William Green¹, was probably the daughter of John Reeder¹ and Hannah Burroughs³.

*John Reeder*¹ came from Norfolk County, England, was at Newtown, L. I., before 1656, in which year he is on the Indian Rate for £1, 10s. January 4, 1666-7, he signed the agreement to fence the Common field and November 25, 1686, his name appears on the Dongan Charter.

*Jane Pettit*³, the wife of George Ely², was the daughter of Nathaniel Pettit and granddaughter of Thomas Pettit¹.

*Nathaniel Pettit*², born at Exeter, Mass., was at Newtown, L. I., at an early date. April 23, 1668 he received 10 acres in Hempstead Swamp, September 13, 1673 he refused to take the oath but promised fealty, which may indicate that he was a Friend, November 25, 1686 his name is on the Dongan Charter, and in 1690, probably, he removed to the Falls of the Delaware. He died in Hopewell, N. J., in 1718. His will is dated March 13, 1714, proved first in Burlington, June 25, 1718, and second in New York, July 9, 1719. The inventory is dated June 24, 1718. The appraisers were George Ely and Samuel Atkinson.

*Thomas Pettit*¹ was in Boston, Mass., as early as 1634. On January 8, 1638, he received a house lot. In the founding of Exeter he received 6 acres and 30 poles as his share of uplands and signed his name to the combination. More than half of the 34 made their marks. He served as Selectman 1652 to 1655. In 1655 his name appears at Newtown and May 8, 1657 he is made Marshall. His name appears among the freeholders, December 4, 1666, and on the Dongan Charter 1686. His wife's maiden name was Christian Mellows.

*Hannah Burroughs*³, the wife of John Reeder¹, was the daughter of Jeremiah Burroughs² and his wife, Hannah Way, and the granddaughter of John Burroughs¹ and his wife,—— Jessup, sister of Edward Jessup. After the death of Jeremiah Burroughs she married John Furman.

*Jeremiah Burroughs*², of Newtown, L. I., was born 1651 and died 1698, aet 47. He was Overseer April, 1682-1684, May 3, 1684 on the committee to extend the town limits, Commissioner of Town Court 1689-90 and was elected Town Clerk October 2, 1689, August 5, 1696, 1698. In 1689 he was Lieutenant in Capt. Content Titus's Company. He or his son Jeremiah was Supervisor, February 2, 1686, Assessor February 2, 1686, March 3, 1694, and on the Dongan Charter in 1686.

*John Burroughs*¹, born 1617 and died August 1678, came from England and was at Salem, Mass., in 1637. He removed to Newtown and was probably one of the first settlers in 1652. He is on the Indian Rate, 1656, for £1, 10s; January 22, 1657, he writes the letter to the Director-General remonstrating against the gift of the town house to Rev. John Moore; 1662, he, with others, was empowered to raise a tax of five cents to the acre; 1659, elected town clerk which office he held for eleven years, 1659-1662, March 13, 1665. 1664, admitted as freeman of Connecticut. He was elected Overseer March 1665, April 1666; his name in 1666, is on Nicoll's Charter; he appears on the list of freeholders December 4, 1666; January 31, 1668, was Surveyor; 1669, he appears for Newtown in land suit; 1673, August 22, offered submission of Newtown to the Dutch after the reinstatement of Dutch government; 1673, firm believer and practicer of free speech against the arbitrary acts of the government for which he was subjected to humiliating punishment. He married second, Widow Elizabeth Reed, mother of Mary Reed, wife of Capt. Samuel Moore² (Rev. John¹).

*Hannah Way*², the wife of Jeremiah Burroughs, was the daughter of James Way¹.

*James Way*¹ died October 2, 1685. The Waye family is on record in Somersetshire, England, as early as the 15th century. He settled at English Kills, L. I., and became a member of the Society of Friends. His name is on the "Indian Rate," 1656, for 2s. February 4, 1663, he refused to sign the compact. March 11, 1668, all the public interest in Smith's Island divided "either by purchase or patent" was given unto James Way and John Hart. September 5, 1675, he was a witness in court. March 1676-78, he was Overseer.

The following notice is taken from an early newspaper ;

30 Dollars Reward

Strayed or stolen from the subscriber's stable in the borough of Easton on the night of the 5th instant, a small black horse, no white about him, about six years old—about fourteen hands high, and is a remarkably smart trotter. The above reward will be given upon delivering the horse and thief, if stolen, to the subscriber, or confining the thief in any gaol, and ten dollars for the horse.

Sarah Moore

The family silver service, still in existence and in use, was also stolen but returned on a "no questions asked" advertisement. The silver urn, tradition says, belonged to George Taylor, signer of the Declaration of Independence, who died in 1784, having been bought at sheriff's sale. An examination of the records shows that a sale was made, but the purchaser is not given. The urn has a monogram engraved upon it.

Sarah Green Moore was an invalid during the last seven years of her life. She was confined to a chair with rheumatism. The reference in her will is to that fact.

The last will and testament of Sarah Moore of the Borough of Easton in the County of Northampton: I Sarah Moore considering the uncertainty of mortal life having suffered a long and tedious affliction yet being of sound mind and memory (blessed be God Almighty for the same) do make declare and publish this my last will and testament in manner and form following viz: First I do hereby give and bequeath unto my affectionate, dutiful and beloved daughters Martha and Abigail Moore all my personal estate goods and chattels of what kind and nature soever. (With one exception) to be equally divided between them after they shall have discharged the common expense of my funeral to have and enjoy the aforesaid bequests forever as a last tribute of thanks for their dutiful and unwearied attention in my long illness—Also I give and bequeath to my dutiful and beloved daughter Sarah the bed and bedding on which I now repose this being intended in the one exception mentioned above which said bequest I do hereby will and order to be delivered to her my said daughter Sarah immediately after my decease—In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this eighteenth day of April in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and twenty six.

Signed sealed published and declared by the above named Sarah Moore to be her last will and testament in the presence of us who have hereunto subscribed our names as witnesses in the presence

2112. Phoebe Moore⁶ (Samuel⁵, Capt. John⁴, Nathaniel³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and William Kelley⁵ (Major John⁴, Thomas³, Thomas², Thomas¹) and Israel Gregg.

Phoebe Moore⁶ removed, in 1830, to Batavia, Ohio.

Thomas Kelley¹, a Scotch-Irishman, left Ireland, and sailed up the Delaware River in 1664, and settled in New Jersey. His son Thomas² was born about 1680, in Salem, N. J., married Rachel —, and died December 1728. Thomas² left a son Thomas³ born in Salem, N. J., about 1715, who married Hannah —. Thomas³ and his wife Hannah had a son Major John⁴ born September 5, 1747, in Salem, who married, December 24, 1768, Elizabeth Casteau (died

PART OF SILVER SERVICE OF SARAH GREEN MOORE [1085].

October 17, 1836, in Ohio) and died January 19, 1798. In the Revolution John⁴ was a Private in the First Battalion of Salem, also in the State Troops. He became Captain in the Second Battalion, Salem, and afterward Second Major in the Second Battalion, Salem*. He was also in the Continental Army. Major John⁴ and his wife, Elizabeth Casteau, had eleven children, among whom were Thomas⁵, who married Ann Moore⁶, William⁵, who married her sister Phoebe Moore⁶, Samuel⁵, a soldier for ten years, who married another sister Rebecca Moore⁶, David⁵, born September 10, 1784, married, October 11, 1806, Hannah Darrah (William, married Rebecca Thomson), of Bucks County, Pa., died October 13, 1816, was a jeweler on Second Street above Race, Philadelphia. David Kelley⁵ and his wife, Hannah Darrah, had, among other children, the late Hon. William Darrah Kelley, born April 12, 1814, in Philadelphia, married, August 1, 1843, 1. Henriette Ash Tennant (Col. Bryce); October 2, 1854, 2. Caroline Bartram Bonsall, and died in Washington, D. C., January 9, 1890. He was for many years a man of commanding influence in the House of Representatives.

Capt. Israel Gregg, whose name is distinguished in our early steamboat history, died at his residence in Hamilton, Butler County, Ohio. His western steamboat career is coeval with that of the immortal Fulton, Livingston, Daniel French, and Samuel Smith. The following is a sketch of the history of the first boat commanded by Captain Gregg. It will be seen that his was the first steamer that ever arrived at Pittsburgh from New Orleans, and that he had no small share in the war proceedings of the Southern line, which closed with the battle of New Orleans—the Marathon of America. The following, accurate in all its details, is taken from a History of Western Steamers, published in 1818.

The Enterprise, 45 tons, was built at Brownsville, on the Monongahela, by Daniel French, under his patent, and owned by a company at that place. She made two voyages to Louisville in the summer of 1814, under the command of Capt. I. Gregg. On the 1st of December she took in a cargo of ordnance stores at Pittsburgh, and sailed for New Orleans, commanded by Capt. H. M. Shreve, and arrived at New Orleans on the 14th of the same month. She was then despatched up the river in search of two keel boats, laden with small arms, which had been delayed on the river. She got 12 miles above Natchez, where she met the keels, took their masters and cargoes on board and returned to New Orleans having been but six and a half days absent, in which time she run 264 miles. She was then for some time actively employed in transporting troops, &c. She made one voyage to the Gulf of Mexico as a cartel, and one voyage to the Rapids of Red River with troops, and nine voyages to Natchez. She set out for Pittsburgh on the 6th of May, and arrived at Shippingport on the 30th, 25 days out, being the first steamboat that ever arrived at that port from New Orleans. She then proceeded on to Pittsburgh, and the command was given to D. Worley, who lost her in Rock Harbor, at Shippingport.

Captain Gregg afterwards commanded the Despatch, a small boat of 25 tons, built at Brownsville, which was wrecked near New Orleans in 1819, and he continued as a commander in the "river service" for several years after.

The Captain lived to behold a western wilderness, in its march onward and onward, until it became a mighty empire, peopled with millions—to see the enterprise in which he himself was the first to embark, spread itself to the world's utmost commercial extent.

Captain Gregg resided in Butler County for several years, respected and esteemed by all. He has at last been "gathered to his fathers," full of years and full of honors. His character was ever that of an upright man, and his benevolence proverbial. Of his long earthly pilgrimage—seventy and two years—if it may be proper for humanity to judge—a good account will be rendered at the last day.†

2113. Rebecca Moore⁶ (Samuel⁵, Capt. John⁴, Nathaniel³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Samuel Kelley⁵ (Maj. John⁴, Thomas³, Thomas², Thomas¹).

Rebecca Moore⁶ moved to Miltonville, Ohio, in 1832; later she removed to Cincinnati.

The following abstracts from letters of Rebecca Moore Kelley, of Cincinnati, Ohio, to her brother, Samuel Moore, Easton, Pennsylvania, may help to clear up some genealogical difficulties:

September 28, 1847, Mr. Creveling arrived here from Easton, Pa. He informed us of the death of Mr. Miller. She regrets to announce the death of our brother-in-law, Israel Gregg, who brought the first steamboat from New Orleans to Pittsburg. Frederick Churchill has paid his friends a visit and returned to Mexico. Mary is well and sends her love to all.

October 29, 1849. Writes about the estate of Sir John Moore. As many heirs here as east, our three sisters' children, Cousin Charles Moore, Cousin Sarah Hunt and myself. Cousin Sarah Hunt thinks our grandfather and two old uncles were the heirs who came to Long Island. Grandfather's name, John, died young. Has always recollected hearing that they came from England.

April 1, 1855. Says her lawyer has written to her about Samuel Kelley's Bounty land. Samuel K. kept a journal while in the service and made a will. Uncle Thomas Kelley visited him at Newport, R. I.; spent nine days with him. She gave him the journal; it was not quite finished but is thought to be worth publishing. Uncle Thomas kept it until a short time before William's death. He gave it to him to attend to and he would, if he had lived. Not certain whether Samuel received anything after serving ten years; he had an honorable discharge. She wants proof of her marriage. Uncle John Green and Uncle Benjamin Green too old to ask, hence asks her brother.

October 15, 1863. Birthday was 9th of September which made her 80 years old. Wood $10 a cord, coal 75 cents a bushel. Received very affectionate letter from William D. Kelley and sisters. He was here three years ago. Will call on you the next time he comes to Easton. I sent your letter to the friends at Hamilton. Mr. Skinner can give you the information.

May 9, 1864. Four years ago a daughter of William Kelley from the South came on to visit her friends. She (Rebecca) went with her to Hamilton, Ohio. William D. Kelley happened to meet her at her house. John Kelley, our nearest relative in this city, has been very successful in business.

May 29, 1864. John Kelley is the son of William and Phoebe Kelley. Have not heard from Thomas and sister Ann's family since before the war; there were but two living, Sarah and Samuel. John was a fine man, studied law, was admitted to Supreme Court, died of consumption in New Orleans, and left a wife and two children; married a descendant of the Penn family. Charles, Lindsay and Melvina Moore are all that are left. Charles is the farmer, Lindsay is in the milling business. George Hunt's son-in-law, Mr. Hooker, called to see us last week. Their children are all living except one daughter. Several of their sons have been killed and wounded in the army. I wish you could see a daughter of William Kelley from Jackson, Miss. She is a lovely girl. She spent seven weeks in a cave in Vicksburg, with an Episcopal minister's family; had mule steak served up for dinner as a rarity. The seat of war was on their plantation. She is invited to spend some time with W. D. Kelley and sisters. Sister Ann thought a great deal of her father as we all did.

June 21, 1865. Sister Phoebe was very intimate with the Dennisons.

January 7, 1867. Speaks of second epidemic of cholera. Sorry to hear of death of cousin Lydia Green. Mr. Levy is a Presbyterian Missionary. Haven't heard from Philadelphia friends for some time.

February 7, 1867. Speaks of epidemic of cholera: many hundreds died.

June 10, 1867. William D. Kelley made us a short visit on his way South; spoke in highest terms of you; his sister Mrs. Feinour had written; also William D. Kelley.

June 25, 1867. John Kelley has removed a short distance in the country. Saw in paper the marriage of Jane Skinner's daughter. Had a letter from Elizabeth Feinour's daughter last week.

November 6, 1867. William D. Kelley paid her two visits in the summer.

January 15, 1868. Written by another. Speaks of Mrs. Kelley's poor health.

June 15, 1871. Letter from Rev. Mr. Levy, announcing the death of Mrs. Rebecca Kelley.

The following letter from a boy—the son of Rebecca Kelley—contains several items of interest:

DEAR UNCLE :

It now becomes my painful duty to announce to you the death of our dear relation, Samuel Kelley. He died on Tuesday morning, the 10th instant, at seven o'clock precisely, after an illness of ten days. His sickness was a severe case of bilious remitting fever. In Samuel we have lost a most valuable friend and relation. In him the community has lost a model worthy of being followed by any young man. He certainly was industrious, steady and strictly honest, and I do not believe he has left an enemy in the world he has departed from—most certain all who knew him were his friends.

His sun that rose in innocence
Rolled unclouded and set in Peace.

In consequence of Samuel's death, Aunt has been quite sick, but is now getting better. The rest of the family is well. Grandmother is remarkably healthy. Uncle Thomas is still at Miltonville keeping store, and is doing very well. Mother is at present at Charles Moore's and appears well pleased with her visits and the appearance of the country—is well and sends her love to all her relations and friends. She spends most of her time at C. Moore's and Uncle Gregg's. Mr. Moore regretted very much his not seeing you when he was here. His time was much taken up and very short. He left his respects for you and hopes to see you at some future time. He insisted upon mother's going back with him, finding we wanted to make a change. Mother at last consented to go, providing she did not like the country, to come back in the fall; and if the contrary, to stay, and Hannah and myself would go in the fall. She appears to be so well satisfied that I think she will stay, although she has not given me a decisive answer yet. As soon as I receive the answer I will then be off on the first boat, which will be very soon. Aunt Sarah is getting much better of the rheumatism and is able to sit up a little. Aunt Betsy has a severe attack of the fever and ague. Hannah appears to be quite well, although not very strong. All the rest are well and join in love to you. As for myself, I am as well and ugly as ever. Give my respects to all relations and friends.

Remain your affectionate nephew,

MR. SAMUEL MOORE.

W. S. KELLEY.

P. S. It is thought the cholera will pass Philadelphia as we have had no cases yet—several cases reported were only our native cholera morbus. The people were so dissatisfied about the cases that the Board of Health reported them cholera for the sake of satisfying the people. You may rest assured that there has not been a single case of the Asiatic cholera in Philadelphia yet.

Yours, etc.,

WM. S. KELLEY.

2114. Mary Moore⁶ (Samuel⁵, Capt. John⁴, Nathaniel³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Dr. Edmund Porter⁴ (Edmund³, William², —¹).

Dr. Edmund Porter⁴ was born in Haddam, Connecticut, June 18, 1791, and came to Pennsylvania in 1815.

His father died in 1802, January 9th, and his mother, March 20th, of the same year, of smallpox. Doubly orphaned at the age of 11, his heart in after-life felt the deepest sympathy for those who were subject to the same fate. In speaking of the death of his parents, he says: "Oh! the days of separation of parents and child! Can I ever forget the fatal 9th of January, 1802, when my father breathed his last? The black coffin, the emblems of sorrow, the mourners, the bier, and all the paraphernalia of grief! No! Then why should I forget the 20th of March of the same year when, we were all laboring with the smallpox, my mother died. I now beheld the victim of death and long-continued disease breathing her last. Children's feelings are indescribable; youth is a mirror in which their feelings are visible to all; here can be seen the instincts of nature; here we see the last pang that severs the ties of blood and affection; the sword that cuts the cord and breaks the bowl of human happiness."

Jonathan Smith, of Haddam, Connecticut, he speaks of as his "Old Guardian." His eccentricities, of which many stories are told, may be easily accounted for when we remember that he grew up without the guiding and restraining hand of loving parents. His whole life seemed to be penetrated by a vein of sadness arising from his early bereavement.

Between the years 1791 and 1815 he had had his preliminary education, had studied medicine at home and in New York, and had been to the West Indies and South America. In 1815 he returned to the United States, visited Boston, New Haven, Salem and Springfield to see his friends, also Hartford and Haddam, New York, Newton, N. J., Easton, Pa., and then Allentown, where he accepted a position as teacher for nine months at $100 a month. Here he was evidently in straightened circumstances, for on his return to Salem from the West Indies he had bills of exchange for $2,000 on Orn & Co. protested and lost all. It is probable he took the method of teaching as a quick way to give him immediate assistance. He then filled the vacancy left by Dr. Patton, of Hummelstown, Dauphin County, and practiced medicine. But he was destined to move on again; love agitated his heart and he found Hummelstown too far away from Easton.

In one of his writings he says: "September 28, 1816, I was married to Miss Mary Moore, a lady of Easton, Pa., where, like Dr. Franklin who tells the story of his after-wife (Mrs. Reed), I became acquainted with her under circumstances more unfavorable than Franklin. He had two rolls of bread, I had none."

After this important event he probably returned to Hummelstown, closed out his practice and concluded to settle in Easton, where we find him in 1817 practicing medicine and running a drug store at Ross's corner, the stand now occupied by Bush & Bull.

A paper of March 31, 1820, contains notice of the removal of his drug store from Ross's corner to the stand three doors above the drug store of Dr. Wm. H. Reynals & Co., formerly Dr. Fickhardt's, who had recently moved to Ohio; this store was nearly opposite the old Easton bank.

This business venture was a failure, the amount involved being comparatively small "when," as he puts it, "I commenced on a credit of five or six hundred dollars, after doing nearly thirty thousand dollars in trade." But he was a man of resources, and on June the 10th of the same year he commenced the practice of medicine in Frenchtown, N. J., where he spent the rest of his life.

As he was preeminently a physician, the following consecutive history will be of interest. It will also give the modern doctor some idea of how young men acquired their medical education in those "good old days."

His preceptor was Thomas Miner, M.D., of Haddam, Connecticut. He studied medicine in New York and obtained the following diploma from the Medical Institution of the State of New York: Be it known that Mr. Edmund Porter, of Connecticut, has attended the Course of Medical Instruction delivered by us in the Institution during the session of eighteen hundred and thirteen, and that his regular attention and general propriety of conduct have been satisfactory. In testimony whereof the common Seal of the Institution is hereunto affixed. Thomas Cock, M.D., Prof. Anat. Phys. and Surgery; V. Seaman, M.D., Prof. Anat. Chirurg. &c.; Jn. Grinow, Prof. Chem. & Nat. Phil.; Archibald Bruce, M.D., Prof. Mat. Med. & Mineralogy. On Record. New York, 23 February, 1813.

He also attended lectures under David Hosack, M.D., certificate dated New York, September 8, 1814; Valentine Mott, M.D., certificate dated University of the State of New York, August 30, 1814; Thos. Cock, M.D., Surgeon U. S. Hospital, Greenwich, August 26, 1814.

Dr. Porter was licensed to practice as physician and surgeon by Mason F. Coggsell, President of the Connecticut Medical Society, at Saybrook, Middlesex County, April 25, 1813.

A license is extant in the Swedish language, issued by Dr. Jacob Lauren, Surgeon to His Majesty the King of Sweden, in the Island of St. Bartholomews, West Indies, November 25, 1814.

Among his papers were letters, highly commending him, from Dr. Samuel Osborn, Dr. Samuel Akerly, Dr. William F. Piatt, Isaac Bellknap, President

Newburg Bank, D. Godwise, Esq., Attorney-at-Law, Nicolas Grey, Inspector-General, Third Military Division, Stephen Gorman, all of New York ; also letters from H. N. Snow and Thomas Sanford, of the Island of St. Bartholomews, West Indies.

He was a licentiate of the Connecticut Medical Society, his diploma being dated April 25, 1813, and a member of the Medical Society of St. Bartholomews, and of the Union Medical Society of Pennsylvania.

He was a voluminous writer on medical and other subjects. He wrote letters to Dr. James Lakey, of Frenchtown, from St. Bartholomews, on the treatment of yellow fever ; also from Alexandria (Frenchtown?) on the treatment of smallpox. His papers may be found in the New York Medical Repository, The American Medical Recorder, The New England Journal of Medicine, The Trenton True American, The Spirit of Pennsylvania, and The Easton Sentinel.

He left Easton June 10, 1820, and went to Frenchtown, N. J., where he was very active in the formation of the District Medical Society for the County of Hunterdon. The following minute is on record in the proceedings of the Medical Society of New Jersey, May 3, 1821 :

"On application for authority to form a medical society in the county of Hunterdon :

"Resolved, That _____ and E. Porter be authorized to meet at Flemington on the 2d Tuesday of June next at 10 o'clock A.M., and there to organize a District Medical Society, according to the act of incorporation, and that the Recording Secretary furnish, when organized, the said society with twenty-five copies of the by-laws of this society."

Accordingly, ten of those authorized, met at Flemington, organized and admitted new members, among whom was John Sloan, who afterward became a successful and much-beloved physician in Easton.

Dr. Porter was secretary of the society. He built a house in Frenchtown and deposited various papers, etc., in the cornerstone, which were removed thirty years afterward from motives of curiosity. In one of these papers he mentions that intermittent fever made its appearance in Frenchtown after an absence of twenty years ; this along the Delaware River ; in the interior, dysentery was prevalent. Pulverized charcoal proved a useful adjuvant in the latter. The seasons for five years had been remarkably dry ; 1823 was cold and inclement, frost and ice being seen on the 5th and 6th of May. He also says : "Intermitting and remitting fevers are our only complaints of consequence."

But he was too active a man to confine himself to the practice of medicine alone. A contemporary in the profession says of him : "He had a turn for politics, and while at Frenchtown ran for Assemblyman at the Hunterdon County caucus twice, the last time with success. He had naturally a good mind, possessed great social qualities and was a successful practitioner." He seemed to be in demand as orator on great occasions, and the speeches which have come down to us show that he was far in advance of the times.

On the 4th of July, 1821, he delivered an oration at Frenchtown, N. J., in answer to a volunteer toast, "The inestimable right of taxing the colonies of North America." He delivered an oration at the public house of Peter Skillman on Washington's Birthday, 1822. This was an arraignment of the banking system of the country and imprisonment for debt. Both were printed in full. He was always found on the side of the oppressed, and was exceedingly liberal in his views on all matters.

He was one of the men who saw the necessity of public education; he was chairman of a meeting convened at the house of Jonathan Britton, Frenchtown, N. J., September 22, 1822, to consider the enactments for "free schools and to call the attention of the Legislature and public to the propriety of appropriating the interest of the school funds to the employment of teachers in the district schools and the education of poor children." The address to the citizens of New Jersey is signed by Dr. Edmund Porter, Chairman; the account is published in the Trenton True American.

Besides all this, he is said to have stood high in the Masonic Fraternity. When he died, at the age of 35 years, there were published many eulogies of his life, character and talents.

The following is from an unknown newspaper:

At his residence in Frenchtown, Alexandria Township, Hunterdon County, on the 12th instant, of a Malignant Bilious Fever, Dr. Edmund Porter, in the 36th year of his age. By the death of Dr. Porter, a disconsolate and numerous family has been deprived of a kind and indulgent husband and father, a widowed wife is left to weep, and tender orphans have been made to mourn. A large circle of friends and acquaintances has experienced the loss of a good neighbor, an interesting companion, and a valuable member of society. The public will sadly realize the extent of the bereavement in the complete deprivation of the services of an indefatigable, attentive and skillful physician, who was eminently useful in alleviating the miseries of afflicted humanity, by a successful prosecution of the healing art; and the world of letters will suffer in more than one of its departments by the death of him, whose pen occasionally beamed new lustre on the light of science and imparted instruction on a variety of subjects to the inquiring mind. Dr. Porter was an active member of the Medical Society of Hunterdon County, and his talents and attainments challenged the respect of his professional brethren; as a politician, he was bold, frank and candid; his principles were purely Republican, and his essays as an author, written with ability on a variety of subjects of a public nature, have been read with pleasure and profit by many. His death has made a breach in society which will not soon be filled.

He was buried at Frenchtown, but his remains were removed to the Easton Cemetery by his son Edmund.

The following was written in answer to an inquiry of the Hunterdon County Medical Society for information in reference to Dr. Porter. The writer was 77 years old at the time the letter was written:

EASTON, PA., August 11, 1871.

Dr. Blane—Dear Sir: Agreeable to your request I have made diligent search for the papers belonging to the late Dr. Edmund Porter, and have found but one, which contains some principal important facts, which speak for themselves, in his own handwriting. I regret very much the loss of his papers, as some of them were interesting and valuable—those of his recipes, showing the practice of medicine at that time, his certificates from the societies, one of which was in Spanish* (that of St. Bartholomews), and all on parchment, his paper books, in which he noted down all his cases—the symptoms, disease, prescriptions, medicine administered, quantity, doses and the effect produced from day to day and the result. All his writings, published and unpublished, were written in books kept for that purpose. He was very particular in noting the state of the weather, the changes and the effects upon his patients. In all these matters he was very careful, the whole constituting a valuable diary of events. I was not aware of the loss until I made a strict inquiry and found it was caused by the intolerable nuisance of house-cleaning semi-annually.

I forward you an excellent portrait of the doctor, which I found in the trunk of his son Edmund, which you will please present to the Medical Society of Hunterdon County as a gift from me, believing that they will prize it more highly than any others to whom I could leave it. All of the Porter family are gone—all of my sisters and brothers-in-law. There are none left who have any recollection of Dr. Porter. Please accept it as a gift to the medical society from the last survivor.

I am, very respectfully, yours, etc.,

S. Moore.

After the death of her husband, Mrs. Porter returned to Easton, with her three sons and remained here until her death in 1838. She died suddenly of apoplexy while sitting in a chair. Her brother Samuel administered her estate. In 1828 she settled up the accounts of her husband in Frenchtown as shown by a receipt in an old receipt book. Her sons were educated at Dr. Vanderveer's School at the north end of what is now Second Street.

Edmund became a printer and was engaged for many years on the Pennsylvanian in Philadelphia. When Samuel D. Patterson became State Printer, he removed to Harrisburg and was employed on State work. In 1862, after making a visit to Camp Curtin, he was taken with confluent smallpox and died at the Pennsylvania House, corner of Second and Locust Streets, Richard Vaughn, proprietor. Mr. Vaughn announced to his guests at the breakfast table that Mr. Porter was ill with smallpox, that he could not turn his old friend and patron out and that he would not be offended if any one left. They all remained. Mr. Porter died; the next morning early he was rolled in a blanket and buried in a graveyard in Harrisburg. Samuel Moore, his uncle, settled his estate.

Thomas Miner learned the drug business in Philadelphia. He opened a drug store in Easton in the Cawley Building nearly opposite the Swan Hotel on Northampton Street above Fourth. He died of consumption at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Hoff, on east Northampton Street, near the Delaware Bridge.

Leonidas went to the West or Southwest and was never heard from. It was supposed that he was killed by the Indians.

The family has become extinct. The end of the story is told by the following inscription, which can be read on a tombstone in the Easton Cemetery near the Seventh Street entrance :

Mary —, died 1703), the great-grandson of John Mott¹ and Mary —.

"IN MEMORY OF MR. GERVIS BECKETT, WHO DEPARTED THIS LIFE DECEMBER 23, 1806, AGED 83 YEARS."

He was born in the Parish of St. Abbott Mary, Kensington, England, in 1723, and at the age of 21 enlisted in the "Second Troop of Horse Guards," commanded for a time by Lord Amherst, and served as a "private gentleman" for forty-four years. The duty of the "Horse Guards" was to attend his Majesty, the King, on all official occasions, and they were responsible for his safety. At the age of 75 Mr. Beckett accompanied his son-in-law, Edward Mott (who had married his only daughter Sarah), to America, and at the beginning of this century, took up his abode with them in Easton, where he died. The death notice of the day reads: "Died—In this borough on the 23d ult. (Dec. 1806), in the 83d year of his age, Garvis Beckett, father-in-law to Edward Mott. He came to this country about six years ago to end his days in the affections of an only son and daughter; of whom may be said, there has departed this transitory life, for a better, a truly honest man." Whilst the grave of this patriotic Englishman is almost unknown, descendants of his in the sixth and seventh generations have for several years placed their floral tributes thereon, in remembrance of his devotion to his native country and the one he adopted at so advanced an age. His son-in-law, Edward Mott, had likewise served in "His Majesty's Second Troop of Life Guards" for seven years and five months, and was the same Edward Mott on whom the townspeople of Easton gazed with awe in his gold-framed spectacles—the first seen in the borough—and whose family has been referred to in a communication from one of his connections. ‡

2201. Sarah Ann Mott⁷ (Elizabeth Sarah Moore⁶, m. William Beckett Mott, Samuel⁵, Capt. John⁴, Nathaniel³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Samuel DeWees Patterson³ (Samuel², Samuel¹).

Samuel DeWees Patterson³ was apprenticed to James Winnard, publisher of the Norristown Register. He was of a studious turn of mind with strong inclinations to composition and versification. Some verses of his appeared in the New England Farmer (Boston, Mass.), in 1824 and in the Register. In 1828 he became editor of the Register continuing until 1834. In 1833 he was Recorder of Deeds of Montgomery County. From 1834 to 1837 he edited and published the Pennsylvania Reporter and was appointed State Printer by Gov. Wolf. In 1837 President Van Buren appointed him United States Marshall for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, from which office he retired in 1841. In 1839 Gov. David D. Porter appointed him Aide-de-Camp on his staff with rank of Colonel. From 1843 to 1848 he published the Saturday Evening Post (founded by Franklin, 1728), then in its zenith of prosperity as a family newspaper. It had among its contributors Poe, Willis, Hawthorne, Longfellow, Cooper, Neal, G. P. R. James, Bayard Taylor, Mrs. Osgood, Mrs. Stephens, Mrs. Sigourney and Mary Howitt. Col. Patterson also frequently contributed to its columns. It was in the Post at this time that Bayard Taylor first contributed an account of foreign travels entitled "Views Afoot" and it was Col. Patterson's financial assistance which enabled him to make his first trip abroad, pleasant acknowledgment of which was made by Mr. Taylor in the first published volume of those letters (1846). In 1845, President Polk appointed him Naval Agent at Philadelphia which office he held until 1848. About this time he was also associated with John W. Forney, Mifflin Parry, Joseph Neal and A. Boyd Hamilton in the publication of the Pennsylvanian, the predecessor of the Philadelphia Press. From 1848 to 1850 he published Graham's Magazine, but with its decline suffered severe financial losses. In 1851, he removed to "Woodbourne" near Schuylkill Haven where he occupied a position with the Silver Creek Coal Mining Company. In 1855, or 1856 he removed to Evansburg where he served as Justice and contributed to the local and city newspapers.

Col. Patterson, as a political writer, wielded a pen, quiet, forcible and bold. His greatest accomplishments were in the field of literature, to which he gave much of his time. He contributed to journals and magazines already mentioned, and also to various "annuals"—The National Gleaner, Opal, Family Messenger, Casket, The Gift, The Fountain, and to Godey's Ladies' National Magazine, Episcopal Recorder, Pennsylvanian, Washington Union, etc.; of his poetical writings, the lines "My Mother" (1839), "The Little Straw Hat" (1844), "A Salt River Voyage" (1846), a political satire are among his best. Col.

* Portrait in the possession of Mrs. E. A. Weaver.

Patterson was conspicuous for his scholarly attainments and refinement of manner. He was a very handsome man. He was an intimate friend and correspondent of President Buchanan, who frequently visited him and was godfather to two of his children. He was a friend to many struggling for literary recognition, sixty years ago, and was generous to a fault. He was a consistent Christian, a member of the Protestant Episcopal Church of which he long served as vestryman. He was a Mason and an Odd Fellow and a member of the Hibernian Society of Philadelphia.

Samuel DeWees Patterson³ was the son of Samuel Patterson², born February 6, 1769, came to America in 1798, with his brother John, from Belfast, Ireland, and settled near Norristown, Montgomery County, Pa. In 1807 he made application for naturalization, in 1806 he became landlord of Jefferson Inn in Norriton Township, 1811 of an inn at Norristown, in 1812 was appointed County Commissioner, and in 1814 was elected to that office. In 1812 he joined the Pennsylvania volunteers in the war against Great Britain and died at Norristown March 18, 1815. April 30, 1806, he was married to Mrs. Mary Weachter (widow) (1764-1825), daughter of Cornelius DeWees and Margaret Richards, descendants of old settlers of Germantown and the Welsh Tract of Chester County. He was the grandson of Samuel Patterson¹.*

Henry Winter¹ located in the vicinity of Martin's Creek, and was a charter member of the Presbyterian Church in 1809. In 1802 he was a Captain in the Eighth Regiment, Pennsylvania Militia, and its Lieutenant-Colonel in 1807. From 1811 to 1813 he was a member of the Pennsylvania Assembly, and a State Senator from 1819 to 1821 and from 1823 to 1825. On 17 January, 1825, he "presented in the State Senate the Memorial and Documents of a Committee of the Trustees of Lafayette College, Easton, Pa., for incorporation and aid." In 1828 he was a Presidential Elector and cast his vote for Andrew Jackson. He frequently presided at political and other celebrations, and was an active participant in State and local affairs in the early part of the last century. In his latter years he was a Justice of the Peace.

2206. Martha Moore Mott¹ (Elizabeth Sarah Moore⁶, m. William Beckett Mott, Samuel⁵, Capt. John⁴, Nathaniel³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Albert R. Foering⁴ (Christian Frederick³, John², Christian Frederick¹).

Albert R. Foering⁴ was the son of Christian Frederick,³ born February 10, 1799, and Rachel Ross, born 1797, daughter of Captain Ross, of Southwark, Philadelphia, the grandson of John Foering², born about 1773, probably at New York, where his father was pastor of a Reformed Dutch Church, from March 21, 1772, until August 1775, and Catharine Knorr, born 1774 at Philadelphia, the great-grandson of Rev. Christian Frederick¹, born about 1736 at Hanover, Germany, who came to New York with his mother, about 1743 and married, November 4, 1769, Margaret Miller, Germantown, Pa. He removed to Millstone, N. J., as indicated by the following :

In the fall of 1774, the consistory renewed their invitation to Mr. Foering, and he accepted in the early part of October, 1774, and moved the following month. He states in a letter that the low Dutch language was rapidly passing away in Millstone, and that he was called to preach altogether in English. During the first eighteen months of his ministry, which brings us down to the Declaration of Independence, eighteen persons united with the church on profession of their faith; during the next three years down to his death, not a single one. The excitement, the party strife, and the frequent proximity of the armies seriously interfered with the religious services.*

In the fall of 1778, after the battle of Freehold, Washington took up his winter quarters again at Middlebrook. About this time, Mr. Foering preached a very patriotic sermon, which led to the formation of a company from his congregation. The British sent out a party to capture him, so as to prevent his efforts among his people. But, although sick in bed at the time, by his wife's help he started for a place of safety, probably to Washington's camp, and his wife returned into the house to her three children, the oldest but eight years of age. "In a very short time the enemy came up, and in their search for one, whom they stigmatized as 'that rebel Foering,' thrust their swords through every bed in the house." Mr. Foering leaving home sick and subjected to exposure in his flight, took a heavy cold, from which consumption resulted, and March 29, 1779, the first pastor of this church breathed his last. His body was deposited under the church in front of the sacred desk whence had issued the kindred lessons of religion and liberty, and his dust yet reposes beneath the second edifice. The congregation knew not where to look for another minister when a refugee preacher, Solomon Froeligh, appeared in their midst in the spring of 1780, one year after Mr. Foering's death.†

"It was on this month, or possibly on a similar one in December of the same year, as the Army of Liberty passed the parsonage (at Millstone), half clothed, unshod, and in want of food, that the patriotic Foering, collecting all the stores of his house, it being moreover, just after baking-time, and cutting the food into convenient portions, distributed them, as far as they would go, to the weary and hungry soldiers as they hurried on their way. On one of these occasions, as the army passed, they encamped for the night in the field directly south of the present parsonage, Washington himself sleeping in the northwest corner of the present homestead of John Van Doren."‡

Martha Moore⁶ never married, although from letters still extant she had abundant offers. She occupied a large place in the social life of Easton. She was a woman of wealth and had large holdings of real estate, as shown in the Recorder's office. Late in life she lost all through the machinations of supposed friends.

The attached letter gives an idea of the simplicity of life one hundred years ago, and shows the pleasant relations existing between the members of the English colony at the Forks of the Delaware :

EASTON, September 30, 1815.

DEAR PATTY :

I write to you by the command of my Mistress to request that you will have the goodness to purchase for her two or three pieces of brown or half-bleached towelling, and have them put up with your goods to be sent to Easton. She priced them, as we passed through the City three weeks ago, at several shops, and was asked eleven pence a yard. I suppose you will have no difficulty in finding some, but Susan recollects particularly that they saw it at a shop of a Mrs. Warner in Third Street between Market and Chestnut. I enclose a twenty-dollar bank note; and if it should not be enough will pay you the residue upon your return. But the devil is in it, if twenty dollars worth of towelling at eleven pence a yard will not be enough for the old Lady.

We have returned from our excursion, sound and in good condition, all the bumps and jolts and lee-lurches over stones and in mud holes amongst the mountains and in the plains notwithstanding. I expected a magnificent kiss from you on my return and am much disappointed to be obliged to wait for it until you come home, when I think you might give me two to pay me for the wear and tear of patience. Make my cordial salutations if you please to your amiable cousin Sarah; and tell her I am very much her admirer, and if I was a younger man should aspire to be something more.

I have not seen ——— since my return, and cannot therefore console you in the lingering hours of absence by assuring you of his health and bloom and all that. Indeed we have so great an interest in the impatience to see him which will doubtless bring you the sooner back to Easton, that I should be malicious enough to preserve a profound silence about him even were it in my power to administer the aforesaid consolation to you—for although you love him, we love you and are content, since it must be so, to owe your speedy return to any inducement, however little it may flatter ourselves. So come quickly, Dear Patty. I have no doubt that he is prodigiously impatient to see and to embrace you, and to exchange with you those tender vows and fascinating endearments which have so embellished the last ten or a dozen years of your mutual affection; and which I suppose you are afraid will vanish as the honey-moon wanes and are therefore determined that the sweet season of courtship shall be perennial.

Adieu—I too love you dearly—and am, with equal devotion if not with equal ardour, Dear Patty,

S. Sitgreaves.*

N. B.—The old Lady says, I am mad, and that ten dollars will be enough to send you—so ten dollars it is—Good Night Patty—go to bed soon—keep good hours and you will be sure to dream of those you love best. Late hours are terrible murderers of pleasant dreams—and when you shall have lived long enough to discover that dreams are always pleasanter than the realities of this scurvy existence of ours you will think it good economy to make as much of your dreams as you possibly can. So Good Night, Patty!

S. Moore

† was the only son in a family of nine children. The following notice (details have been added by the compiler) appeared in the Easton papers at the time of his death; the writer was Reuben Kolb, Esq.: The venerable Samuel Moore departed this life at his residence on Spring Garden Street, below Second, last Monday evening, surrounded by his family, who had gathered about his bedside tearfully awaiting his dissolution. Mr. Moore was the oldest native resident of Easton, having been born on September 28, 1794, in the old stone house[‡] still standing on the south side of Northampton Street, near the Delaware bridge,[§] and was a frequent looker-on when the builders were constructing that ancient structure, which now gives passenger communication across the Delaware. His father was Samuel Moore, who moved here from Trenton, N. J., in 1782. At that time nearly all the population of Easton was of German descent, and among the first English settlers who followed were the Greens, Reeders and Howells. Born when Washington was yet President, when Pennsylvania was largely a wilderness and Easton was scarcely more than a village, Mr. Moore had lived to cast seventeen Presidential votes, to see his native State increase from half a million to near four million souls, and his birthplace of 150 houses and a population of 800 to grow to over fifteen times its size. Easton then held but one church, now there are seventeen. The Academy* on the hill on Second Street, which has given foundation for education to so many thousands of pupils, was then just building. No bridges crossed the Delaware or Lehigh, the post-office had just been established, and the first newspaper and printing office was making first strides towards a livelihood, under Jacob Weygandt.

Mr. Moore received his education at a subscription school in Easton, and later at a boarding school in Philadelphia, at Third and Market Streets. The following letter to his sister Mary from the city at that time, now in the possession of Capt Frederick Schober, of Philadelphia, will illustrate his advance at the age of thirteen :

PHILADELPHIA August 12th 1808

DEAR SISTER—I received your letter and am sorry of my not writing but you must excuse me I like the city very much and there is no appearance of the yellow Fever but I am very much in want of a pair of shoes I have not got scarcely any to wear William Potts comes here every night he is well and still continues at the jewellery business William received the money but it was not thought of I am very sorry to hear that uncle benjamin and his wife is sick but I hope he will recover tell him that nobody come for screws he sent down with my respects to all enquiring friends and relations

A reading book is in the possession of his nephew, Augustus Kellogg Moore, of New York. On the title-page is the name, Samuel Moore, 180-. This was one of his school books: "Lessons in Elocution or a Selection of Pieces in Prose and Verse for the Improvement of Youth in Reading and Speaking." By William Scott. The Seventh American Edition. To Which Are Prefixed, Elements of Gesture, Illustrated by Four Elegant Copper-Plates; and rules for expressing, with propriety, the various passions and emotions of the mind. Wilmington: Printed and sold by Peter Brynberg, M,D,CC,XCVII.

Mr. Moore, in 1812, began business life as an apprentice to Thomas J. Rogers, who published the Northampton Farmer, a small sheet, "in a one-story boarded log house on Northampton Street, between Second and Third." George Deshler bought out this establishment in 1815, and took young Moore into a partnership, which was maintained for two years. They issued the Spirit of Pennsylvania. The following notice is taken from the Spirit of Pennsylvania, Friday, February 20, 1818:†

He early gained a degree of patriotism, and his blood frequently boiled with the fire of youth in hearing of the deeds of valor of revolutionary times. Thus it was that he became a ready volunteer when his country needed aid in the War of 1812. When the news reached Easton that the British had taken Washington, he was in the crowd which formed a citizens' meeting at the corner of Fourth and Northampton Streets, and was filled with a desire to take part in the strife. Hence, when, on the next day, a crier called for volunteers to form a rifle company, under Captain Abraham Horn, he filed into line behind the fife and drum and began a soldier's life, serving as Second Sergeant. The company was presented with a flag by Miss Beidelman, and then, on September 28, 1814, began its march for Philadelphia. A tag attached to the flag bears the following record :

This flag was presented by Miss Rosanna Beidelman on behalf of the ladies of Easton, to Capt. Abraham Horn's Company of Volunteer Riflemen, 1st Co. 1st Regt. Colonel Humphrey's in September 1814, immediately after the burning of Washington City with this address—"Under this flag march to glory." The Ensign replied "I will mam," not "I be's the man," as stated in the "History of the Lehigh Valley." It was subsequently voted at a general meeting of the members of the Company, called for the purpose, to deposit the flag in The Easton Library in honor and remembrance of the patriotic donors. S. Moore.

The flag which is deposited in the Easton Library is ninety-seven inches in length and fifty-five in breadth. The material throughout is heavy silk. The stripes are sewed over and over. The stars are sewed one on each side, so that both sides of the flag present the same appearance. The fly is indigo-blue in color and has upon it thirteen eight-pointed stars, each seven inches across from point to point. Twelve of the stars are arranged in a circle; the thirteenth is placed in the centre. The circumference of the circle passing through the centres of the stars has a diameter of forty inches. The stars are white. The union is made of thirteen stripes of silk, alternately red and white. There are seven red and six white stripes. The length of the stripes coincides with the length of the union. The dimensions of the union are thirty-four by twenty-eight inches. The whole is mounted upon a pole having a brass spear at its top.

The red has faded out almost entirely; the blue remains as when first colored. The silk has become very rotten, and unless laid away in a safer place will soon go to pieces.

The War of 1812 was fought under the flag of fifteen stars and fifteen stripes*.

The following letter was written from camp in 1814 :

PHILADELPHIA, October 31st, 1814.

DEAR SISTER :

My fears are at length verified—we are obliged to march to Camp Dupont on Wednesday morning next, which is said to be a healthy part of the country, well calculated and all prepared for our reception—the distance from this place is five and thirty miles—three days march. Heretofore, I placed but little confidence in the reports. In my last you will observe, however, my opinion of the present; it was so different and published in a manner through the camp that I could not forbear giving my real opinion, which has proved to be correct. I have however to regret stating to you even the truth, as, no doubt, had I informed you we were to march one month ago, we would have taken our jaunt to Bristol—this I for speaking truth.

Since my last we drummed a fellow out of the regiment for desertion—such was the sentence of the court-martial. The manner it was done was as follows: the regiment was formed in double files, the rear ranks moved back ten paces, the prisoner was brought up with a file of men consisting of six, with sergeant Horn as commander of the guard, the rifles of the guard crossed in front and rear. On passing between the files, we came to a charge and the "Rogue's March," was beat by the music—through and in presence of at least one thousand men. Yesterday we had a burying of one of the militia men who was left in the Hospital, at the time of their marching from Camp. Our company was here again highly honored, with the preference given them by the colonel. Twelve of our men were ordered to take the right, which was done with the greatest of pleasure; on reviewing the corps we came to a "reverse arms" marched with the dead march to the grave and deposited the corpse from whence it sprang and fired eight rounds and returned to camp with a quick step; I volunteered on this occasion—no sermon was preached.

Contrary to my wishes and expectations I have again received my trunk, I had everything necessary here for the campaign without it, and will be obliged to leave it with some friend.

In yours, you stated something respecting Col. Horn, which be assured if taken from my letter was a great mistake as this was not the person I alluded to, it was Colonel Humphrey and not Horn that commanded the regiment at that time. Col. Horn has never had the command since his arrival, and its my opinion if he had things would go much more regular.

* The Pennsylvania Magazine of History, October 1895, J. W. Moore.

Therefore if such reports, that is any injury to the reputation of him, please rectify the mistake, as nothing can be said in truth to the disgrace of the Lieutenant Colonel. This afternoon at two o'clock we came to the City for our knives and Hatchets and also for our Powder Horns; if we march, which there is now no doubt but that we shall, I shall write immediately after our arrival at camp Dupont. If you come to the City let me know and I shall endeavor to get a furlo; for the purpose of coming to the City and going to Bristol.

I have been again promoted, to 2d Sergeant, our company is all well. You must excuse me with these few lines, as I have been filling up muster rolls and inspection rolls these three days, so that it tires me to write—we expect to draw two months pay tomorrow, and we will also be inspected.

My compliments to (all well) Euphemia, my friends and acquaintance; tell Euphemia her relations are all in perfect health and that I have not yet received any letter from either her or Abigail or Abijah.

Your affectionate
Brother

S. Moore.

N. B. I shall write tomorrow to Sarah if possible.
Adieu
till Dupont appears.

His discharge is preserved in the War Department at Washington. The following is a copy :

CAMP BOILEAU Decr. 5th, 1814.

I certify that Samuel Moore, second Sergeant of the First Company, First Regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteer Riflemen, Commanded by Colonel Thomas Humphreys has served a Tour of Three Months in my Company and is, hereby, by me honorably discharged,

Ahm. Horn
Captn sd Comp'y.

In 1815 the prominent young men of the town organized a social body called "The Ugly Club." The requirements for admission were so made that the pain of rejection was palliated by the report of the Committee on Nominations. A special committee was appointed to examine the applicant and if he was not desired they reported "that he was not ugly enough." The Club was organized December 15, 1815, and exercised great influence in the social life of the town as is indicated by the correspondence in the newspaper by those who were not invited to the Club's balls. At a meeting held January 8th, 1816, to commemorate the battle of New Orleans, Samuel Moore proposed the toast "The Joints of a Nelson dislocated by the superior skill of a Decatur." His name then disappears until December 15, 1820 when a member proposed the following toast:—"Samuel Moore, one of our fraternity—Though separated from us by the prairies of the West, the wilds of Nature have not severed our affections." He was present again June 21, 1822 at which meeting it is "Resolved, That a certificate of 'honorary membership' be given to Samuel Moore in consequence of his leaving his place of Nativity, the Borough of Easton."

In 1818 Mr. Moore and his sister Martha crossed the mountains of Pennsylvania on horseback and settled in Cincinnati, then a small town, where he remained four years. On his way to the West he wrote the following letter to Dr. Edmund Porter. There is evidence in old copies of the Spirit of Pennsylvania that he acted as Legislative correspondent for that paper.

HARRISBURG, January 25th, 1818.

DEAR SIR :

Since my arrival in this place I have had an opportunity of visiting the senate and house of Representatives, and have heard considerable debating, tho' not any lengthy speeches; to speak truth there are no speakers in the H. equal to Ross or Sitgreaves. Stewart, Douglass and Kelley are the principal on our side, Leile, Slaymaker &c on the opposition, tho' their influence does not extend beyond the bounds of party. Several important bills have lately been brought forward; one to tax the U. S. Bank, excited considerable interest, another to appropriate a specified sum (250,000$) for the erection of a state capital. This bill was originally brought forward by Dr. Leile, but owing to some defects, was submitted to a committee of one member from each county. A bill has also been reported for the erection of a new state prison, which it is thought will supercede the building of the capital. I board with Mr. Schock, at the same place with Leile, Lowry, Marks, Christie, French & Dyer—divided in politics. We have been much amused here with the appearance of several Chickasaw Indians in their natural uniform, Wm. Colbett, and Michal Leile, so that you may suppose that our idle hours are not altogether lost. Findley is overrun with the numerous office holders and office hunters, which renders his situation by no means an enviable one. Rotation is the cry, but little practised, so far as you will perceive by the appointments already made. Colbett's business here is to obtain a law, or the passage of one, to relieve him of a fine of 5000 dollars, for a libel on Dr. Ruth—it is supposed the money will have to be paid with interest for about 15 years. Do please to request sister Sarah to forward my boots & shoes (packed up) by the Lancaster mail to Lancaster—entered on the way bill & pay the costs to L. so that I can send our coachee driver to the stage office at L. Excuse the shortness of this epistle, but expect to hear from me again occasionally. Write soon. My compliments &c. Past 11—Good night.

Yours in haste
Saml Moore.

P. S. How comes on your Election for Congress—let us hear every tittle of the news afloat. My candidate is here. I shall vote by proxy if F. J. R. is the candidate, he is quite a worthy member.

Moore.

At Harrisburg he worked at the same case with Simon Cameron and later watched with great interest the successful business and political career of General Cameron. The journey took a month, and when they reached their destination a great sorrow awaited them. The daughter of Ann Moore Kelley tells the story in a letter to her Aunt Abigail, dated August 1st, 1857: "I recollect after we had been out here some two or three years that Uncle Samuel and Aunt Martha came out to see us, little dreaming of the sad blow that awaited them in the death of a loved sister. They little thought that they would never meet again when they parted in their native home. My father met them at the gate and they saw his tears. They knew something was the matter. After he had told them of his sad loss Aunt Martha fainted. They carried her into the house and put her on a bed. Oh! that was a fearful blow for us children but He who 'tempers the wind to the shorn lamb' took us under his kind care and we found many friends and yet at the time we thought it hard to lose so devoted a parent. 'Tis true we had our trials, but who has not? but God blessed us, and we made many friends and kept them. Although we were blessed with plenty, and although we lived in perfect harmony, having everything almost of this world's goods to make us contented, still there was a void left in our midst which nothing could ever fill when our mother, our best friend, good counsellor, and bright example of all the virtues that adorn the female character, was taken from us and from all who loved her to a better and a happier home."

Upon his departure to the West the following action was taken by the guards:

At a meeting of the Guards on the 21st. Febr. 1818 on motion Resolved that the thanks of the Easton Guards be tendered (thro' the Seal) to the late Ensign Samuel Moore for his soldierly and Gentlemanly conduct while holding said command and that he be admitted an honorary member of the Corps.

A true extract from the Record.
Peter S. Michler, Secr.

On October 31, 1818, he bought of John Cummins and his wife, Alice, of Batavia, Ohio, lot No. 111 (S A Y) on the plot of the town of Batavia. The indenture is witnessed by George Hunt and Thomas Kelley; the latter was a brother-in-law. He then recrossed the mountains in the slow conveyances of that time and spent several years in thirteen different states going as far south as South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama. He then returned to Easton.

In 1824 he went with the Union guards to Philadelphia and took part in the reception to General Lafayette, and while there shook hands with the distinguished Frenchman—an incident he well remembered and always referred to with pride, being just thirty years of age on that day.

On March 5th, 1825, he and William Beckett Mott went to Savannah, in company with a man by the name of Coe, to improve the working of the ochre mines of Edward Mott, and to farm part of the tract of land to help pay expenses. Mr. Mott remained but a short time and then returned to Philadelphia. The venture failed, owing to want of means to get the ore to market. Coe cleaned out the whole business and escaped to parts unknown, and Samuel Moore went to Milledgeville.

Before 1832 he was connected with the Belvidere Apollo.

January 29, 1836, Governor Ritner appointed him Clerk of the Court of General Quarter Sessions of the Peace, and Clerk of the Court of Oyer and Terminer and Jail Delivery, for Northampton County. January 8, 1839, he was re-appointed. At that time Judges John Banks, Daniel Wagner and John Cooper were on the bench; Rev. J. N. Brobst was recorder, Joseph Weaver, register, Hiram Yard, sheriff and Andrew H. Reeder, treasurer.

In 1837 he was one of the founders of a Society, which did much good in Easton, for many years. This copy of a letter in the possession of Augustus K. Moore, New York, tells the story in his own words:

MY DEAR SON:

I am much obliged to you for the present of the box you sent, and in return, if you visit us on the 22d. Feb. (my mother's birth day) I will return the compliment, by the gift of a handsome gold headed cane, presented to me by "The Northampton Beneficial Society of the Borough of Easton" of which I was one of the founders and was elected Secretary for thirty eight years in succession; which expended forty thousand dollars and over for weekly benefits of $3 pr. week in sickness of members and funeral expenses. Now, I desire you to take good care of it, and hand it down to the oldest son of your family and his successors, to the end of time, together with this letter. I am now in my eighty sixth year and cannot expect to remain much longer altho' my general health is excellent but my legs are giving out and I am advised by Dr. Green* to exercise them every day by taking a walk of two or three squares each day, three times. I have found great relief from the prescription and will continue it as long as I can walk. Anna is with us, Mr. Doty being out West hunting a place to settle. We are all well.

Yours &c.

S. Moore.

December 17, 1839, he entered into a partnership with Mott, Schober & Co., Importers and Dealers in China, Glass and Queensware, of Philadelphia. E. T. Mott was a nephew and Samuel Schober married a niece. The firm name was S. Moore & Co.; the business which was entirely wholesale was first located on East Northampton Street. October 1, 1851, the firm dissolved and the business was carried on by S. Moore alone, being now both wholesale and retail. The store and storehouse were on the lot extending from Northampton to Pine Street, now occupied by Able's Opera House. The firm of Mott & Schober continued for many years, at length changing to Edward T. Mott, and unfortunately in 1857, was one of the first to go under in the frightful panic of that year, with liabilities of over a quarter of a million dollars. Samuel Moore was on the Philadelphia firm's paper for a very large sum and the Easton business was closed out in 1857.

In 1845 he took a part in the temperance agitation and became a Son of Temperance, February 27th.

April 5, 1849, the agitation, started and continued by Dr. Traill Green, resulted in the establishment of the Easton Cemetery Company. Samuel Moore was a charter member.

At a meeting of the Town Council of the Borough of Easton held at their Hall the First day of July A.D. 1853 Samuel Moore was duly elected a member of the said Town Council to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Jefferson K. Heckman to serve until the next annual meeting.

First day of July A.D. 1853.

Ph. Johnson

Town Clerk.

The year 1855 was an eventful one for the Masonic Fraternity in Pennsylvania. The great Temple on Chestnut Street was dedicated and Samuel Moore took a part in the exercises. It was at this time that Edmund Porter, his nephew, presented him with a silver-headed cane. Old Independence Hall in Philadelphia had just passed through the hands of the "restorers" and a piece of the wood of the original building was made into canes. The cane is a part of the old wood. On the silver head is the following inscription: "Presented to Samuel Moore by Edmund Porter, September 26th, 1855." On four panels on the sides of the head are the words, one in each panel, "Virtue Liberty And Independence." This cane which was highly prized by him, on account of its many suggestions of his family, his Society, and the early history of his country, was presented by him to his son James W. Moore¹.

April 27, 1859 he was commissioned Justice of the Peace for Bushkill Ward by Governor W. F. Parker, April 14, 1864 by Governor A. G. Curtin, April 14, 1869 by Governor J. W. Geary, and April 14, 1874 by Governor J. F. Hartranft. He held the office for twenty years, retiring in 1879 with the full confidence of the entire community.

He was Chief Burgess of his native town for four years, during the troublous period of the Civil War, and had the support of the best people in the community.

He was a member of the Masonic Fraternity and of the order of Odd Fellows. He was an earnest advocate and friend of the Public School System and used his influence in its development.

Augustus K. Moore, of New York, has a copy of the Northampton Whig, of Tuesday, December 4, 1832, containing the following notice:

Married—At Asbury, on Tuesday last, by the Rev. Mr. Castner, Mr. Samuel Moore, printer, of this place, to Miss Elizabeth Warmesley, of Mansfield tsp. Warren County, N. J.

His successes and the confidence imposed in him he has always attributed to the good influences of this faithful, Christian woman, who, for over fifty years, has been his constant companion, the sharer of his joys and sorrow, the great help of his life. The Free Press readers will remember the interesting account of their golden wedding, published some months ago in these columns. This death is the first in the family for forty years, and it was the result of the gradual giving away of the system. In his illness he was patient, submissive, meek. On Friday last he lay down to sleep and so rested with scarcely a movement until summoned into the presence of his Maker. He was liberal and progressive in everything—in politics a Whig and later a Republican; he believed in the Fatherhood of God and knew that a father loves his children and is just. He claimed individual freedom of interpretation of the Scriptures. His family, in America, was founded in 1642 by an "Independent" minister, some of whose descendants became prominent in the Episcopal Church, others in the Presbyterian, some Old School, some New School. His mother had a pew in each of the three churches in Easton, Presbyterian, Lutheran and Episcopal. He joined no church until late in life and then cast his lot with the Methodist Episcopal. His wife was the daughter of a member of the Church of England, who became a Methodist, a granddaughter of one of the founders of the First Methodist Episcopal Church in Warren County, New Jersey, and the niece of a celebrated Methodist preacher, known from New York to Virginia, the Rev. John Potts. These were all Quakers originally, who later took an active part in the movement inaugurated by John Wesley. He says "to this denomination am I indebted for the change in my course of life." He became a trustee of the Church and forwarded its interests, caring nothing for the slurs cast upon him, for he himself had been "violent in my (his) opposition to this sect."

In his home-life he was a model father. He used to tell us of the difference between the latter days and the old ones; how drinking was the habit of every one; how liquor was kept on the sideboard at which visitors were expected to partake; how a refusal was regarded as an insult; how the stately men and women of those days danced the minnet; he would illustrate to his children, by going through the dance, and to his grandchildren, even after he was over seventy-five. He was filled with the history of the past and his children were familiar with the details of the Revolution of 1812-1814 and the Mexican War. Later he was intensely interested in the Civil War. The wars of Napoleon were familiar to us, for he was conversant with them, being a contemporary. When he took us on his knee, he thrilled our youthful hearts with the deeds of daring of our ancestors and taught us a true patriotism which was not the gospel of selfishness but of altruism. The old revolutionary songs from Yankee Doodle through a list, a long one, were the hymns he sung to quiet us, leaving the religious ones to the sweeter and more musical voice of our mother. The children grew up and never knew the time when they learned history. On Sunday, the sweetest day in the whole week, when the writer was just able to reach up and take his little finger, at a certain time of day, we walked abroad; the boy talked; the father talked; he pointed out the glories of our scenery; we breathed the pure air, and the week was too long before the return of the next Sunday. A rainy day was a calamity which was truly wept over.

During the childhood of the compiler a picture of George Washington and a companion picture of Martha Washington were shown to him by his mother on occasions of special goodness on his part. They were carefully wrapped in tissue paper and kept in a locked bureau drawer. They were given to Augustus Kellogg Moore, "the eldest son of the eldest son," by Samuel Moore⁶. These pictures were in the family for years. Mr. Bradley, a dealer in old engravings in New York, gives the following description and comment.

George Washington, Esq. Bust, head to left, oval, in a rectangle. Mezzotints. Height, 11¹¹/₁₆ inches. Width, 10 inches. Wooley pinxit et sculpsit. Published at the Shakespeare Gallery, No. 11 Park, N. York. Extremely rare. A copy of the Stuart head. Wooley engraved, in the same style, a portrait of Mrs. Washington as a companion print.

There are only three or four other copies in existence—one in Philadelphia, perhaps three in Boston.

MY DEAR NEPHEW :

This being my birth day, I have concluded to devote a portion of it in writing to you. I am this day "three score years and ten," the allotted age of man, having been born in the troublous days of the whiskey insurrection of Pennsylvania, and may perhaps die in the great rebellion. I sometimes think I have seen the best days of the republic. My father was born and reared near Trenton, N. J., was brought up on a farm, but subsequently learned the carpenter's trade. He belonged to a company of Minute Men in the Revolution, and was out frequently at the call of his commanders. He married and settled in this place in 1783, and in 1794 was drafted, but provided a substitute, in consequence of my expected birth. In 1814 I volunteered, and served a tour of three months in the War of 1812. Thus you see I am an old soldier, the son of a soldier—but am sorry to say, that I have no representative in the army or navy to battle for our Union—but, thank God, other branches of the family have supplied the deficiency—and among them is my great-nephew, Frederick Schober, 3d Asst. Engineer. Now Fred, you have position, look up, work your way forward, obey all orders whether right or wrong in your estimation, be attentive and vigilant in the execution of your duties, and advancement is sure to follow. It is an honorable position, a stepping stone, and it depends upon you whether you go up or down.

But I was ordered to write about the war and our elections. First, then the War is going on admirably and successfully. You have, doubtless, heard of the capture, by Admiral Farragut, "lashed to the mast-head," of the Forts at Mobile, and his entering the inner harbour. General Sherman has captured Atlanta and General Sheridan has cleared Early out of the Shenandoah Valley, after two successful battles, in which he captured some twenty six guns, with caissons complete, and over six thousand prisoners, besides the killed and wounded. He is still in pursuit towards Lynchburg; Early's army is said to be completely demoralized, scattered in every direction. We have the official accounts of the above battles; they are true, and great rejoicing has taken place over them. Grant still has a tight grip on Petersburg and Richmond, and is being reinforced by thousands upon thousands, the draft being enforced in the Copperhead Counties and districts, where they would do nothing for their country, whilst the Republican districts have filled up their quotas by volunteering generally. Philadelphia is nearly out, or will be in a day or two. My good old native town has a surplus for three years, and the cities and towns generally have filled their quotas of the last call for five hundred thousand men. The deficiency is in the country Democratic districts. By reference to the map you will find the rebellion is now confined to a small space in comparison to what it was at its commencement. By the capture of Lynchburg, Va., the last remaining railroad for supplying the rebel army at Richmond will be cut off, and Richmond must fall, fall beyond all doubt; it is a mere matter of time to save life; Grant could capture the place at any time, at the sacrifice of thousands of lives, but will not do it. He will play Vicksburg over again. This is an excellent trait in his character.

You will perhaps wonder who General Sheridan is. He was general of Cavalry and made several successful raids to and around the rebel army, near Richmond. After the defeat of General Wallace, the ill success of General Hunter and the dilatory movements of General Conch, who each commanded a department, and were independent of each other, General Grant came on from Richmond, and had the three consolidated, and placed Sheridan in full command. This cured the clashing and resulted in brilliant victories to our armies. He, like Grant and Sherman, is not like McClellan, who would gain a victory, squat down, and give the enemy time to recuperate and strengthen themselves; No! they strike, gain, strike again, pursue and strike, pursue, demoralize, or destroy their enemy. We have reports of Farragut's gunboats passing the bar, or obstructions in the harbour of Mobile, having the city at his command, and that it had surrendered unconditionally, but this wants confirmation. I believe, however, it will soon take place, if it has not already. The enemy by the accounts in their papers, from the reports of officers and men taken prisoners, are very much depressed and say "that the rebellion is played out." I suppose that you have heard of the arrival of your prize, the Georgia, in the United States. We thought you might probably be on board of her, but was not disappointed at your not being on hand. It is the universal opinion that she will be condemned; if so why you, the "3d As" will come in for a share of the prize money! Good for the Niagara, hope you will catch every piratical rebel craft on the ocean, and divide the spoil, and every good union "land lubber" would cry "good" and cheer you and fire big guns—[swivels are our big guns]—whilst the "Copper heads" would declare it "un-con-sti-tu-tion-al"; an instrument ninety nine out of every hundred never read.

As to the election, our men are confident of success in the State, and talk of gains in Congress. They, the leaders, are working day and night. But you know this district is copper to the back bone, and we do not think of a change, yet we have meetings and speeches every night in the public Square, whilst the opposite party hold theirs at their head quarters. We keep in view the Presidential election, where every vote will count. The soldiers in camp will now be allowed to vote, of which, the great body will vote for Lincoln and Johnson. The Democrats were opposed to their voting and cast their ballots against them, at the election held in August for the purpose of deciding that question. We beat them by a large majority. A number of the states have amended their Constitutions in a similar manner; N. Jersey, I believe, is the only State that repudiates its patriotic soldiery in this respect. This question has strengthened the Union Party greatly. The Democratic platform goes for "an immediate suspension of hostilities," and nominated Gen. McClellan for President, who makes a platform for himself, in his letter of acceptance, and Pendleton of Ohio, for Vice President, who was a peace man, of the Vallandigham stripe, and voted in the last Congress against all and every measure for the support of the war for putting down the rebellion. This combination of oil and water raised a beautiful quarrel in the ranks of the party, and several of the Peace party papers, came down on the General like an avalanche for a time, but at length knocked under! Not so with the army, where McClellan possessed some popularity: they declare that he is joined to their enemies and the foes of the Union, and will not support him. I have given you this outline of party affairs, which by the way, I am extremely sorry exists in our country at this time, a time of rebellion and war—without knowing your sentiments, but presume you as an officer under government will “stand by the flag,” and further that you will, as I did when young, adopt, stick to, and carry out the patriotic sentiments of the gallant Commodore Decatur, in the War of 1812, [at which time parties were as bitter as they are now] which was—“Our Country—right or wrong.” That is our country [union if you please] first, last, under all circumstances, and forever. There you have my sentiments in a nut shell—adopted in my youth from the immortal Decatur. I care not who is President—I will support the government against all enemies, in time of war whether foreign or domestic. As an old whig, and much as the party were opposed to the war with Mexico, yet after the first battle the party in Congress and out supported the administration—voting supplies for the army and navy with one exception, I mean Tom Corwin, who was finally forced into the harness, and could and did rejoice at the success of our arms—but it not so now. The falsely named democratic party make no public demonstrations, no cheers, no rejoicing for our victories but oppose every measure for the support of government, the army or navy, and do all they can to cripple, if not destroy the efforts of government to restore the Union; but all their efforts will fail; Grant is within four miles of Richmond, now fighting, and we expect daily, yea, hourly to hear of its capture. Sheridan’s successes have been greater than we anticipated when I commenced this letter. We hear October 3rd that his capture of Staunton terminated in a vast destruction of stores and material of the enemy. Early’s army is broken up and demoralized, some in the mountains, others scattered, and deserters are coming in by hundreds, Sherman strengthening Atlanta, as a military depot of supplies. The governor of Georgia, and Vice President Stephens, it is said, have proposed to withdraw the State of Georgia from the Confederacy. The Governor [B?] has already withdrawn the militia, 15000 from Hood’s command, and Jeff Davis has gone on to Macon to see what’s up! These things look ominous, turn out as they may. Fremont has backed down and supports Lincoln. Blair has been retired from the position of Postmaster General, and Denison of Ohio succeeds him; Blair supports Lincoln. There has been powerful strength added to the Union Party lately, eminent men who have been life long Democrats, but their patriotism has triumphed over party feeling—“Country first, party afterwards” is their motto; put down the rebellion; we never will conquer it by divisions in the North say they.

I have now written, perhaps, a great deal too much, and will close by saying, there is not the least doubt of Lincoln’s reelection at this time, but it will depend in a great measure upon the success of our arms. If Grant is successful it will give him a tremendous majority if unsuccessful, it may be doubtful. The armies are strengthened by thousands daily, the last draft of 500,000 is pouring in and filling up the ranks, nearly all volunteers or substitutes. I suppose, Libby, James and your father will give you all the family news, and as it has devolved on me to give you the political—you see I have pitched into it. Excuse errors, and believe me to be

Your friend and affectionate old Uncle

S. Moore.

EASTON, January 9th, 1865.

MY DEAR NEPHEW:

It appears that the duty assigned to me by the governess of the family is to keep you advised of the military and political events of our once peaceful and happy country; but all my arguments as to your obtaining the news by the papers, are of no avail; the constant reply is “Father you must write, he will be so glad to hear from you!” &c., &c. Well then, as to military operations; we have been nearly everywhere successful. The army of the Potomac still holds Richmond, with the largest army the Rebels have, under Lee, in check, whilst General Sherman has passed thro’ from Atlanta to Savannah, captured it, with an immense amount of cotton [say 33,000 bales in store, and probably as much more within his lines], cannon, military stores, &c., &c. Hardee’s army escaped. It is expected that his next move will be to Charleston; if so it must fall, together with Augusta and Macon. The people of Savannah received him with open arms, held a public meeting, the Mayor presiding and “knocked under,” unanimously. Hood has been defeated, pursued and his army nearly destroyed at Nashville, Tenn., by General Thomas, and it is doubtful whether the Rebel powers at Richmond can recuperate him. His losses are estimated at 20,000 men. Sheridan remains in the Shenandoah Valley keeping a sharp look out, well prepared for any emergency. The year 1864 has closed very favourably for our good old Union—“in the trial by battle”—it being the third stage our country is passing through—first, the establishment of our independence, second, sustaining it against foreign powers and lastly, against internal traitors, and all not only by arms, but what is equally glorious, by the ballot box. But more of this hereafter.

The combined attack of Admiral Porter, with an immense fleet and General Butler commanding the army, on Wilmington, N. C., has been a failure. Wilmington is a strong place, and so situated that it was considered by outsiders almost impossible to take it, but on this subject, you can obtain more information aboard ship than I can give you. The failure, however, is said to be due to a want of co-operation between the commanders—but “thinks I to myself”—Wilmington will soon find “an army in the rear” as well as Charleston, via Savannah.

The expedition under Gen. Banks to Texas was also a failure, from what cause has not been made public. It is now undergoing an investigation before the Committee on the War in Congress.

The capture of the ——— in a neutral Brazilian port, has incited much newspaper discussion as well at home as abroad. The London Times as usual blows the bellows for the nobility of England, and the aristocratic rebel party of America. That pirate was run into and sunk. The whole thing will amount to nothing. Simmes has according to rebel accounts arrived at Mobile.

As to political matters, since the election, there is not one word said between the parties, no excitement, the opponents of the “administration” knocked under like men, but still insist on their being good Union Men; but how to reconcile the matter I never could see. It would be something like a ship’s crew under our dear old flag at sea, far out, saying, we love our country and flag but we will throw our commander and all the officers overboard, and let her drift.

There is now no doubt of the Constitution of the United States being amended, so as to prohibit slavery, put a duty on exports, and perhaps some other amendments, if not at the present, the next session will be sure. There are now but eight members, Democrats of course, required to make up the three fourths requirement, and one of them was to make a speech in favor of it today. A measure of this kind would remove the danger for the future. The only remaining danger I apprehend for the future, is “the corruption of the people;” for it seems to me that the scramble for office, and money, money, money! is so great, that it has been dangerous to our Republican institutions; if not already, it will be. There are thousands totally incompetent, hankering for office constantly, who claim it, for their adherence to party only, ignoring their duties to their country, their flag, and their God.

My dear nephew, you are a young man. You have made the first step for yourself up the ladder [or rattlings you would call it, I suppose] of life, and as you reach upwards cling to principle, study it, adhere to it, and do nothing in violation of your better judgment, that you may regret in after years.

I expect that James and Libby advise you of all family matters. I shall therefore say nothing about them. For myself, I am still at my post, administering justice, in good health, but pretty far advanced in years, but, God willing, would like to live to see our country restored to peace and harmony, our Union preserved, and our beloved flag respected wherever it floats.

I am very respectfully

Your affectionate Uncle

S. Moore.

DEAR NEPHEW:

I am pressed into the service to say something about the war, and to give you my opinion on the subject. Of course my opinion must be founded on reports either official or supposed reliable. Now the facts are, that from all the information we have, the rebellion is reduced to two armies, one at Richmond and Petersburg, the other at Atlanta, both of which are closely watched. The defeat or capture of either is fatal to the enemy, for they have brought their whole strength into the field, whilst ours is not yet fully developed. The last call of 500,000 men, which will produce all and more than the Government requires, has depressed them very much. This information I had from General Heckman, who has lately been exchanged at Charleston, in a conversation with him yesterday. He is a native of Easton, a gallant boy, was out in the Mexican War, commanded a Company of three months men at the outbreak of the rebellion, was appointed Major of the 9th New Jersey, promoted for gallantry to the command of the Regiment, and finally received a star as Brigadier General, was captured in a fog at Bermuda Hundred, under Butler, sent to Libby, thence to Charleston, to be placed under the fire of our guns, with other officers, and upon our Government following suit and placing an equal number of Rebel Officers in the same position, an exchange was effected. He further states that there is a strong Union feeling, and desire for our success, even in Charleston, but it is necessarily suppressed, the government being a military despotism. They force their men into the service without pay, and levy on the property of the citizen whenever wanted for public use without even receipting for it. Their men, at least many of them, have not been paid for the last eighteen months. General Seymour, who was a Lieutenant at the bombardment of Fort Sumpter, and stationed there for some time under Anderson, had an extensive acquaintance at Charleston, and thro’ him all the Officers obtained extensive private information, which, with the facts we have a full knowledge of, induces the idea and belief that the rebellion is about played out, if no serious disaster should happen to Grant or Sherman’s Armies who are still successful. You will probably see the account of the Rebel raid into Pennsylvania and the wanton destruction by fire of the beautiful town of Chambersburg. Two hundred and fifty houses, the heart of the place was destroyed, and some fifteen hundred citizens left houseless, without even a change of apparel, having nothing but what they had on. There’s Southern chivalry for you, Fred! if you have a chance, blow them all to Hades. We are all awaiting the news from Mobile. Farragut has such a knack of gutting the rebels out, that we expect there will be nothing left of them by the time he gets thro’ with them. The Richmond papers acknowledge the loss of three out of four of their iron clads, one of which we captured, ready for use. By the way, if our army had been conducted with the same skill displayed by our naval officers, the war would have been ended long since; but discipline on shore was a new thing, and our men and officers had all to learn, like Frederick the Great, from the enemy; and fight on, until they discovered they could beat them man for man, and outgeneral the best of their able generals. I, however, have never been deceived in the rebellion. I was sure there would be hard fighting; for both are Americans and "when Greek meets Greek, then comes the tug of war"—and it has turned out so. I did not believe in putting an end to the war in "thirty," "sixty" or "ninety days"—but believed religiously that it would put an end to slavery on this continent forever—and further that the Almighty has raised up "Old Abe," from a rail splitter and Mississippi boatman to the Presidency for the purpose, just as he raised up Moses to lead the children of Israel out of bondage in Egypt. And I further believe that God has not raised up this nation, and blessed it with civil and religious liberty, made it an asylum for the oppressed of all nations, placed it under His own control, without Prince or Potentate, Emperor or Pope, to intervene between Him and us, will permit its destruction, by division, but hold it one and indivisible, as a beacon light to the oppressed of all nations, inviting them to self government, and civil and religious liberty. Depend upon it our Union will be restored, in His own good time; there will not be a slave on the continent; all men will be free, and our country will be purified, restored, and strengthened—the greatest power under the canopy of Heaven!

Elizabeth Barnes Wamsley¹ was the daughter of James Wamsley¹ and his wife Sarah Potts.

James Wamsley¹ was born September 29, 1780, in County Fermanagh, Ireland. He was a member of the Church of England, came to Philadelphia, and later settled at Mansfield, Hunterdon County, N. J. He there joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, and became a licensed exhorter. He was a man of intellect. He died in 1863 or 1865. His father was financial agent of Lord Cole in Ireland.

Sarah Potts⁴ married James Wamsley¹ in 1810, when in her eighteenth year. She was born May 23, 1792 at Kingwood, N. J., died May 26, 1883 at Tobyhanna, Penna., and was buried at Washington, N. J. She was the daughter of Joseph Potts⁴ and his wife Sarah Mott⁵. An old sampler which belonged to Sarah Potts Wamsley, in the possession of the compiler, has initials S. M., E. M., W. M., R. M., G. M., L. M. for Solomon Mott, Elizabeth Mott, William Mott, Ruth Mott, Gershom Mott, Lucy Mott.

Joseph Potts⁴ and his wife Sarah Mott were licensed* to marry June 2, 1781. After their marriage they removed from Kingwood, N. J., to Brass Castle in (now) Warren County, N. J. He was a farmer and owned a tannery. He died in 1823; his will is dated February 21, 1820 and was proved July 11, 1823.† He left eight children. He was the son of John Potts³ and his wife Mercy King. Joseph Potts and his family were among the founders of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Washington, N. J., the first church in Warren County, 1824.

John Potts³ owned and lived on a farm at Kingwood, N. J. He was a neighbor of Daniel Potts, a native of Bristol Township, Penna. In 1797, he went on the refunding bond of Rebecca (Emley) Potts, widow of Daniel. His pocket-book, still in existence, has worked on it in silk, "John Potts 1768." Thomas Maxwell Potts, an authority on the genealogy of the numerous families of the name Potts, thinks that he was the son of Thomas Potts², Jr., and his wife Susanna —.

Thomas Potts², Jr., of Bristol Township, Philadelphia County, was born 1713 and died 1751. He married, in 1732, Susanna —, who after his death married Job Compton‡.

‡ Pennsylvania Marriages.

Thomas Potts¹, Senr., the father of Thomas², Jr., was called "Thomas Potts, Miller," "Thomas Potts, the Quaker Preacher." He was in Pennsylvania in 1686, married Judith Smith in 1712, and died in 1719. His widow married Thomas Sharp and died in 1749. Thomas was the only son. He was a resident of Bristol Township, Philadelphia County. He seems to have come to Pennsylvania, from Wales, it is supposed from Llangirrig or Llanidloes, in Montgomeryshire. He was a miller by occupation, and was a party to numerous land conveyances, owning lands and mills in Bristol Township and in New Jersey. In 9 mo. 11, 1686 he was witness to the marriage of John Austin and Jane Potts; 10 mo. 5, 1692 he buys 150 acres on the west bank of the Schuylkill from John Blunstenalty; 2 mo. 2, 1695 sells the same to David Hugh; he built two water corn mills on a branch of Frankford Creek not far from Germantown, known as "Potts's Mills;" 4 mo. 28, 1699 he bought 100 acres in Bristol Township of Jacob Shumaker; Sept. 6, 1705 he bought another tract from the same; 29, 9ber, 1705 Herfert Papen of Germantown conveys land to Thomas Potts, Sen. and others; 1706 he sells one fourth interest in Potts's Mills, etc., to Everard Bolton; other transactions with George Gray; Oct. 2, 1707 he conveys his interest to the others, in the transaction of 29, 9ber 1705; 12 mo. 20, 1709 he and David Potts witnesses the will of William Howell of Cheltenham Township; Oct. 8, 1711 the same tract conveyed to Thomas Potts, Sr., and others, trustees of Friends of Meeting House lot; Dec. 26, 1717 bought 100 acres of William Dilworth; Sept. 2, 1718 buys two small tracts of Joshua Fincher; he and wife Judith deed lot to Joshua Fincher.

He was a member of the Society of Friends and attached to the Germantown Preparative Meeting, which was under the care of the Abington Monthly Meeting. From the minutes of Abington Monthly Meeting and other sources, it appears that, from about 1705 to the end of his life, he devoted himself very largely to the duties of a public Friend or religious minister, traveling and visiting Friends in the service of Truth, in Maryland, Virginia, New England, the West Indies, England, Ireland, and other places. He was undoubtedly a man of rare worth and exemplary character. William Penn calls him "honest Thomas Potts," and an estimate of his character may be gathered from the Penn and Logan Correspondence*.

Sarah Mott⁵, † the wife of Joseph Potts⁴, was born in Kingwood, N. J., the daughter of Solomon Mott⁴ and his wife Elizabeth Emley.

Solomon Mott ⁴ came from the Province of New York † and bought land in Kingwood, near Quakertown, May 14, 1760, presumably about the time of his marriage. He and Elizabeth Emley were witnesses, at the marriage of Benjamin Canby, 5, 10, 1752. § Solomon and Elizabeth Mott witnessed the marriage of Samuel Large and Elizabeth Myers, November 18, 1762. Dr. Race has a receipt from Dr. Aaron Forman, reading, "May 11, 1771, received of Mr. John Emley in behalf of Solomon Mott five pounds ten shillings in full by me, April 7, 26, 1774." Dr. James Willson has charges in his day book against Solomon "Moot." Dr. Race has a deed, dated January 1, 1797, from Rebecca Potts to Joseph King, for 209½ acres, which she inherited from her brother, John Emley, and which he had bought March 1, 1791, of Solomon Mott deceased. The will of Elisha Emley was proved by affirmation of Solomon Mott, 4th of May, 1761; he was a witness to the same, 10th April, 1761.

Gershom Mott³, the father of Solomon⁴, was born in Hempstead, L. I., and removed to Kakiat, New Hempstead, Orange County, N. Y., now Ramapo, Rockland County. His wife was Ruth —, perhaps Ruth Seaman. His will was proved March 2, 1759.*

Charles Mott², the father of Gershom³, was born at Hempstead in 1676 and died in 1740. In 1709 he bought a mill of John Robinson; in 1714 he was Surveyor of Highways, Cowneck. His wife's name was Elizabeth —, married about 1695.

Adam Mott¹, the father of Charles², was of Essex, England, born 1619, died 1686, and on May 10, June 6, 1644, and October 23, 1645, was a witness at New Amsterdam. April 23, 1645, the Dutch government granted him twenty-five morgans of land on Mespath Kill; May 17, 1657, he was chosen townsman of Hempstead; February 4, 1663, he signed an agreement of peaceable intercourse between the Dutch and English; in August, 1663, he stands third in value of property on the assessment list†. His first wife was Jane Hulett, his second, whom he married in 1667, was Elizabeth Redman, called Richbell. The latter was the mother of Charles Mott².

Elizabeth Redman² was the daughter of — Redman¹ and Ann Parsons² (— Parsons¹, m. Margaret —). She had sisters, Mary Redman, who married James Mott, and Ann Redman. After the death of her husband she married John Richbell, by whom she had no children. Her own children were called Richbell. Ann Parsons Redman Richbell's will‡ is dated 1700.

Mercy King⁴, born June 4, 1738, at Kingwood, N. J., the wife of John Potts³, was the daughter of William King and his wife, Abigail Doughty. She was a witness at the marriage of Benjamin Canby, 5, 10, 1752.

William King³, born April 1, 1714, at Kingwood, 13, 8, 1752, removed to the Chesterfield Monthly Meeting§ with his wife, both being members of the Society of Friends. He married Abigail Doughty about 1737.

Joseph King², Senr., the father of William³, was born in Flushing, L. I., in 1683, and died in Hunterdon County, N. J., December 10, 1761. He, with the rest of his father's family, came to Nottingham, Burlington County, N. J., in 1699. He removed to Piscataway, Middlesex County, but in 1729 purchased 954 acres of Mary Tomkins, on the south bank of the Raritan River, in what is now Franklin Township, Hunterdon County, and removed there. In 1733 he built a grist mill about four miles from the Friends' Meeting House. He was one of the first trustees of the Meeting property, was appointed Elder in Kingwood Monthly Meeting 14, 10 mo., 1744, and Overseer 12, 7 mo., 1745. His wife was Marcia Nicholson.

In 1732, he built a stone house, on a farm of 400 acres, which was torn down in 1831. He bought 1537½ acres in the Strettle Tract as is indicated in a deed entitled "Deed between John Owen of London, Kingdom of Great Britain, and Robert Strettell late of the parish of St. Mary Magdalen Bermondsey, County of Surrey, Kingdom of Great Britain, now of Philadelphia in the Province of Pennsylvania, attorney to and for the said John Owen, of the one part, and John Emley of the Township of Bethlehem, in the County of Hunterdon and Western Division of the Province of New Jersey on the other part, for the consideration of five hundred and twenty-two pounds of good and lawful money to him in hand paid or secured to be paid, 1537½ acres, a part of a tract of 5000 acres situated in West New Jersey." Dated the first day of March, 1737.* In 1738, 1746-'54, he was a member of the Colonial Assembly.† In 1752, he was a trustee of Kingwood Monthly Meeting. Deed between William Emley of Nottingham, Burlington Co., and Eliakim Higgins of the County aforesaid, forty acres of land where said Higgins now inhabiteth. Dated the 23rd day of December, 1692.‡

He located about 2000 acres for himself at the Falls and at Crosswicks in Burlington County. The last survey made by him was of the old plantation, now the site of Bordentown, in April, 1704. Maps still in existence show that he was a fine penman and draftsman. He was one of the Representatives of West Jersey in 1682, and in 1684 was a Member of the Governor's Council.§ In 1685 he was a trustee of Chesterfield Monthly Meeting property. January 8, 1686/7, he made the award as arbitrator in re the boundary line between East Jersey and West Jersey; December 23, 1692, he bought land of Eliakim Higgins. "William Emley was Buryed in ffrriends Burying Place att the ffalls in the Township of Nottingham the 24th of the 2d mo. called Aprill in the year 1704." His will was proved June 6, 1704. He divided his property among his children John, Ruth, Sarah, Elizabeth, and Samuel, Mary (Haywood), William, and wife Mary (second wife), who was born in 1660, married in Cheshire, England, 1690, and died March 31, 1728.

Abigail Doughty⁴, born 10, 3, 1716, the wife of William King⁸, was the daughter of Jacob Doughty³ and his wife Amy Whitehead, the granddaughter of Elias Doughty and Sarah —, his wife, and the great-granddaughter of Rev. Francis Doughty¹ and Bridget (?) Stone.

Jacob Doughty³ removed from Flushing, L. I., to New Jersey. February 4, 1711, he was a "Marchant of Crosswicks, N. J." On 1st, 2 mo. 1714, Chesterfield Monthly Meeting accepted his certificate from Flushing.

In 1716 he was a member of the General Assembly for Burlington County. He signed the address from Council and Assembly to the King on the defeat of the Scotch Rebellion May 25, 1716.†† In 1717 he was Justice for the County of Burlington.‡‡ April 19, 1718, Wm. Stevenson, of Burlington County, sold to Jacob Doughty, of the same county, 1100 acres in Hunterdon County. March 19, 1721, he was one of the three presiding judges at the Court of Common Pleas at Quarter Sessions at Burlington. In 1721, he presented a certificate to Burlington Monthly Meeting. In 1724, he was Judge of the Court of Common Pleas.* February 13, 1724, Edward Fisher and John Hancock and wife sold to Jacob Doughty 422 acres at Bermuda in Burlington County. September 24, 1725, he was Assistant Judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Hunterdon County. An indenture made 29 day of September, 1729, shows that Jacob Doughty sold 2512 acres to Edward Burling, of N. Y.† In 1730, he was a Justice of Hunterdon County. In 1733, his certificate was returned to Chesterfield Monthly Meeting. He was a "Minister among Friends." March 30, 1733, he deeded to Trustees Samuel Large, Samuel Willson, John Stevenson, Edward Richbell, and Joseph King four acres for the use of the Meeting House of Bethlehem Monthly Meeting, afterward called Kingwood. His will is dated July 2, 1737.

*Elias Doughty*², the father of Jacob Doughty³, was born about 1635 and died about 1690. His name is on the list of residents of Newtown, 1655-6. February 16, 1666, he was one of the patentees of Flushing, also March 14, 1685. About 1658, he married Sarah—, who died in 1726. In 1672, he was appointed one of the arbitrators in the matter of the boundary between Newtown and Bushwick.‡ He appears on the Flushing tax list of 1675 for "1 negereo, 12 landes, 20 madoes, 12 cowes, 3 to yere oldes, 4 swine, 40 shepe." In 1680, Elias Doughty was to have 200 acres between Hempstead and Jamaica on which to settle his children.§ In 1683, he is taxed for 3 males, 30 upland, 20 meadow, 4 oxen, 8 cows, 8 3-year, 9 2-year, 3 1-year, 3 swine, 40 sheep or 00-19-03. November 25, 1686, he is on the Dongau charter. He was a Justice of Queens County in 1693. In 1688, Elias Doughty gave deeds of gift to sons Francis, Charles, Elias, Jacob, Benjamin and William not of age. In the Census of Flushing, 1698, "Sarah Doughty, sons Benjamin and William, servant Sarah and Negros Okee and Mary" appear.

*Rev. Francis Doughty*¹, the father of Elias Doughty², is said to have been a member of the family of Doughtys or Doutys, of Escher, in Surry, and Boston, in Lincolnshire, England.†† He was the son of a brewer in Bristol, England, and the brother-in-law of Governor Stone, of Maryland.‡‡ Francis Doughty, sometime Vicar of Sodbury, was silenced for non-conformity.§§ He settled at Cohassit, or Taunton, Mass., in 1639, from which place and province he was driven by persecution for saying that "Abraham's children should have been baptized." He sought refuge with his wife and children in the Island of Aquetneck, now Rhode Island, in Narragansett Bay. In 1641, he removed to Long Island "in order to enjoy freedom of conscience" under the Dutch. He was the predecessor of Rev. John Moore at Hempstead. In March 28, 1642, Director-General Kieft issued the following patent for 13,332 acres at Mespatt, which embraced nearly the whole of the town of Newtown.

his Highness the Prince of Orange, as well as the Most Noble Lords, the Lords Directors of the General Privileged West India Company; to all those who shall see these Letters, Make Known, that We have given and granted, as by these presents We do give and grant, unto Francis Doughty, and associates, their heirs and assigns, in real, actual, and perpetual possession, all and every that certain parcel of land situate on Long Island, in this province, with the pastures and whatever else it includes, containing, in superficies, six thousand six hundred and sixty-six Dutch acres, or thereabouts, comprehended within four right lines, each two thousand Dutch perches long, the first whereof extends from the east angle of Hans Hanssen's meadow, dividing, according to the creek, the marsh into two unequal parts, unto the plantation of Richard Brutnall, and thence proceeds towards the north-east, passing through the middle of the fresh marsh to the rivulet surrounding the lands of Henry the Farmer, and following the same even to its mouth; the other line taking its origin from thence, bends towards the south-east, according to the main bank, going along the same unto the other creek, following the course of which from its mouth, until it attains the eastern extremity of the said marsh (from whence the aforesaid creek arises), thence turns again towards the south-east, until it has gained the length of two thousand Dutch perches; the third line taking its rise from the end of the latter, tends towards the west, of an equal length with the others; finally, the fourth running from the last-mentioned point towards the north-west, terminates at the above-mentioned eastern angle of Hans Hanssen's meadow, at which angle a large stone is erected for the greater certainty of the boundaries.

With power to establish in the aforesaid tract a town or towns; to erect a church or churches; to exercise the Reformed Christian religion and Church discipline which they profess; also to administer of right, high, low, and middle jurisdiction, to decide civil suits, not exceeding fifty Dutch florins; to impose definitively, and without appeal, in criminal matters, fines to an equal amount; to pronounce the first sentence in other civil and criminal actions of greater moment, and to execute the same, subject, however, to such execution being deferred, should an appeal be made to the supreme court of New Netherland; Finally, to exercise all rights belonging to the aforesaid jurisdiction, with power, moreover, to nominate some of theirs, and to present them to the Director of New Netherland, that a sufficient number may be chosen from them for political and juridical government; together with the right of hunting, fowling, fishing, and of trading, according to the immunities granted, and to be granted, to the colonists of the province, without any exception:

Wherefore the aforesaid F. Doughty and his associates, their heirs and assigns, shall be obligated, so long as they are in possession of the above-mentioned lands, to acknowledge the aforesaid Lords for their sovereign Lords and Patroons; to pay, after the lapse of ten years, the tenth part of the produce of the land, whether cultivated with the plough, hoe, or otherwise; orchards and kitchen-gardens, not exceeding one Dutch acre, excepted; Finally, to use no other standard than that of Holland; and so as to avoid confusion, to use Dutch weights, the Dutch ell and all other Dutch measures. All which we promise, under the foregoing conditions, inviolably to preserve, and bind our successors to the faithful observance of the same, by virtue of the commission and supreme authority granted to us by the Most Mighty Prince of Orange, Governor of the United Belgic Provinces. In testimony whereof we have subscribed these presents with our own hand, and caused them to be countersigned by the Secretary of New Netherland, and the seal of New Netherland to be affixed thereto. Given at Fort Amsterdam, on the Island Mannattans, in New Netherland, in the year 1642, the 28th of March.

Willem Kieft.

By order of the Director and Council.
Cornelis Van Tienhoven, Secretary.*

In 1643, after less than a year of existence of the new settlement, it was destroyed by the Indians in retaliation for the unjust attack made upon them by Director Kieft. During this year Mr. Doughty officiated as pastor. The settlers were driven to New Amsterdam where he continued his ministrations. He lost all by this colonizing venture. After the return of peace he with others returned to the desolate settlement where he remained for six months, after which he came to New Amsterdam and remained for several years. He preached to the English in the church within Fort Amsterdam. An unfortunate misunderstanding with his fellow patentees resulted in a prolonged legal contest which in April 1647 was decided against him. He appealed from the decision of Director Kieft who denied the right, fined him ten dollars and imprisoned him for twenty-four hours. The following are extracts from the "Remonstrance of the Deputies from New Netherland, July 28, 1649. The administration of Director Kieft in particular." The story is best told by the original documents.†

At this point we are met by one Franciscus Douthy, an English clergyman here, and one Arnoldus van Hardenbergh, a free merchant, also of this place; but as this will probably come before your High Mightinesses in full session, in the cases in which they appear, we shall give merely a summary of them. This clergyman, Franciscus Douthy, came to New England at the commencement of the troubles in England, in order to escape them, and found that he had got out of the frying pan into the fire. He betook himself, in consequence, under the protection of the Netherlanders, in order that he may, according to the Dutch reformation, enjoy freedom of conscience, which he unexpectedly missed in New England; and the Director granted and conveyed to him an absolute patent, with manorial privileges. He added some families now to his settlement, in the course of one year; but the war breaking out, they were all driven off their lands, with the loss of some people, and the destruction of many cattle, of almost all their houses, and whatever they had; they returned a while after that, and having consumed more than they knew how to obtain, they came to the Manathans, whither all the refugees at that time fled, and Master Douthy was minister there. After the flame of war had died away, and peace had been concluded, in such a manner, however, that no one had much reliance on it, some returned again to their land. The Director would fain see this man go back to his land, in order that every thing should have the appearance of being arranged, but as peace was doubtful, and Master Douthy had no means to begin with, he was not in a hurry; he went, however, sometime after, and resided there half a year, but he again removed, as it was seized; for in the hope that some others would establish a village there, a suit was instituted against the Minister, and carried so far, that the land was confiscated. Master Douthy finding himself aggrieved, appealed from the judgment. The Director answered, there was no appeal from his decision which must be final, and in consequence of his remark, sentenced the Minister to be imprisoned for the space of 24 hours, and then pay 25 guilders. We have always considered this act tyrannical, and regarded it as an instance of sovereignty. Arnoldus van Hardenburgh's case resembles this very much in its result, for after Seger Theunisse had been murdered by the Indians, at the Beeregat, and the yacht had returned to the Manathans, the Director and Council appointed Arnoldus van Hardenburgh and two others, curators of the estate, and the yacht was searched. And in it was found some property which had not been entered, wherefore the Fiscal summoned the curators into court, and claimed that the property was forfeited to the Company. The curators opposed it, and gave Hardenberch charge of the suit, who after some proceedings, was cast. As he now found himself aggrieved as agent for the general owners, he appealed to such judges as the owners would elect. Then the game was repeated; it was a high crime; the Fiscal made great pretence and a judgment was pronounced, the contents whereof were as follows: "Having seen the written demand of Fiscal Van der Hoeikens of and against Arnoldus van Hardenburgh, and that in relation to the appeal from our judgment, dated 28th April last, as appears by the signature of the above named A. van Hardenberch, from which judgment no appeal can lie, as the commission of their High Mightinesses the Lords States General and his Highness of Orange, proves to him; therefore the Director General and Council of New Netherland, regarding the dangerous consequences which tend to the injury of the supreme authority of the magistracy of this country, condemn the aforesaid Arnoldus van Hardenberch in the fine of 25 guilders, payable immediately, or to be imprisoned until the fine be paid, as an example to others." If the lion be now known by his paw, it can be seen that these people make nothing of the name of your High Mightinesses, His Highness of Orange, the honor of the magistracy, and have used the words, dangerous consequences, an example to others and more of the like description, in order to play off their own personages therewith. We have, therefore, placed this act alongside of that perpetrated against the Minister Douthy; and many more such pieces, or similar ones, are to be found in the record, if the entries be not altered, which is gravely suspected, as alterations have been sometimes seen in them. It is, then, sufficiently apparent, that pretty much every thing has gone amiss, and herewith shall we quit the subject, and pass on to Director Stuyvesant's administration, with a word, however, first regarding the clause sinisterly introduced into the patents, as the sequel will enable one easily to determine. For by the patents absolute conveyance was granted to the people who then thought all was safe, and that they were masters of what they possessed. The patents were next called in, on pretence that something had been forgotten in them; but it was not so, only 'twas imagined that something had been surrendered in the grant, and therefore a clause was added to the patents, which were signed anew; this conflicts directly with the patent, so that without distorting its tenor in the least, there is now a contradiction in one and the same patent; for the old deeds read thus: "And they enter on the land and valleys which appertain thereunto of old." And the clause says, No valley to be used before the Company; which can easily use all of it and have their competency. Another clause is usually inserted in the patents, which is objected to by every one, to wit: That they must be subject to all burthens which are already, or shall hereafter be imposed. That can be carried out ad infinitum, and it has already been enforced against divers inhabitants, and has discouraged others from undertaking anything on such conditions.

In the beginning, also, when Director Kieft was still here, the English Clergyman requested permission to depart to the Islands or to Netherland, as he had lived and labored a long while without proper maintenance, and as his land was now confiscated; but he always received an unfavorable answer and was threatened with this and that. Finally, it came to pass that he may depart on condition of promising under his hand that, wherever he should go, he would not mention, nor complain of the manner he was treated here in New Netherland by Director Kieft or Stuyvesant. This the man himself declares. Mr. Dinklagen and Commander Loopier, who were then members of the Council, also vouch for its truth. If the Directors can now justify it to their own consciences, 'tis a wonder what they will then do with such certificates; and many other things of a similar character have occurred, but very secretly.

The unjust proceedings of the Directors against Francis Douthey, the Minister, who, because he appealed from Kieft's unrighteous sentence, was put in prison, and obliged to pay a fine of 25 guilders before he could be set at liberty.*

Francis Douthey, an English Clergyman, was subjected to an utterly unjust condition before he was allowed to depart—never to mention how illegally he had been treated in New Netherland; and because he would not execute an obligation to that effect, he would not be permitted to leave.†

Francis Douthey being indebted to the Company about eleven hundred guilders, petitioned, in New Netherland, for permission to depart. The Director and Council are willing to allow him to do so, but think they ought first of all be paid; his incapacity so to do, was the reason why he was not allowed to depart, and it must be proved that the Director required from him any obligation under his hand.‡

To all the preceding accusations and the remonstrance from New Netherland, November 29, 1650, Secretary Van Teinhoven answers:

Francis Douthay, Adriaen van der Donck's father-in-law, and an English Minister, was granted a colonie at Mespacht, not for himself alone as Patroon, but for him and his associates whose Agent he was, and who at the time were residing at Rhode Island and at Cahanock and other places. Mr. Smith was one of the leaders of these people, for said Minister had scarcely any means of himself to build a hut, let alone to plant a colonie at his own expense. He was merely to be employed as a clergyman by his associates who were to prepare a bouwerie for him in that Colonie, in return for which he should discharge the duty of preacher among them, and live on the proceeds of the bouwerie.

Coming to live at the Manhatans during the war, he was permitted to officiate as Minister for the English in and around that place, who were bound to maintain him without either the Director or Company being liable to any charge therefor. And as the English did not afford him a sufficient support, two collections were taken up among the Dutch and English, on which he lived at the Manhatans.

The Mespacht Colonie was never confiscated; that is proved by the actual residence on it of the owners who had an interest in it as well as Douthey; but as the latter wished to obstruct its settlement and to permit no one to build in the colonie unless on paying him a certain sum down for each morgen of land, and a yearly sum in addition in the nature of ground rent, and endeavored thus to convert it into a domain, against which those interested in the Colonie, especially Mr. Smith, complained, the Director and Council finally concluded that the copartners should enter on their property, and the bouwerie and lands in the possession of Douthay be reserved to him, so that he hath suffered no injury or loss thereby. This I could prove, were it not that the documents are in New Netherland and not here.

I have treated already of the appeal. No clauses conflicting with the Exemptions are inserted in the patents; but the phrase—"noch te beramen" (hereafter to be imposed) can be omitted from them, if found objectionable.§

Francis Douthey, the English minister, hath never been employed by the Company wherefore it owes him nothing; but his English congregation is bound to pay him, as can be proved in New Netherland. The Company has advanced to the said minister from time to time, in goods and necessities, to the amount of about fl. 1100, as the colonial account books might show; this he has not yet paid, and he complains because he is unwilling to pay. I know not whether the Director hath required a promise from Douthey.

Rev. Francis then asked for permission to go to the West Indies or the Netherlands, but the Director declined to give his consent. In this year, 1647, he accepted a call to Flushing, L. I., and thus became its first minister. Here again, after a year or two, he fell into trouble for preaching against the government, and Capt. John Underhill locked the door of the church against him. He now made application to leave the country, and obtained permission only upon condition of not mentioning the ill treatment he had received from Directors Kieft and Stuyvesant. In 1648 or 1649, he departed for the English Virginias. He became the Rector of Sittingbourne Parish, in Virginia. While officiating here he baptized, in 1659, the eldest son of John Washington, grandfather of

George Washington.* The following extract from the Journal of the Dutch Embassy to Maryland, 1659, shows that he was in Maryland :

(1659) October 12th, Sunday. Accompanied Mr. Overzee to Secretary Calvert's to dinner, where Mr. Doughty, the Minister accidentally called. After the cloth was removed, talked about his charts or maps of the country, of which he laid on the table two that were engraved and one in manuscript. One was printed at Amsterdam, by direction of Captain Smith, the first discoverer of the Great bay of Chesapeake, or Virginia; the second appeared also to be printed at Amsterdam, at the time of Lord Balthamoor's patent; we know not by whom or where the manuscript one was drawn. All differed, one from the other. He wished to prove from them the extent of Lord Balthamoor's boundaries, but we, on the contrary, showed and maintained that if Chesapeake bay ran above, so crooked towards the northeast, they would come so far within our line. To this, he asked how could that be, for the English first discovered and possessed all these parts. Thereunto, we answered that the Dutch were three years earlier in our parts than they in theirs. To which he replied, that they took their beginning from Sir Walter Raleigh; and we said we derive our origin from the King of Spain. But, he retorted, you were not yet a free and independent nation. He was then told that the King of Spain was, at the time of the discovery of America, our King, and we were as much his vassals and subjects as they were the subjects of their King or Republic of England, but afterwards, when we were obliged to take up arms, and achieved our liberty, the King of Spain conveyed over, and to, us, in full propriety, by lawful right and title, all his own and other conquered lands in Europe and America. To this, he said that the King of Spain was indeed, in the West Indies, but not so far to the north, and that the English were the first discoverers. And we again observed that the contrary could be proved from Spanish journals and chronicles, and also that even the French had, in the year 1524, been before them in these parts. Lastly, being half angry, he demanded whether the English had not been the first in Delaware bay, for it obtained its name from them. And we answered, No; that the Dutch had been the first in the river, long before Lord Delaware ever came to Virginia, and we again asked: What right had the Kings of Spain, France or England, more than the Hollanders or the Dutch, to the New World—America? But these and such like discourses, running higher and higher, were left off; he said he had invited us as a welcome to the country, and thenceforward we conversed on other subjects, and parted from one another with expressions of friendship.†

Rev. Francis Doughty was a delegate to the convention, 1665, that promulgated the Duke's Laws.‡

William Lawrence¹, the father of Elisha Lawrence², was born in England and died, as shown by his will, in 1704. May 8, 1665, he held a proprietary share in Middletown. He settled in Middletown, N. J., May 1, 1666; December 30, 1667, he received lot number 31 and outlot number 28; 1668, he agitated with others the building of a mill; was Overseer, January 6, 1668, and again in 1670-71; July, 1669, was Deputy-Constable; December, 1669, was a member of the General Court; September 9, 1670, was a member of the Court held at Middletown, composed of the leading men of the Colony. He gave a quit claim to James Mills, of James River, Virginia, for his house and lands at Middelburgh, Long Island, which Mills had bought of him, the receipt of which had been destroyed by fire. The quit claim was executed at Middletown, N. J., December 3, 1670.* May 20, 1671, he was elected Constable; September 20, 1671, he was elected to the General Assembly to be held at Elizabeth Town but declined. He was elected again to the General Assembly January 1, 1672/3; was a member of the Assembly January 1, 1676; was elected Constable but declined. In 1845 James W. Lawrence, of Imlaystown, N. J., owned his bible. His first wife was perhaps Hannah Townsend; his second wife, whom he married in 1693, was Elizabeth Scudder (John, of Newtown) and widow of John Alburtis.

Amy Whitehead³, Jacob Doughty's wife, born 6, 17, 1676, died in 1742, was the daughter of Major Daniel Whitehead², who was born 1646 and died 1704, as indicated by his will, dated September 13, 1703, and his wife Abigail Stevenson.

Major Daniel Whitehead[†] was of Newtown, L. I. In 1683, at Jamaica, L. I., he was taxed on £118, 2 horses, 6 cows, 2 3 years, 3 2 years, 1 1 year, 2 swine, 45 acres; in 1684, was County Treasurer;‡ in 1686, he was on the Dongan charter; 1689, January 13, his house at Jamaica was searched by Lieutenant Churchill and twenty soldiers (Leisler affair); 1689-93, he was a Justice of Queens County; 1690, he was forced to leave New York; 1691-1704, represented Queens County in the Assembly; he objects to calling the Revolution happy. In 1699, he kept a public house at Jamaica. 1700/1, March 8, Captain Daniel Whitehead, Gent., was recommended for the Council; 1701, signed petition to King William; styled Captain and Major.

Daniel Whythead[†] was the father of Major Daniel Whitehead². The former died November 1668, aet. 65. 1650, he was one of the purchasers of Smithtown, L. I.; 1652, magistrate at Hempstead, L. I.; 1652, appeared before the Council in behalf of Hempstead; 1652, patentee of Newtown, L. I.; located at Mespat Kills; 1653, buys a lot at Brooklyn Ferry and sells; 1655, September 12, witnessed a conveyance from Gisbert Updike to Alexander Bryan; 1656, demanded of Governor Stuyvesant, allowance in titles on account of damages done by the Indians; 1657, "hath sixe yatts"; 1657, requested, with others, Stuyvesant to make out title to Oyster Bay; 1658, obtained a judgment at Hempstead; 1664, proved in Court that "he was the first purchaser of Horse Neck from the natives"; April 1666-November 1666, November 1666-April 1668, Overseer of Newtown; 1667, on Nicoll's patent for Newtown; 1668, elected one of the surveyors of Newtown. His wife was Jeannie Skidmore.

Abigail Stevenson¹, the wife of Major Daniel Whitehead, Jr., was the daughter of Edward Stevenson¹ and his wife ——. He was probably a brother or near relation of Thomas Stevenson, of Newtown, L. I. On December 13, 1640, he witnessed the Indian deed for land at Southampton, and July 10, 1662, was at Newtown, L. I. "The widow of Edward Stevenson" agrees to pay rent to the Director-General of New Netherland, according to the patent of 1652.* Besides Abigail, he had a son Jonathan², who married, July 16, 1684, Widow Mary Allen, Burlington, N. J. He was on the charter of 1686 at Newtown, and was at Burlington, N. J., 1684.

Lucy Stout³, died 1732, married Elisha Lawrence, January 12, 1691/2. She was the daughter of — Stout², and the granddaughter of Richard Stout¹, the founder of Middletown, N. J., and his wife Penelope Van Princes, née Lent or Kent.

— Stout². It has been impossible so far to determine which of the six sons of Richard Stout was the father of Lucy; perhaps Richard, who married Frances —.

Richard Stout¹, born about 1610, appeared on Long Island as early as 1643; in 1645, he was among the patentees of Gravesend under Kieft's patent; 1656, an inhabitant and probably freeholder of Gravesend; † January 25, 1664 (legal year), January 25, 1665 (our calendar year), was made the First Indian Purchase‡; the deed was from Popomora, chief of Neversink Indians, to James Hubbard, John Bowne, John Tilton, Jr., Richard Stout, William Goulding, Samuel Spicer, all of Gravesend. At the second sale, April 7, 1665, and at the third sale, January 5, 1665 (legal year), Richard Stout was also a buyer. The Proprietor's Records at Perth Amboy give the lands of Richard Stout and his various children. April 8, 1665, he, with others, received from Governor Nicolls the Monmouth patent.§ At Middletown he was one of the original members of the Baptist Church, 1667; he, with six others, was appointed at Shrewsbury, December 14, 1667, to receive monies from different inhabitants. He was a member of a court held at Portland Point, December 28, 1669. October, 1671, he was nominated Deputy to the General Assembly at Elizabeth Town in place of William Lawrence, declined. He acted as jurymen at Middletown, November 21, 1676. Richard Stout signed the Remonstrance of the Inhabitants of East Jersey to the King against the acts of the Proprietors, asking for the appointment of a competent Governor in 1700. He died in 1705; his will is on record at Trenton, N. J.; inventory, October 20, 1705, of personal property, was £64 08 00. John Stout, of Nottingham, England, was his father.

Penelope Van Princes, née Lent, came from Holland. The vessel bringing her and her husband was wrecked about 1640 near Sandy Hook. Her husband was killed by the Indians. She was wounded and left for dead on the beach. A friendly Indian secreted her in a hollow tree where she remained three days. He carried her to New York. She there met Richard Stout whom she married perhaps between 1643 and 1645 and removed to New Jersey and settled Middletown. She lived to be over a hundred years old.††

Martha Moore's religious life was of a deeply spiritual character. She combined a poetic nature with a thoroughly practical example. The Creator and religion were to her the foundation, corner-stone, and capstone of existence. In all her Christian experience she was never heard to express a doubt or fear as to the providences of God. When symptoms of an incurable malady were revealed to her by the late Dr. Agnew, with the confidence and simplicity of a child she set about arranging temporal matters for the end which was inevitably near. There was no need for a spiritual preparation save in the closer communion with the God whom for over forty years she had served. The strong light of a Christian life dispelled the shadows and illumined the weary hours when disease was making its terrible inroads. Of a timid and shrinking nature, she developed, when brought in contact with the world or when stern necessity called it forth, a marvelous strength. Hers were not weary hands which were folded in the long rest; only those who are left know the eager, tireless heart and mind which guided husband and children over the rugged places, smoothed the sick pillow, or poured upon aching hearts the balm of a deep sympathy. To her there was always a bright side to every sorrow. Many remember her for the cheery smile which beamed through what was to them impenetrable shadow which surrounded them and encouraged them to take heart of grace. Her mind was a storehouse of scriptural passages, but as the death angel hovered lower and yet lower over the household, she repeated more frequently than all else Psalm cxxi, while her favorite hymn, "How Firm a Foundation, Ye Saints of the Lord," passed her lips again and again in triumphant expression. "How firm a foundation," tested in the joyousness and through the tender, loving, care-burdened years of wifehood and motherhood, then when the shadows of life commenced to lengthen she laid aside all earthly ties without a murmur and stepped out into the eternity of God with a halo of unutterable glory about her face. Who shall say what scenes were revealed to her mortal vision as the Builder of the "firm foundation" called back to heaven this saint of the Lord*.

Edward Townsend was born at Royal Oak, Maryland. He was a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church and had various charges in Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware. He was a member of the Philadelphia Conference.

Rachel Phillips Flannery³ was the daughter of Rev. James Flannery², who was born in Ireland, January 11, 1811, died July 11, 1870, at Coventryville, Chester County, Pennsylvania, and Margaret Hubbert Macdonald, the granddaughter of Michael Flannery¹ and his wife Bridget O'Mara, who came from Tipperary County, Ireland, with their family in 1814. He settled at Wilmington, Del. He was drowned in a sail boat. His children were Mary, James, William and perhaps others. After his death his family was scattered. They were Roman Catholics and James was intended for the priesthood.

In the summer of 1830, in the solitude of his chamber, he obtained the grace of pardon. He immediately connected himself with St. John's M. E. Church in the city of Philadelphia, where he then resided. Such was the Christian zeal, and such the consistent piety exhibited by this young disciple of Jesus, that he soon made a profound impression in the Church of his fellowship, and exerted a reformatory and saving influence over his old companions.

In the spring of 1835, he was licensed to preach, and was forthwith employed by the Presiding Elder of the North Philadelphia District. He was a constant reader, an independent thinker, a man of general intelligence, and a most excellent preacher, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth. His sermons were well studied and carefully prepared, abounding with apt and forcible illustrations, and, being delivered in his earnest and artless manner, were always interesting, instructive, and profitable.

Brother Flannery was a genial companion, an accomplished gentleman, a firm and reliable friend, and possessed in a high degree the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit. Who ever doubted the sincerity and piety of James Flannery? Or who ever heard him make an invidious or disparaging remark of any of his brethren?

But it was in the home circle, among loved and cherished friends, and where he was recognized as husband and father, that his numerous and various excellences shone forth with the greatest luster. It was in the bosom of his own dear family, and where he was best known, that he was most highly appreciated, and where his loss will be felt and mourned for years to come.

Brother Flannery was an effective member of the Philadelphia Annual Conference for thirty-four consecutive years, during which period he occupied and cultivated many interesting fields of labor. Such was his faithfulness as a pastor, such his success in leading inquirers to Christ, and such his sympathy and affection for the people committed to his care, that he was generally beloved and revered, and his memory will be as ointment poured forth.

His general health was good during the whole of his ministerial life, so that his sudden removal was the more sad and mysterious. On Sunday, the 10th day of July, he preached his last sermons from Romans viii, 38, 39, and Psalm cxvi, 7. On the following Monday he was in his usual health, working in his garden during the afternoon of the day; and in the evening with his excellent wife, made some pastoral calls. They returned to the parsonage about 10 o'clock, when he was unusually talkative and cheerful. He retired to rest, and about 11 o'clock gave some indications of indisposition, and in a few moments quietly breathed his last. "He was not, for God took him." But he "was a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost and faith," and with his compeers, Hagany, M'Clin-tock, and Nadal, realized that sudden death was sudden glory;

His body with his charge laid down,
And ceased at once to work and live.

On the ensuing Friday a very large concourse of his people and friends thronged the church at Coventryville to participate in the funeral obsequies, sorrowing most of all that they should see his face no more on earth. An appropriate and impressive sermon was delivered by Rev. Dr. Castle, his Presiding Elder, from Job xiv, 10, who was assisted in the services by Rev. S. W. Kurtz, Rev. I. Dyson, and the writer. His remains were then conveyed to Pottstown Cemetery for interment. His estimable and deeply afflicted family may rest assured that they have the sympathies and prayers of the entire Church.*

James Flannery was ordained Deacon by Bishop Beverly Waugh at Wilmington, Del., April 8, 1838 and Elder April 5, 1840 at Philadelphia by the same Bishop. In 1836 he was sent to Manayunk and Norristown; 1836-7, to Haddington; 1838-9, Orwigsburg and Hamburg; 1840-1, Stroudsburg; 1842-3, Pottstown; 1844-5, Sanctuary, Philadelphia; 1846-7, Hatboro; Milford, Del.; Camden, Del.; Cecilton, Md.; Newark, Del.; Elkton, Md.; Marcus Hook, Pa.; Camden, Del.; Village Green, Pa.; Philadelphia; Agent of the Tract Society for three years; Phoenixville, Pa.; Coventryville. During the troublous times preceding and during the Civil War, he was an ardent patriot defending the cause of the Government at all times. On October 1, 1864, at Philadelphia, he was naturalized in order that he might cast his vote for President Lincoln.

Margarett Hubbert Macdonald¹, born in Philadelphia, October 15, 1814, married April 14, 1838, died January 24, 1899, in Philadelphia, buried in the family plot at Pottstown, Pennsylvania, was the daughter of John Macdonald² and his wife Elizabeth Hubbert. She was ten years old when Lafayette returned to America and gives her recollections as follows:

"I remember seeing Lafayette at Sixth and Arch Streets in an open carriage—then later, in the State House yard. He stood there and the school children passed before him in line. I remember hearing some one say, as I stood on a platform that was on Arch Street where I saw him first, 'I wonder if he is a spy.' I remember the arches on the streets where he was to pass, and I think they were allowed to remain in the streets a long time. I think he stood up in the carriage sometimes to respond to the greetings of the people. I am quite sure I saw him on different days—once on the street and another day in the State House yard. I think there must have been a trades display, for I remember the time I saw him on the street there was a large house in the parade with a large beef on the top of it, and this was allowed to stand in the yard of one of the neighbors, and the children used to play in it. I cannot remember how long it was between the times I saw him."

It was our great privilege and pleasure to form her acquaintance in the year 1850, and from that time the bonds of affectionate regard were strengthened. She survived her husband for nearly thirty years, and leaves three daughters to mourn her departure, all of whom were loving and true. Her unmarried daughter was her companion, and she never tired in her devotion to one who required almost her constant care. Though very feeble and trembling under the weight of years and bodily infirmities, she, accompanied by this daughter, found her way with regularity to the Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, of which both were highly honored members. One of the most touching scenes on which our eyes ever rested, was that of the many friends, who, after the benediction was pronounced, gathered about this aged pilgrim, extending to her the sweetest courtesies and congratulations. All were delighted in showing their reverence and love, for she was one of the meekest and most attractive Christians we ever knew. Her gentleness, patience and modesty won all hearts. She beautifully exemplified the principles of our holy religion by a perfection of faith and practice which made her a pattern of piety. "Age sat with decent grace upon her visage and worthy became her silver locks. She wore the marks of many years well spent, of virtue, truth well tried, and wise experience." Rev. Dr. Martin, her pastor, and the Rev. John Stringer, of Pottstown, officiated at the funeral.*

John Macdonald² was born in Philadelphia, October 2, 1785, baptized by Rev. Dr. John Ewing, October 22, 1785, of the First Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, died March 13, 1855, in his 71st year, was the son of William Macdonald¹ and his wife Elizabeth Shockoy. He was early left an orphan. His indenture in 1802 is an interesting document, showing the customs of the times. His mother at this time was dead.

This Indenture

Witnesseth That John McDonald with the consent of his Uncle and nearest friend Jacob Snyder of the City of Philadelphia in pursuance of the request of Elizabeth McDonald late of the said City deceased the mother of the said John, a little before her decease, hath put himself and by these presents doth voluntarily and of his own free will and accord put himself to Mathias Knor of Germantown, Cedar Cooper and to his heirs to learn his art, trade and mystery and after the manner of an apprentice to serve him from this day of the date hereof for and during the full end and term of four years and six months next ensuing. During all which term the Apprentice his said Master faithfully shall serve his secrets keep his lawful commands everywhere gladly obey. He shall do no damage to his said master nor see it done by others without letting or giving notice thereof to his said Master. He shall not waste his said Master's goods nor lend them unlawfully to any. He shall not commit fornication or contract matrimony within the said term. At cards, dice or any other unlawful game he shall not play whereby his said Master may have——(illegible)——his said master he shall neither buy nor sell. He shall not absent himself day nor night from his said master's service without his leave; nor haunt ale houses, taverns or play houses; but in all things behave himself as a faithful apprentice ought to do, during the said term. And the said master shall use the utmost of his endeavors to teach, or cause to be taught or instructed, the said apprentice in the trade or mystery of cedar Cooper and procure and provide for him sufficient meat, drink, clothing, lodging and washing, fitting for an apprentice during the said term of four years and eight months, to give him two quarters day schooling and at the expiration of the said term to give him two suits of apparel—one whereof to be——freedom dues. And for the performance of all and singular the covenants and agreements aforesaid the said parties bind themselves each on to the other firmly by these presents. In witness thereof the said parties have interchangeably set their hands and seals thereunto. Dated the eleventh day of February in the twenty-sixth year of American Independence &c Annoque Domini one thousand eight hundred and two

* Philadelphia Methodist.

He attended the old church (German Reformed?) at the corner of Vine and Crown Streets.

Elizabeth Hubbert was the daughter of Christian Hubbert and his wife Margaret Walker. He was born in Philadelphia in 1759, married May 18, 1779, Margaret Walker, of German descent, in Gloria Dei Church, Philadelphia, and he died June 21, 1840, in his 82d year. He was buried from the old homestead, Second and Poplar, in the graveyard on Otter Street, with military honors, wrapped in the American flag, borne on the shoulders of his comrades and escorted by two military companies. "Uncle Benjamin Hubbert" had his body removed to Rising Sun Cemetery.* He had a brother William(?), a starch manufacturer, at the corner of Second and Otter Streets, Philadelphia. He enlisted in the Revolutionary Army and served for nearly four years as the following letter shows:

O. W. & N. Div. Department of the Interior,
F. S. Bureau of Pensions,
WASHINGTON, D. C., February 13, 1892.

Sir:

In reply to your request for a statement of the military history of Christian Hubbert, a soldier of the Revolutionary War, you will please find below an abstract from his declaration for pension on file in this office, dated at Philadelphia, March 27, 1818:

"May, 1777, at Philadelphia in the State of Pennsylvania enlisted as a private and became a gunner in Captain Bartholomew Van Aehr's company of the Regiment of Artillery, commanded by the late Colonel Thomas Procter in the Pennsylvania line on the Continental Establishment, and was discharged by the late General Anthony Wayne in January, 1781."

His pension was allowed.

Very respectfully,

Green R. Raum,
Commissioner.

J. W. Moore, Easton, Pa.

This company† participated in the following battles: Three Rivers, June 9, 1776; Long Island, August 27, 1776; Princeton, January 3, 1777; Bound Brook, April 12, 1777; Brunswick, June 15, 1777; Brandywine, September 11, 1777; Monmouth, June 28, 1778; Block House, July 21, 1780; Green Springs, July 6, 1781; Yorktown, October, 1781.

His granddaughter (Mrs. Flannery) says: I remember how my grandfather used to stand before Washington's picture, and say with so much feeling "God bless his memory," and how excited he would get in talking over the war. He was a very large man, and light-complexioned. My grandmother was a little woman who dressed in a short gown and petticoat and wore a little sheer cap that fastened under her chin with tabs. These caps had always to be clapped dry to make them clear. My grandfather used to call my grandmother "My Peggy."

Margarett Hubbert Macdonald was the granddaughter of William Macdonald¹, born in the Highlands of Scotland, of that clan which "is by every rule of antiquity, power and numbers entitled to be spoken of before any other,"‡ and his wife Elizabeth Shocoy.§ He lived in Germantown, Pennsylvania. During the epidemic of yellow fever in 1798, he went to his place of business, 4th and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia, and never returned. It is supposed that he died of yellow fever and was buried in Potter's Field in Washington Square. It is thought that he was never naturalized.

Burd.Mary Armitage³ was the daughter of Reuben², born in England, a "strong pillar" of the Pennington Church, died 1783, the granddaughter of Enoch Armitage¹, born November 27, 1677, at Ligate, in Kirk Burton Parish, in the West Riding of Yorkshire, England, who set sail from Liverpool, March 14, 1719, arrived at New York May 30th, and later took up his residence on a farm, a mile northeast of Pennington, in Hopewell Township, New Jersey. In about two years after his arrival he was chosen clerk of the Township, and probably about the same time was appointed an elder of the Presbyterian Church. He attended the sessions of the Synod of Philadelphia, in 1722, 1723, and 1725. His name is found in the minutes of the mother Presbytery and occurs last in the Synodical Records of 1737. In the conflict in the Presbyterian Church, which issued in the schism of 1741, he, Thomas Burroughs, ancestor of Rev. George Burrowes, D.D., Edward Hart, father of John Hart, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, 1776, and Timothy Baker were prominent supporters of the "old side." The erection of the first church building in Pennington is ascribed in large part to the zeal and liberality of Mr. Armitage. His old Bible, printed in 1671, is still in existence. His wife, Martha —, died in England, August 4, 1713. Mary Armitage was the great granddaughter of John Armitage, of England.*

† Extract of a speech by Hon. Ely Moore, made in New York, in 1834, at a meeting held to urge contributions for the completion of the Washington monument.

In no one instance, perhaps, was Washington's influence with the army so strikingly exemplified as in his attack on the enemy at Trenton. O'er and o'er have I listened with intense anxiety, in the day of my boyhood, whilst my now departed sire, who fought and bled on that proud field, recited with thrilling interest, all that related to the enterprise. "It was on a December's night," would he say, "when our little heart-broken army halted on the banks of the Delaware. That night was dark, cheerless, tempestuous, and bore a strong resemblance to our country's fortune! It seemed as if Heaven and earth had conspired for our destruction. The clouds lowered—darkness and the storm came on apace. The snow and hail descended, beating with unmitigated violence upon the supperless, half-clad, shivering soldiers; and in the roarings of the flood and the wailings of the storm was heard by fancy's ear the knell of our hopes and the dirge of liberty! The impetuous river was filled with floating ice. An attempt to cross it, at that time, and under such circumstances, seemed a desperate enterprise, yet it was undertaken and, thanks be to God and Washington, was accomplished.

"From where we landed on the Jersey shore, to Trenton, was about nine miles, and, on the whole line of march, there was scarcely a word uttered, save by the officers, when giving some order. 'We were well-nigh exhausted,' said he, 'many of us frost-bitten, and the majority of us so badly shod that the blood gushed from our frozen and lacerated feet at every tread, yet we upbraided not, complained not, but marched steadily and firmly, though mournfully, onward, resolved to persevere to the uttermost, not for our country—our country, alas! we had given up for lost—not for ourselves—life, for us, no longer wore a charm—but because such was the will of our beloved chief—'twas for Washington alone, we were willing to make the sacrifice'. When we arrived within sight of the enemy's encampment, we were ordered to form a line, when Washington reviewed us. Pale and emaciated, dispirited and exhausted, we presented a most unwarlike and melancholy aspect. The paternal eye of our chief was quick to discover the extent of our sufferings, and acknowledge them with his tears, but, suddenly checking his emotions, he reminded us that our country and all that we held dear was staked upon the issue of the coming battle. As he spoke, we gathered ourselves up and rallied our energies; every man grasped his arms more firmly, and the clenched hand, and the compressed lip, and steadfast look, and the knit brow, told the soul's resolve.

"Washington observed us well; then did he exhort us, with all the fervor of his soul, 'On yonder field to conquer, or die the death of the brave.' At that instant, the glorious sun, as if in prophetic token of our success, burst forth in all his splendor, bathing in liquid light the blue hills of Jersey. The faces which, but a few moments before, were blanched with despair, now glowed with martial fire and animation. Our chief, with exultation, hailed the scene; then casting his doubts to the winds, and calling on the 'God of battles' and his faithful soldiers, led on the charge. The conflict was fierce and bloody. For more than twenty minutes, not a gun was fired; the sabre and the bayonet did the work of destruction; 'twas a hurricane of fire, and steel, and death. 'There did we stand,' would he say 'there did we stand, foot to foot and hilt to hilt, with the serried foe! and where we stood, we died or conquered.'"

The result of that action, gentlemen, is known to you all, as are also its bearings upon the fortunes of America. Had defeat attended our arms at that trying crisis, our cause was lost, forever lost, and freedom had found a grave on the plains of Trenton! But the wisdom and prudence of Washington secured us the victory, and, consequently our liberty.

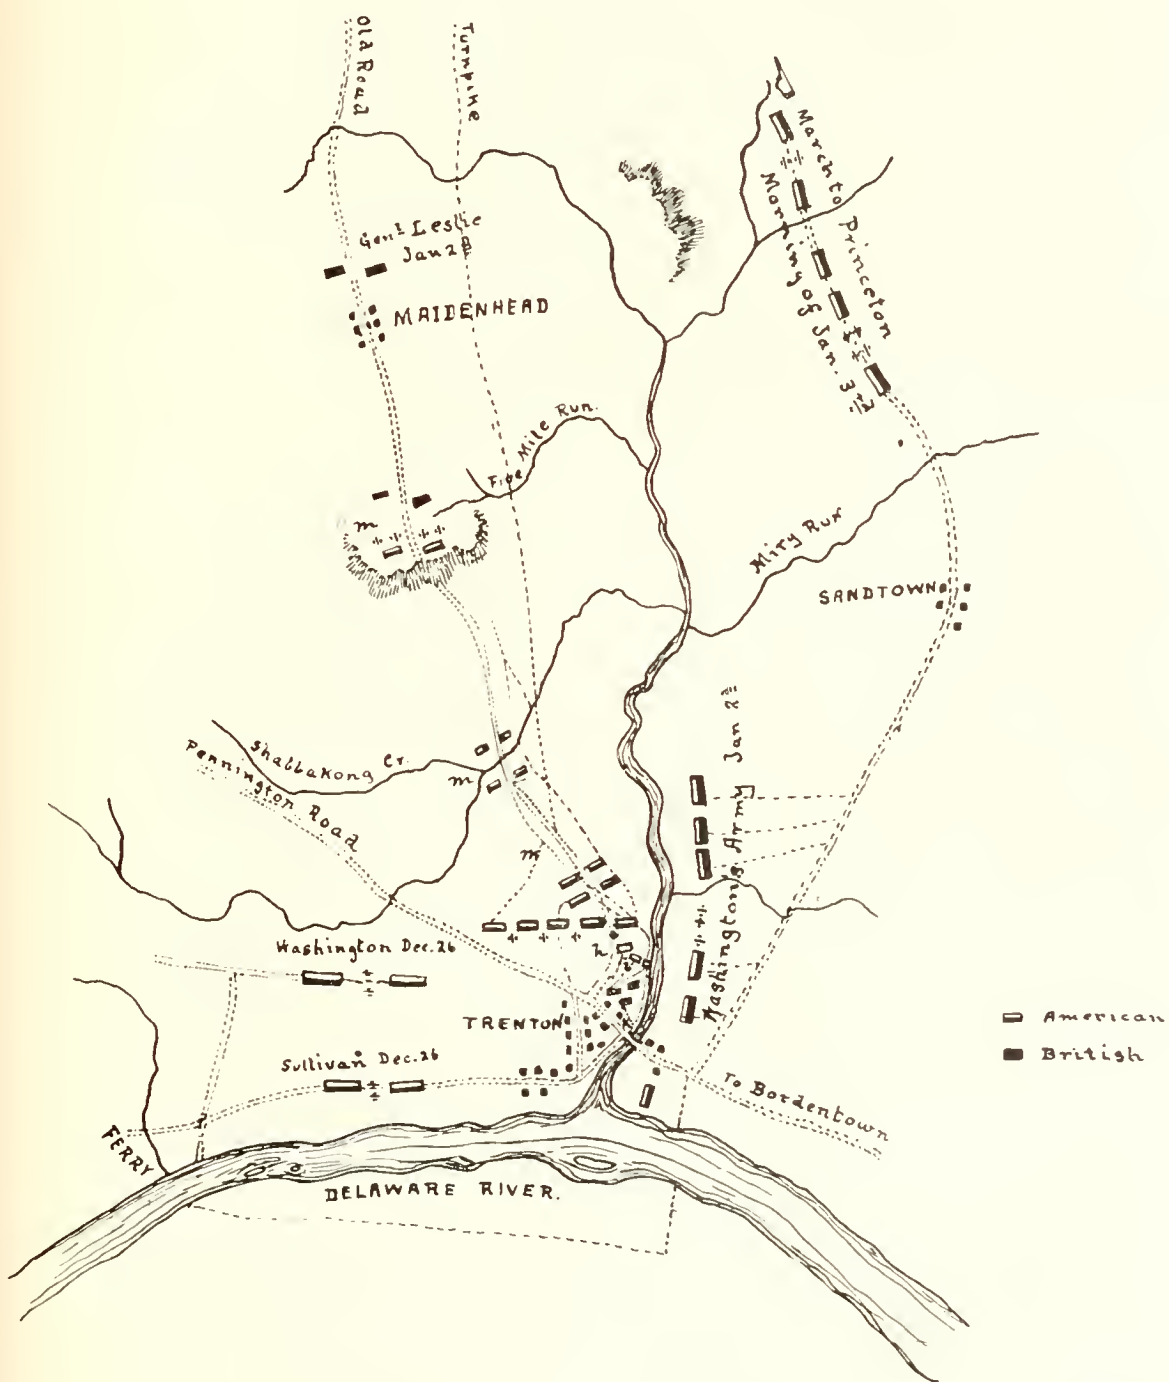

How great our obligation, then, and how much it behooves us, at this time, to show our gratitude by erecting to his memory a monument that shall tell to after ages, not only that Washington was great, but that we were grateful. Let it no longer be delayed. To pause, is to invite defeat; to persevere, is to insure success.

Elizabeth Traill³ was the daughter of Robert², who came to Easton, Pennsylvania, in 1764, from Sanday, Orkney Islands, Scotland, December 21, 1777. He was elected a member of the Committee of Observation of Northampton County,* and one of the Standing Committee of Correspondence and Clerk of the same. May 21, 1777, he was elected Major of the Fifth Battalion of Northampton County; in 1779, Assistant Deputy Quartermaster-General. He was a member of the Assembly, Sheriff in 1782, and Clerk of the Court. He was a member of the Supreme Executive Council of Pennsylvania for two years, and Prothonotary of Northampton County, and in 1796 was appointed Associate Judge by Gov. Mifflin. Robert Traill² married, in 1774, Elizabeth Grotz, daughter of Jacob Grotz and Elizabeth Shaffbuch. Elizabeth Traill³ was the granddaughter of Rev. Thomas Traill¹, of Sanday, and Sabilla Grant, daughter of Rev. Alexander Grant, of South Ronaldsay.

2826. Benjamin Green Clark⁷ (Maria Green⁶, m. Enoch Clark, Benjamin Green⁵, Phebe Moore⁴, m. Richard Green, Nathaniel³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Sarah Muirhead⁵ (William⁴, Jonathan³, Andrew², John¹).

Benjamin Green Clark⁷ was a prominent business man in New York City. He was a trustee of Lafayette College in 1874.

Sarah Muirhead⁵ was the daughter of William⁴ and his wife Amy Housel, of Easton, Pa., the granddaughter of Jonathan³, a Sergeant of the Third Regiment of Hunterdon County, N. J., in 1777, and his wife Mary Lott (Richard), who died 1837, aged 83, his wife dying in 1817, aged 57, the great-granddaughter of Andrew², who bought a farm near Harbourtown, N. J., in 1745, and died in 1794, aged 77, and his wife Elizabeth Waters (Jonathan), who died 1771, aged 49, the great-great-granddaughter of John¹, born in Glasgow, Scotland, came to America, to Long Island, where he married, November 22, 1706, Rebecca Bailey, died December 25, 1759, and removed to Hopewell, N. J. He was an elder and trustee of the Presbyterian Church of Hopewell at Pennington. In 1713/4, he was appointed the first High Sheriff of Burlington County, then including Hunterdon. He died 1725.

Benjamin Green Clark⁷ and Sarah Muirhead had

2837. || MARY CLARK⁸, m. Frank Thomson⁴

2837. Mary Clark⁸ (Benjamin Green Clark⁷, Maria Green⁶, m. Enoch Clark, Benjamin Green⁵, Phebe Moore⁴, m. Richard Green, Nathaniel³, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Frank Thomson⁴ (Alexander³, Archibald², Alexander¹).

Frank Thomson* was of Scotch descent. His great-grandfather, Alexander Thomson, one of the first settlers in the Cumberland Valley, emigrated from Greenock with his wife and twelve children in 1771, and settled on a farm near Chambersburg, which he called Corkerhill, after the name of his ancestral home. Frank Thomson's father, Alexander Thomson, represented his district in Congress from 1824 to 1826, was President-Judge of the XVth Judicial District of Pennsylvania for many years, and filled a professorship in the law school connected with Marshall College.

Frank Thomson's classical education was received at the Chambersburg Academy. He saw in the practical work of the railroad an attractive and promising field of action, and when seventeen years old he entered the Altoona shops of the Pennsylvania Railroad for instruction. A four years' course of training in this great school of applied science made him a mechanical engineer who could build a locomotive through every stage from the crude iron to the finished engine on the rails, while it also fitted him to operate as engineman the product of his own skill.

Colonel Scott had been appointed, by President Lincoln, Assistant Secretary of War, and placed in charge of all matters relating to the transportation of troops and supplies, and he called Frank Thomson to his aid as chief assistant. Mr. Thomson took the field immediately, the scene of his operations being the South and the upper Southwest, where he constructed railroads and bridges, repaired those which had been damaged by the exigencies of war, and directed the transportation of troops and the forwarding of supplies to the front. The signal success of his efforts in this dangerous undertaking not only received fitting recognition from the War Department, but marked him as a railroad man of rare promise. At the conclusion of active hostilities in this territory he was relieved from military duty, and in June, 1864, was appointed Superintendent of the Eastern Division of the Philadelphia and Erie Railroad, which occupied his time until March, 1873.

In March, 1873, he was made Superintendent of Motive Power of the Pennsylvania Railroad, at Altoona. On July 1, 1874, he relinquished this post to become General Manager of the Pennsylvania Railroad system east of Pittsburgh and Erie.

As General Manager he introduced a number of reforms in the management, administration and maintenance of the road. The standard track and solid road-bed owe their existence to his efforts, and the system of track inspection and the award of prizes for the best sections of track were instituted by him. The adoption of a superior standard of equipment, the building of picturesque stations and the ornamentation of grounds, the use of the block-signal system and other safety appliances, were all distinctive features of his management. He was also instrumental in developing that high grade of discipline for which the Pennsylvania Railroad is noted.

On October 1, 1882, Mr. Thomson became Second Vice-President, and on October 27, 1888, was advanced to the post of First Vice-President.

On February 3, 1897, Mr. Thomson was elected President of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of George B. Roberts. In this office he displayed the same energy and ability which had always characterized him, introducing many improvements and keeping the road at a high standard of efficiency.

Mr. Thomson's duties as the manager of a great railway required so much of his time that he was never identified with many other public institutions. A notable exception, however, is the Equitable Life Assurance Society, of which he was a director.

The social side of Mr. Thomson's life was quite as comprehensive as its business counterpart. He was a patron of art, literature and music, and his handsome home, at Corkerhill, near Merion Station, Philadelphia, is enriched with many examples of artists in painting and sculpture whose works are as valuable as they are rare. At this mansion, with the assistance of his daughter, Miss Anne Thomson, he dispensed a quiet but notable hospitality, to which his wide acquaintance, both in this country and abroad, contributed the presence of many men and women eminent in the higher walks of life. His famous "cabin," located in his grounds, uniquely decorated with the spoils of the chase, was often the scene of quiet entertainment, while his finely appointed house was given over to the more elaborate social functions.

Mr. Thomson was a lover of out-of-door sport. He was an ardent angler, a hunter of much merit, and generally selected for his holidays the season when he might indulge his taste for the fascination of the rod or gun. He was a member of the Philadelphia Club, the Union Club of New York, and other prominent clubs in both cities.

Traill Green⁶, M.D. LL.D., was educated at Easton Union Academy and Dr. Vanderveer's Minerva Academy. He commenced his medical studies under Dr. Joseph K. Swift, of Easton, "an eminent physician and surgeon and a highly cultivated gentleman," entered the University of Pennsylvania, and after two full courses enrolled himself under Dr. J. K. Mitchell, Professor of Medicine in Chapman's Institute, graduating from the University with the degree of M.D. in 1835. After graduation he was appointed physician of the Fifth Street Dispensary, Philadelphia. He returned to Easton in 1836. In 1837 he was appointed Professor of Chemistry in Lafayette College. In 1841 he accepted a call from Marshall College, as Professor of the Natural Sciences, and remained there until 1848 when he returned to Easton, and in 1849 was reappointed to the chair of Chemistry in Lafayette College. He was alive to all the interests of the town and prepared the way for many reforms by public lectures. He was the first President of the Board of Directors of the Easton Cemetery Company and continued so until his death, was a charter member of the Easton Gas Company, and Director from 1850, founder of the Northampton County Medical Society, one of the founders of the American Academy of Medicine, 1876, one of the first members of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, 1851, of which he continued a member and fellow until his death. In Lafayette College he was at various times Professor of Chemistry, Trustee, Acting President, Chairman of the Building Committee, a member of the Prudential Committee, Dean and general adviser. He built and presented to the College its Astronomical Observatory and after his death, his books and valuable cabinet of minerals. He fought, to a successful issue, the admission of women medical students into the clinics at the hospitals of Philadelphia 1868-9, into the County Medical Society, into the State Medical Society, into the American Medical Society, and into the women's wards of the State Insane Hospitals. He was conspicuously engaged in the work of temperance, and was prominent in the Law and Order Society. He served on the State Medical Board of Pennsylvania in 1861 and 1862. He was a member of the Board of Control of Easton from August 15, 1856 until April 3, 1866, and its President from 1858 until 1866. He was trustee of the Insane Hospital at Harrisburg for twenty-four years, and in 1868 the Legislature appointed him one of the Commissioners to build a new Insane Hospital at Danville. He was a voluminous writer, contributing many valuable articles to medical and other journals. He was an elder in the Presbyterian Church.

He devoted his whole life to the good of others. "For he was a good man, full of the Holy Ghost and of faith." *

Capt. Nathaniel Woodward⁵ was in the patriot army in the Revolution. He was one of the persons who made complaint of the "fresh insult" offered to the United Colonies when a supposed King's standard was seen floating from a pole on the property of John Moore, Jr., at Newtown, about May 27, 1776.*

2947. Moore Woodward⁴ (Mary Moore³, m. Nathaniel Woodward, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Sarah Coe⁴ (Samuel³, Capt. John², Robert¹).

Sarah Coe⁴ was the daughter of Samuel Coe³, an elder of the Presbyterian Church, of Newtown, and a trustee of the town, and his wife, Margaret, daughter of John Van Zandt, whom he married in 1712. He removed, in 1734, to New Hempstead (Ramapo), where he died in 1742, as appears from his will, dated May 11, 1741, proved October 30, 1742. She was the granddaughter of Capt. John Coe², who was born in 1626, and was prominent in Newtown affairs. He was the first owner of the mill on Flushing Creek, which afterward became Rapelje's. She was the great-granddaughter of Robert Coe¹, who came from Suffolk County, England, to Watertown, Mass., and May 29, 1635, went to Weathersfield, Conn., with Rev. Richard Denton's party. Later he was at Stamford, at Newtown, L. I., 1652, and finally settled at Jamaica, L. I.

Benjamin Coe⁴ was the son of Jonathan Coe³, who died about 1750. He was the grandson of Capt. John Coe², and great-grandson of Robert Coe¹. [2955]

Abigail Woodward⁴ and Benjamin Coe had

2962. Judge Benjamin Coe⁵ (Abigail Woodward⁴, m. Benjamin Coe, Mary Moore³, m. Nathaniel Woodward, Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Phebe Horton (Rev. Simon) and Elizabeth Edsall (Philip, Esq.).

Judge Benjamin Coe⁵* participated in the early revolutionary movements on Long Island. Without education, but possessed of excellent natural abilities, Mr. Coe rose to political eminence, enjoyed the office of judge, and a seat in the State Senate. He was, withal, a man of piety, and mighty in the Scriptures. At the age of twenty-five he became a member, and soon after an elder of the Presbyterian Church at Newtown, of which he continued through life a chief and most zealous supporter. He died March 9, 1821, aged eighty years.

Phebe Horton† was the daughter of Rev. Simon Horton, who came from Boston to New Jersey in 1727, graduated at Princeton in 1731, settled in East Jersey in 1735, and removed from thence to Newtown, L. I., in 1746. Here he labored assiduously, and with the respect and approbation of his people, for a period of forty years, and died 1786, at the age of 76. It appears, by the records of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, that in 1738, the Presbytery of Long Island was united with that of East Jersey, and Mr. Horton, probably in that way, became acquainted with the leading men of this congregation, which opened the door for his settlement, at Newtown, at a subsequent period.

42. Elizabeth Moore³ (Capt. Samuel², Rev. John¹) and Judge Isaac Hicks⁴ (Thomas³, John², Robert¹)*.

Judge Isaac Hicks⁴ was the son of Thomas³, of Flushing, Long Island, and Mary Washburn, the grandson of John², of Flushing, Long Island, where he was granted a patent of land by Governor Kieft, October 10, 1645, a member of the Hempstead convention that met February 28, 1665, and Herodeas Long, of England, the great-grandson of Robert¹, who came from London to America in the ship Fortune, which followed the Mayflower and landed at New Plymouth, Mass., November 11, 1621, bringing over parts of families left behind by those who came in that famous vessel the year before. He was a leather-dresser from Bermondsey Street, Southwark, London. His father, James Hicks, married Phebe —, was lineally descended from Ellis Hicks, who was knighted by Edward, the Black Prince, on the battlefield of Poitiers, September 9, 1356, for bravery in capturing a set of colors from the French. Margaret Winslow, the second wife of Robert Hicks¹, with her children, came over in the ship Ann, which arrived at Plymouth during the latter part of June, 1622. They settled at Duxbury, Mass., but two of the sons, John and Stephen, came to Long Island about 1642.†

§ Riker's Annals of Newtown, L. I.

Daniel Coe⁴ was the son of Samuel³ and ———, the grandson of Capt. John² and ———, the great-grandson of Robert*, born 1592, who, with his wife and children, took ship at Ipswich, in Suffolk County, England, and came to America in 1634. The family had been located in Suffolk County. He removed from New England to Newtown, L. I., and settled at last at Jamaica, L. I. He was High Sheriff from 1669 to 1672[†].

Sarah Moore³ and Daniel Coe had

3041. HANNAH COE⁴, m. — Johnson.[‡]

5. Joseph Moore² (Rev. John¹) and Sarah Halsey³ (Thomas², m. Mary —, Thomas¹).

There has been a difference of opinion among genealogists as to the location of this son of Rev. John Moore. Riker placed him at Southampton, and the preponderance of later evidence seems to confirm the truth of his statement. The records of Southampton indicate that he was there as early as 1683, in which year he is on the tax list for £83. It appears that he owned the lot occupied by John Moore, in 1641. He was baptized in New York, as shown by the records of the Dutch Church:

"1661, June 11, John Moor, Predict Joseph. tot Middelb. in N. Nederi."[§]

He died about 1726, as is indicated by his will, which follows:

IN THE NAME OF GOD, AMEN.

I Joseph More belongin to Southampton in ye county of Suffolk and Coloney of New York gentl.-man being well in body and of perfect mind and memory yet calling to mind the mortallty of my body and knowing it is appointed for all men once to die doe make and appoint this to be my last Will and Testament principally and first of all I recomond my soul into the hands of God that gave it to me and my body to the Earth to be desently buried at the discretion of my executors and as for such worly things and goods as it hath pleased God to bless me with in this life I demise and dispose in the following way and manner;

Imprimes I give to my beloved wife Sarah all that she broght with her; namely one feather bead and bolster and two pilows and a set of calyco curtains three coverlids; and one duck blanket and three pair of sheets and two chest of drawers and one trunk and six chairs varnished and all her cloaths and fifty pounds out of my estate.

2ly. I give to my daughter Elizabeth Sanford ten pounds and ten more.

3ly. I give to my daughter Sarah Cook twenty pound & twenty more.

4ly. I give to my daughter Ruth More one hundred pounds.

5ly. I give to my daughter Abigail More one hundred pounds and also that my daughters Ruth and Abigail shall have liberty to dwell in my house soe long as they live unmarried they providing for themselves.

Sarah Halsey³ was the daughter of Thomas² and Mary ——. The will of Thomas² is dated August 3, 1688, and his property amounted to £248, 15s, the granddaughter of Thomas¹ and his wife ———, who was murdered by the Indians. Thomas¹ was one of the twenty original settlers of Southampton, whose names are affixed to the articles of agreement formed at Lynn, Mass. He was in Lynn in 1637, and in 1638 owned 100 acres there. He died August 27, 1678, and the inventory shows property amounting to £672, 9s, 2d.

3051. Daniel Moore⁵, Jr. (Daniel⁴, Joseph³, Joseph², Rev. John¹).

The records of Southampton give "Daniel Moor, Jr., earmark slope under right ear, half penny upon same, slope on left ear, half penny under same, January 22, 1752." This shows that he was a resident of the town in 1752. In 1776 Daniel Moore* had sons, Henry, Joseph, Daniel, living in Bridgehampton. Henry is on the records with 2 males, 3 females; Joseph, 3 males, 4 females; Daniel, 2 males, 3 females. Rev. Isaac Todd [3066] in his letters, in reference to the genealogy of Daniel's family, does not mention Henry. He says: "David (a slip of the pen for Daniel) went to Albany, or near there, and settled. He had several children. One or more of these settled in Cherry Valley. One or two of the sons of David (meaning Daniel) were Presbyterian clergymen. A Daniel Moore† went to Albany and had twelve children; one lived at Monticello, about four miles from Cherry Valley; two were Baptist ministers, Joseph and Lucas. This Daniel Moore and wife Elsie — had a daughter, Eunice Moore, born January 22, 1765, at Knowlton, Warren County, N. Rev. Frederick Augustus Rauch,* Ph.D., D.D., Professor of German in Lafayette College 1833-8, was born in Kirchbracht, Hesse Darmstadt, July 27, 1806; he was graduated from the University of Marburg 1827, Professor in Geissen and Heidelberg 1829-31, first President of Marshall College from 1835 until his death, March 2, 1841; he was author of "De Sophoclis Electra," "De Resurrectione Mortuorum," "Psychology," "The Inner Life," and "Commentary on Goethe's Faust."

3086. Abby Elizabeth Moore⁷ (Loammi⁶, David⁵, Daniel⁴, Joseph³, Joseph², Rev. John¹) and Rev. Andrew Young and Prof. James H. Coffin.

Professor James H. Coffin,* LL.D., was born in Williamsburg, Mass., on the 6th of September, 1806. He graduated at Amherst College in 1828, and the year following, established, at Greenfield, Mass., the Fellenberg Manual Labor Institution, which for eight years continued to be one of the rarely successful instances of this system in our country. He afterwards became the principal of the Ogdensburg, N. Y., Academy, and in 1839, a member of the faculty of Williams College. In 1846 he became Professor of Mathematics in Lafayette College, where he remained till his death, February 6, 1873. Professor Coffin was an eminent scholar, a diligent and fruitful worker in mathematics and the sciences, particularly in the department of Meteorology. His work in this field he carried on from the time of his graduation, even in the midst of his constant labors as an educator. He was fitted for it by the best gifts of heart and head. He was a man of clear, strong, and candid mind, of scrupulous integrity of character, of conscientious regard for accuracy in the execution of his work, and above all, a lover of the truth for its own sake. His great work, "The Winds of the Globe," almost completed at the time of his death, was finished by his son, and published under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institution in 1876.

3319. Ruth Cook⁹ (Dr. Silas C. Cook⁸, Dr. Silas Cook⁷, James Cook⁶, Col. Ellis Cook⁵, Ellis Cook⁴, Sarah Moore³, m. Abial Cook, Joseph², Rev. John¹) and James Madison Porter³, Jr. (James Madison², Col. Andrew¹).

James Madison Porter³, Jr., A.M., graduated at Lafayette College in 1852, was admitted to the bar in 1855, and was District Attorney 1869. He was the son of Judge James Madison Porter², LL.D., to whom more than to any one person Lafayette College owes its origin; he was born near Norristown, Pa., January 6, 1793. His early education was carefully conducted up to his preparation for the Junior class, with the intention of entering the College of New Jersey, at Princeton. This purpose, however, he abandoned, and read law in Reading, Pa., with his brother, then President-Judge of the Third District, and was admitted to the bar April 23, 1813. He first located in Philadelphia, remaining till 1818, after which, until his death, he resided in Easton. In a few years he stood at the head of the bar in legal and forensic ability, although still comparatively a young man. In 1837-38 he was one of the foremost members of the convention for revising the Constitution of Pennsylvania. He was President-Judge of the Twelfth Judicial District from June, 1839, till July, 1840. Under President Tyler's administration, he was for some time a member of his Cabinet as Secretary of War. In 1849, he was elected a member of the State Legislature. In the spring of 1853, he was elected President-Judge of the Twenty-second District, but on account of ill health he was obliged to resign early in 1855. From this time he pursued the practice of law until his death, November 11, 1862. In 1843, he received from Marshall College the degree of Doctor of Laws. He was for twenty-five years President of the Board of Trustees of Lafayette College, and for many years, also, Professor of Jurisprudence and Political Economy. His reputation as a man of great learning and eminent legal ability drew many young men whose names appear in the catalogues of that period as students of law.

James Madison Porter³, Jr., was the grandson of Colonel Andrew Porter¹,* who served through the whole of the Revolution, and at its close was Colonel of the Fourth or Pennsylvania Regiment of Artillery. He was engaged for several years in scientific commissions connected with running the lines between New York and Pennsylvania. In 1809, he was appointed Surveyor-General of Pennsylvania. His wife was Elizabeth Parker.

6. Elizabeth Moore² (Rev. John¹) and Content Titus² (Robert¹, Silius, died 1637, married Constantia —, died 1667).

Robert Titus, the immigrant, embarked from London 3d April, 1635. The passenger list, preserved in the public record office, London, contains the following entry: "Theis under written names are to be transported to New England imbarqued in ye Hopewell, Mr. Wm. Bundic. The parties have brought certificate from the Minister and Justices of the Peace that they are no Subsidy men, they have taken the oath Alleg. and Supremacie."

Here follow between twenty and thirty names, some from Essex, some from Derbyshire, Herts and Cambridge. Among them are these names: Robert Titus, Husbandman of St. Katherines, aged 35; Hannah Titus, Uxor, age 31; Jo Titus, age 8; Edmond Titus, age 5.

After the arrival of Robert Titus and his family in Boston, in the summer of 1635, land was granted to him in what is now the town of Brookline, near Muddy River, adjoining Boston. Here they remained two or three years, when they removed to Weymouth, about nine miles to the southeast. Their land is described in the records of the town of Weymouth, and was located in the present village of North Weymouth, not far from the place of the unfortunate settlement made by Captain Weston, in September, 1622. In the spring of 1644 Robert Titus, in company with about forty families, including the minister of Weymouth, Rev. Samuel Newman, removed to the town of Rehobeth, just east of Providence, Rhode Island. While at Rehobeth, he was often entrusted by the freeman with offices of confidence. He was Commissioner from Rehobeth to the Court of Plymouth in the years 1648-9, and in 1650 and in 1654. He had some trouble with the authorities because he harbored Abner Ordway and family, they being of "evil fame." This probably signified that they were Quakers. In 1654, on the "23d of 3d month," Robert Titus sold his property at Rehobeth to Robert Jones, of Nantasket, and removed to Long Island. Edmond, his second son, had been in Hempstead since about 1650. John, the eldest, remained in Rehobeth, North Purchase, now Attleboro. His other children went with him to Long Island. His sons, Samuel, Abiel and Content were freeholders in Huntington, Long Island, in 1666. Robert Titus died before his wife. Her will was dated at Huntington, 14th of May, 1672, and proved 28th May, 1679. She gives to her son Content, her house and all her lands, he paying his brother John ten pounds. She adds:

"And also I give to my son John my mare, and to my son Edmond I give a horse, and to my son Samuel a browne cow and a yearlen stear, and I give to my son Samuel's wife my warming pan, and to my son Abiall's wife my smoothing iron, and to my son Content's wife my skimmer, and for what remnantes I have of serge and cloth, my will is that it be equally divided among all my children, and to my dafter Susane I give my sarg hoode, and for all the rest of the estate within the house and without it I give to my sun Abiall and Content to be equally divided between them two, and to this my will.*

"I set my hand in the presence of

the H mark of Hana Titus."

Robert Titus[†] had six children—John, Edmond, both born in England, Samuel, Susanna, Abiel, Content.

Content Titus² was born at Weymouth, Mass., 28th March, 1643. Hewas a landholder in Huntington, Long Island in 1666, and in Newtown in 1672. In 1675 he was taxed for 1 male, 20 land, 1 horse, 2 oxen, 3 cows, 1 3-yr, 2 2-yr, 2 1-yr, 10 sheep, 1 swine. He was active in church and state, was Overseer April, 1679 to 1681, Commissioner of the Town Court 1686-1690, Supervisor 1686, Assessor 1686, 1693 was a Captain[‡] in the war against the Indians, and became an elder of the Presbyterian Church in 1724 at the age of 80. He died 17th January,

Dr. Jacob R. Ludlow, born November 22, 1825, at Neshanic, N. J., graduated at the University of Pennsylvania, 1845, was admitted to the Medical Society of Somerset County, N. J., 1846, and at once began to practice at Neshanic; he was admitted to the Medical Society of Hunterdon County, May 6, 1851, and was elected Secretary the same day; he moved to Flemington at that time and practiced there until October 28, 1851, when he resigned from the Society, was elected an honorary member, and removed to Easton, Pa. Here he practiced till the breaking out of the Civil War, when he entered the army as Surgeon of the First Pennsylvania Volunteers. He afterwards became Staff Surgeon, and was in charge of various large general hospitals at Nashville and elsewhere.* At the close of the war he settled in Knoxville, Tenn., practicing his profession there for fourteen years. He was appointed by Governor Brownlow a trustee of the University of Tennessee, and was also a State Director of the Knoxville and Ohio Railroad Company. In 1880 he returned to Easton, where he still lives and practices. Dr. Ludlow has always been much interested in the welfare of the horse, and he found time some years ago to publish, under the name of "Science in the Stable," a small work giving the results of a long series of experiments and observations on the hygiene of that animal.

3921b. Dr. David Hunt Ludlow⁸ and Ellen H. Fulmer.

Dr. David Hunt Ludlow⁸, born at Easton, Pa., June 14, 1857, was a graduate of the University of Tennessee in 1875. After post-graduate work there and at the University of Cincinnati, he accepted the Associate Professorship of Mathematics at his Alma Mater, but resigned in 1879 to devote himself to law. He was admitted to the Philadelphia Bar in 1881 and practiced in that city until 1887, when considerations of health led him to Denver, where he took up the study of medicine. After graduating and taking two years of clinical work there, and special post-graduate study at Johns Hopkins and at the Philadelphia Polyclinic, he returned to Denver and became Lecturer on Physiology at the Gross Medical College. He was one of the founding members tion of Conecticute, and Edward Howell, John Gosmer and John Moore, deputed by ye Towne of Southampton, It was by the said parties concluded & agreed, and ye said Towne of Southampton doe by their said deputies, for themselves and their successors assotiate and joyne themselves to ye Jurisdiction of Conecticote to be subject to al the lawes there established, according to ye word of God and right reson with such exceptions & limmitations as are hereafter expressed.

"The Towne of Southampton by reson of ther passage by sea being vnder more difficulties and vncertainties of repaying to ye several Cortes held for ye Jurisdiction of Conecticote, upon ye mayne land, wherby they may be constrained to be absent both at ye times of election of Magistrats, and other ocations wch may prove prjudicial to them: for prventing wherof, it is agreed yt for ye prsent, vntil more plantations be settled nere to ye Towne of Southampton, wch may be helpful each to other in publike ocations [and yt by mutual agreement betwixt ye said Towne and ye Generall Corte for ye jurisdiction of Conectecote it be otherwise ordered] there shall be yearly chosen two Magistrats inhabiting wthin ye said Towne or liberties of Southampton, who shall haue ye same power wth ye Prticular Courts vpon ye Riuer of Conectecote, though no other Magistrats of ye jurisdiction be present for ye Administration of Justice and other ocations wch may concerne the welfare of ye said Towne, offences only wch concerne life excepted, or limbe, wch always shall be tryed by a Courte of Magistrats to be held at ye Riuers mouth, wch said Magistrats for ye Towne aforesaid, shall be chosen in manner following.

"The Towne of Southampton by ye freemen thereof shall yerely prsent to sume Generall Courte for ye Jurisdiction of Conectecote, or to ye Governor thereof, before ye Courte of Election wch is ye second Thursday in Aprill, the names of three of their members of their said Towne, and such as are freemen therof whome they nominate for Magistrats the year ensuing, out of wch ye Generall Courte for ye Jurisdiction shall chovse two, who vpon oath taken before one or both of ye Magistrats for ye pcedent yeare at Southampton, for ye due execution of their place, shal haue as ful power to proceede therein as if they had been sworne before ye Gouvernor at Conectecote. It is also provided yt ye freemen of ye said Towne of Southampton shal haue libertie to voat in ye Courts of Election for ye jurisdiction of Conectecote, in regard of ye distance of ye place, by proxie. But in case the Towne of Southampton shall by any extreordinarie hand of Providence, be hindered from sending ye names of ye three prsons to be in Election for Magistrats, vnto ye Generall Court in Aprill, or hauing sent, ye same doe Miscarrie, it is in such case then provided and agreed, yt ye two Magistrats for ye pcedent yeare shall supply ye place vntill ye next Generall Courte for election.

"It [is] agreed and concluded, yt if vpon vewe of such orders as are alreddy established by ye General Courte for ye Jurisdiction of Conecticote, there be found any difference therein from such as are also for ye present settled in ye Towne of Southampton, the said Towne shall haue libertie to regulate themselves according as may be most sutable to their owne comforts and conveniences in their owne judgment, provided those orders made by them concerne themselves only and intrince not vpon ye interests of others or ye Generall Combination of ye vnitd Collonies, and are not cross to ye rule of riteousness. The like power is also reserued unto themselves for the future, for making of such orders as may concerne their Towne ocations.

"It is agreed & concluded, yt if any party find himself agreed by any sentence or judgment passed by ye Magistrats residing at Southampton, he may appeale to sum prticular or General Court vpon [the] Riuer, provided he put in securitie to ye satisfaction of one or both of ye Magistrats at Southampton, spedily to prosecute his said appeale, and to auswer such costs and dammages as shal be thought meete by ye Court to which he appeals, in case there be found no just cause for his appeale.

"It is agreed & concluded yt ye said Towne of Southampton shal only beare their own charges in such Fortifications as are necessarie for their own defence, maintaining their own officers and al other things that concerne themselves, not being lyable to be taxed for fortifications or other expences yt only apertaine to the plantations upon the Riuer, or elsewhere. But in such expences as are of mutuall & common concernement, both ye one and the other shall beare an equall share in such proportion as is agreed by the united Collonies, vizt according to the number of males in each plantation from 16 to 60 years of age.

"The oath to be taken at Southampton.—I, A. B., being an Inhabitant of Southampton by ye Providence of God, combined with ye Providence of God, combined with ye Jurisdiction of Conectecote, doe acknowledg myself to be subject to ye Government thereof, and do swear by the greate and dreadfull name of the euerliving God, to be true and faithfull to the same, and to submit both my person & estate thereunto, according to all the wholesum lawes and orders yt are or hereafter shal be made and established by lawfull Authority wth such limmitations & exceptions as are expressed in ye Combynation of this Towne wth ye aforesaid Jurisdiction, & that I wil nether plot nor practice any evil against ye same, nor consent to any that shal so doe, but wil timely discover it to lawfull authority there established; and yt I will, as I am in duty bound, maintaine the honnor of the same, and of ye lawfull Magistrats thereof promoting ye publike good of it, whilst I shall continue an Inhabitant there; & whensoever I shall giue my voate or suffrage touching any matter wch concerns this Common Wealth, being cald thereunto, I wil giue it as in my consience I shall judg may conduce to ye best good of ye same, wthout respect [of] prsons or favor of any man; soe help me God in ye Lord Jesus Christ."

"The forementioned agreements wear concluded ye day & yeare aboue written, betwene ye parties aboue mentioned in behalf of ye Jurisdiction of Conectecott, and ye Towne of Southampton, wth refference to ye aprobaton of ye Commissioners, for ye vnitd Collonies, wch being obtayned the said agrements are to be atended and observed, according to ye true intent and purpose thereof, or otherwise to be voyde and of noe effect; and in testimonie thereof have interchangeably [] put to their hands."

Harvard College* was founded September 8, 1636, at the time of the assembling of the "General Court," of Massachusetts. For six years it was without a charter although it had a president and treasurer from 1640. 1642 was the year of graduation of the first class. The General Court established the "Overseers of Harvard College."

RESOLUTION OF THE STATES GENERAL AUTHORIZING THE SENDING OF ARMS AND AMMUNITION TO NEW NETHERLAND.*

Monday, 11 April, 1650.

Heard the report of Messrs. van Aertsbergen and other their High Mightinesses deputies engaged in the affairs of the West India Company; also read certain memorial presented by the Delegates from the people of New Netherland, purporting in effect that they have ready, agreeably to their High Mightinesses' order, one hundred of the two hundred guns in question, with powder and lead in proportion; Requesting hereby that Jacob van Kouwenhoven, Captain of the Burghery in Netherland, be authorized to distribute the aforesaid guns there at a reasonable price, with the knowledge of the Director, Council and Select men, according as the government shall think proper. Whereupon deliberation being had, it is resolved and concluded hereby to permit and allow the aforesaid Jacob van Kouwenhoven to distribute among the people in New Netherland, on the aforesaid conditions and modification, the above mentioned hundred guns with their accoutrements and appendages, and the petitioners shall be at liberty to send the remainder of the guns to New Netherland by another opportunity.

The English of Gravesend among others, having, with the Director's consent, given the Indians of Canuarse some stamped guns, in payment for their land, the latter came with them on the 6th ditto to Couwenhoven's house. Couwenhoven complained of it to the Fiscal, and to Mr. Montagne who, too, hath seen the guns; but without any result. 'Twas allowed to pass so.

THE MAGISTRATES OF GRAVESEND TO THE DIRECTORS AT AMSTERDAM.§

Honorable Gentlemen:

Your honors' letter, dated the 21st March, 1651, was handed us by our honored and revered Governor, agreeably to your Honors' commands, and we return you our humble and thankful acknowledgment for your Honors' care not only of us, but also for the general welfare and prosperity of the entire country, it being to us a very great encouragement that we should receive your favorable inclination not only to hear but to redress the just grievances of your subjects in this Province; also, that your Honors are pleased to maintain us in our privileges; wherefore shall we, on all occurring occasions, apply and repair to you, as our Lords and Patroons, for the improvement of whatever we consider out of order, or to obtain any further just privileges.

We especially take to heart your Honors' wisdom and candor in postponing to answer our previous letter until your Honors had fully examined and sifted the truth in regard to our actual government, being heartily rejoiced that you are satisfied therewith, and that you are resolved to support and maintain its authority under your Honors. We clearly acknowledge that the frequent changing a government, or the power of electing a Governor among ourselves, which some among us, as we understand, aim at, would be our ruin and destruction by reason of our factions and various opinions, inasmuch as many among us being unwilling to subject themselves to any sort of government, mild or strong, it must, on that account, be compulsory or by force, until the Governor's authority be well confirmed; for such persons will not only despise, scorn or disobey authority, and by their evil example drag other persons along, whereby the laws would be powerless, but every one would desire to do what would please and gratify himself. In fine, the strongest would swallow up the weakest, and by means of elections or choosing, we should be involved in like inconveniences. Moreover, we are not supplied and provided with persons qualified and fit for such stations. Therefore, and seeing that we have nothing to bring forward against our present Governor, but, on the contrary, truly, and in deed approving his public deportment in his administration, we request that he be still continued over us, and that no change be made.

We presume that your Honors are informed, by our neighbors of Hemstede, of the divers injuries and damages done them by the Indians, on various occasions, by slaughtering their cattle, as well as those of private individuals at other places. Although we doubt not your Honors have, by commands and otherwise, labored to prevent the importation, into this place, of muskets, powder and lead to be sold to the Indians; yet, whether by connivance or winking, or neglect of the officers appointed to that duty carefully to examine or inspect, or in consequence of the activity and cunning of the inhabitants, the fact is, so great a quantity of every sort were imported and sold to the Indians that the latter have thereby become obstinate and daring enemies, highly dangerous to our lives and properties, and difficult to tolerate; that we must daily suffer such injuries and losses from the Indians for which we have received no satisfaction, so that it is to be feared great dangers will arise herefrom to the ruin of your Honors' Province, unless seasonable remedies be applied thereto.

We are very sensible of your Honors' great care for the welfare of the entire country, inasmuch as you have appointed a detachment of soldiers for us, and have, also, heard our petition and allowed us to receive a good quantity of ammunition for our necessary defence wherefore we heartily thank you; requesting your Honors, at the same time, to continue the same annually on condition of our paying our Governor therefor. The reinforcement of soldiers has, however, been very small; and although we have had, this year, many ships here from Holland, yet that has been of little avail to the strengthening of these parts, on which subject we have taken the humble liberty to submit to your Honors these two questions or propositions. In case they are obtained or carried out, they will avail, considerably, to the strengthening of this country and the general revenue of the Tenth, to your Honors' profit.

First. Our Governor, considering, with the advice and approbation of others who will agree with him thereupon, the imposition of the traders and the little strength added by some of their shipping to the security and increase of this Province, inasmuch as they, for the most part, are traders and factors, who do not add to the public prosperity, but come and go solely for their individual profit and advantage, we have bethought ourselves of chartering some ships in Holland for the behoof of this country, to bring over whatever we stand in need of, vizt. passengers and servant men, which we mostly lack, as we are too much fatigued by work; provided your Honors will consent and permit these ships, and none other, to trade here. In case your Honors will be pleased to consent, for a certain time, and the Agents, who shall be employed therein, have the liberty to hire or engage servant men who, also, shall be distributed according to the good will and pleasure of the Governor and Council, the masters paying 50 per cent. for the expenses of their passage and other outfits, besides yearly wages agreed to with the servant man in Holland, this country will be able to absorb, yearly, five @ six hundred, whereby it will be greatly strengthened and your revenue increased.

Secondly. We most humbly request your Honors to expend, in Negroes or Blacks, whatever means you, in your wisdom, will deem prudent; for your Honors can best do that, in consequence of your interest in this place, on condition of our paying you for the same whatever price you will order. We humbly conceive that your Honors will, thereby, have double profits; first, from what we shall pay for those Negroes; secondly from the Tenth.

Gentlemen. 'Tis not with us as in our Fatherland, or as in Kingdoms and Republics which are established and settled by long and well experienced laws and fundamentals, best agreeing with the condition of the people. But in our little body, made up of divers members, namely, folks of different nations, many things occur in the laying of a foundation for which there are no rules nor examples, and, therefore, must be fixed at the discretion of a well experienced Governor; for we are as a young tree or little sprout now, for the first time, shooting forth to the world, which, if watered and nursed by your Honors' liberality and attention, may, hereafter, grow up a blooming Republic. After our humble recommendations and services to your Honors, we leave off and remain your Honors' obedient servants and inhabitants.

RESOLUTION OF THE STATES GENERAL REFERRING A LETTER OF THE AMSTERDAM CHAMBER*.

Tuesday, 21 March, 1651.

Received a letter from the Directors of the Incorporated West India Company at the Chamber at Amsterdam dated 28th instant, being an answer to their High Mightinesses' letter of the 14th of this month, to the effect that Jan Jans^s Damen has returned to New Netherland, and that Secretary Cornelis van Tienhoven is on his way hither, and that they are not aware but he will afford their High Mightinesses information on all points. Whereupon deliberation being had, it is resolved and concluded that the aforesaid letter shall be placed in the hands of Mess^{rs} Aersbergen and the other their High Mightinesses Deputies for West India affairs to inspect and examine it and report thereon.

1659, March 26.†

Jeremy Wood says that upon some conference I had with Armitage, two or three days after he had passed a deed of gift to his son, he told me "he had taken an opportunity, being Mr. Moore and Mr. Wood had been in the town, and gotten them to make a deed of gift of the £70 which I and Henry Pearsall stood bound for D. Whitehead, that at the end of ten or eleven years he should have both that and the moneys due from James Pine when the time was expired." Anna Gildersleeve, wife of John Smith Nants, says that Mr. Wood, of Newtown, lately deceased, being at my father's, told me, upon some discourse concerning the deed of gift to Manasses, that to his knowledge there was such a deed made, but whether he or Mr. Moore had written it he did not remember, but both their hands were to it. Elizabeth, wife of Jeremy Wood, saith that about seven years past, Martha, the late wife of Thomas Armitage, being at my house, she told me that "Mr. Wood and Mr. Moore were, as she supposed, then at her house, and were about making a deed of gift from her husband to her son-in-law;" and thereupon I going forth out of doors with Martha, we saw both Mr. Moore and Mr. Wood come out of the house, and then Martha said to me: "Now, I suppose they have done it;" and I having had some discourse with Thomas concerning the matter, he acknowledged that he had made a deed of gift of some part of his estate to Manasses, and that his children should enjoy his estate, lest the children of the stepmother should deprive his own children. INDIAN DEED OF 1666.*

KNOW ALL MEN by these Presents, that We, Rowerowestco and Pomwaukon, do acknowledge and confess that we have firmly and jointly sold, alienated and made over all our lands from us, our heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, to the inhabitants of Newtowne, alias Middelburg, to them and their heirs for ever, as their own proper and free land or lands, immunities, appurtenances, privileges and all whatsoever did unto the afore Sachems or Indians belong : from a small creek called by the Indians Canapaukah, where Burger's mill stands ; from thence, going upon a straight line north-eastward to a certain creek called Sackhickneyah, where Wessel's mill stood : so bounded by the Bay side till it come to the mouth of Flushing creek, so commonly called : so running towards the south-east bounded by the creek side, till it extends itself to the south side of the hills upon the line : from thence running upon the line westward by the south side of the hills, till it meet with the south line which is extended from the west branch of Mespau Kills, called Quandoequareous, by a Dutchman's land, called Hans, the Boore : from thence to the mouth of Mespau Kills, by the Indians so called: these aforesaid bounds or tract of land with all the appurtenances thereunto belonging, we the aforesaid Indians have sold in the year one thousand, six hundred, fifty and six, unto the aforesaid inhabitants : only we reserved the privilege of a certain part of upland lying on the south side of the aforesaid town, for our use for hunting, and sold them only the grass for mowing and feed and timber, and have really and fully sold them and theirs for ever the feeding, mowing and timber of the aforesaid land ; and were firmly bound and engaged in our bill of sale, never to sell or dispose of the said privileges which we had there reserved, to any other but to the inhabitants of Newtowne : therefore, we the said Indians, according to our words and obligations, do here by these presents manifest ourselves to have received full satisfaction of the foresaid inhabitants, for the privileges we then reserved in the foresaid tract of land, and do really and absolutely give them and their heirs for ever, as full right and title to all the privileges of the said tract of land, as we can or may of any of our lands that we have or shall sell : denying ourselves of any interest therein, or any claims of any other whatsoever of all the lands, appurtenances or privileges within the said bounds, we say, we have really sold as aforesaid to the inhabitants of Newtowne, as their own proper free lands : we say from us, our heirs, to them, their heirs, forever. Whereunto we have set to our hands, this 9th of July, 1666, and in the 12th year of his Majesty's reign,

Rowerowestco, x his mark.

Signed, sealed, in the presence of us,

John Pounds,
John Napper,
Armoriehern, x his mark.
Chawescome, x his mark.

Received of the inhabitants of Newtowne, full satisfaction for all the foresaid lands which herein is specified, we say received by us the 9th of July, 1666, the sum of fifty-five pounds for the first payment; the second and last payment, now paid, twenty-one pounds, nine shillings.

CHARLES R.*

"Charles the Second, by the grace of God, King of England, &c., to all, &c. Whereas we have rec'd severall addresses from our subjects of severall coloneys of New England, all full of duty and affection, and expressions of loyalty and allegiance to us, with their humble desire that we would renew their several charters, and receive them into our favourable opinion and protection; and severall of our coloneys there, and other our loving subjects have likewise complayned, differences and disputes arisen upon the limits and bounds, whereby unneighborly and unbrotherly contentions have and may arise, to the damage and discredit of the English interests; and thatt all our good subjects residing there, and being planters, within the severall coloneys, do not enjoy the liberty and privileges granted to them by our severall charters, upon confidence and assurance of which they transported themselves and their estates into those partes, and we having received some addresses from the great men and natives of those countreys, in which they complayne of breach of fayth, and acts of violence and injustice which they have been forced to undergoe from our subjects, whereby not only our government is traduced, but the reputation and credit of the christian religion brought into prejudice and reproach with the Gentiles and inhabitation of those countreys, who know not God, the reduction of whom to the true knowledge and fear of God; is the most worthy and glorious end of all those Plantations; upon all which motives, and as an evidence and manifestation of our fatherly affection toward all our subjects in those severall coloneys of New England [that is to say], of the Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Plimouth, Road Island and the Providence Plantations, and all other Plantations within that tract of land known under the appellation of New England; and to the end we may be truly informed of the state and condition of our good subjects there, that soe we may the better know how to contribute to the farther improvement of their happyness and prosperity; Know yee, therefore, that wee, reposing speciall trust and confidence in the fidelity, wisdom and circumspection of our trusty and well beloved Colonell Richard Nicoll, Sir Robert Carr, Knight, George Cartright and Samuel Maverick, our commissioners, and doe give hereby and grant unto them, or of the survivors of them [of whom we will the sayd Colonell Richard Nicoll, during his life, shall be always one], and upon equal division of opinions to have the casting and decisive voyce, in our name to visitt all and every the severall coloneys aforesaid, and also all power and authority to heare and receive, and to examine and determine all complaynts, appeals in all causes and matters, as well miletary as criminall and civill, and proceed in all things for the providing for and settling the appeals and equity of the said countreys, according to their good and sound discesions, and to such instructions as they or the survivors of them have, or shall from time to time receive from us, in that behalfe, and from time to time, as they shall finde expedient, to certify us or our privy councill of their actings or proceedings touching the premises, and for the doeing thereof, any other matter or thing relating thereunto, these presents or the enrolment thereof, shall be unto them and every of them, a sufficient warrant and discharge in that behalfe. In witnesse whereof we have caused these our letters to be made patent. Given at our court at Whitehall, the 26th of April, 1664.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF CONNECTICUT, MAY 12, 1664.

"Whereas his majestie hath bin Graciously pleased to confirm unto this Colony By charter all that part of his dominions in New England, Bounded as in the sayd charter is exprest wth the islands adjoining. This court doth declare that they clayme Long Island for one of those adjoining islands exprest in the charter, except a precedent right doth appeare approved By his Majestie. This court doth desire and request the Worshipfull Gov^r Mr. Math. Allyn, Mr. Wyllys and Captain Young to goe over to Long Island, and to settle the English plantations on the Island under this government, according to instructions given them. The afore-said committee are here Authorized to erect and constitute Quarter courtes or appoynt other fitt persons for the Keeping of court for the Administration of Justice, that all cases may be tryed according to lawe (life, limbe, and banishment excepted) and to doe there endeavors so to settle matters that the people may be both Civilly, peaceably and religiously Governed in the English plantations, so as they may win the heathen to the knowledge of o^r Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, By their sober and religions conversation, as his Majestie o^r Lord the King requires, in his gracious letters p^{at}ents, graunted to his subjects here in this colony, and in cases of crimes of a capitall nature, they are to have liberty to take the opportunity of the courts of Fairfield or Hartford; the like liberty they have in case of reveiwe; they may also give oath to those that are accepted by this court as freemen on the Island, and to doe what else they judg may conduce for the good of the colony."*

NICOLL'S CALL FOR CONVENTION, 1665.†

"Whereas, the Inhabitants of Long Island have for a long time groan'd under many grievous inconveniences and discouragem^{ts}, occasioned partly from their Subjection, partly from their opposition, to a forreigne Power, in which distracted condition, few or no Lawes could be put in due Execution; Bounds and Titles to Lands disputed, civill Libertyes interrupted, and, from this Generall confusion, private dissentions and animosities have too much prevaid'd against neighborly Love and Christian Charity. To the preventing of the future growth of the like Evills, his Majty (as a signall grace and honour to his subjects upou Long Island) hath at his owne charge reduc't the forraigne power to his obedience, and by Patent, hath invested His Royall Highnesse the Duke of York, with full and absolute Power, in and over all and every the particular Tracts of Land mentioned, wch said Powers by commission from His Royall Highnesse the Duke of York, I am deputed to put in Execution. In discharge therefore, of my Trust and Duty, to settle good and Known Laws within this Government, for the future, and receive yo^r best advice and informacon in a genall meeting; I have thought fitt to Publish unto yo^u, that upon the last day of this present february, at Hempstead upon Long Island, shall be a genall meeting, which is to consist of Deputyes chosen by the Major part of the ffreemen only; which is to be understood of all Persons Rated according to their Estates, whether English or Dutch, withⁱⁿ your severall Townes and Precincts, whereof you are to make Publication to the Inhabitants foure dayes before yo^u proceed to an Election, appointing a certain day for that purpose. You are further to impart to the Inhabitants from mee, That I doe heartily recommend to them the Choice of the most Sober, able and discrete Persons, without partiality or faction, the fruite and benefitt whereof, will return to themselves, in a full and perfect composure of all controversies, and y^e propagation of true Religion amongst us. They are alsoe required to bring wth them a Draught of each Towne Limitts, or such writings as are necessary to evidence the Bounds and Limitts, as well as the right by which they challenge such Bounds and Limitts, by Grant and Purchase, or both. As alsoe to give notice of meeting to the Sachems of the Indians, whose presence may in some cases be necessary. Lastly I doe require you to assemble your Inhabitants and read this Letter to them, and then and there to nominate a day for the Election of two Deputyes from your Towne, who are to bring a certificate of their Election [wth full power to conclude any cause or matter relating to their Several Townes] to meet at Hempstead upon the last day of february, where [God willing] I shall expect them."

"Your assured ffriend, Richard Nicoll."

ANALYSIS OF THE "DUKE'S LAWS."†

All actions of debt, account, slander, and actions on the case concerning debts and accounts are to be tried in the jurisdiction where the cause of action arose. Debts and trespasses under five pounds to be arbitrated, and if either party refuse, the justice to choose arbitrators, whose award to be final. All actions or cases from five to twenty pounds to be tried at the sessions, from whence there should be no appeal. Any person falsely pretending greater damages or debts than are due, to vex his adversary, to pay treble damages. If the action be entered, and the parties compromise it, yet the agreement is to be entered by the clerk of the court. Upon the death of any person, the constable and two overseers to repair to the house of deceased, to inquire after the manner of the death, and whether he left any last will or testament. But no administration to be granted, except to the widow or child, until the third session after the party's death. The surplus of the personal estate to be divided as follows : one third to the widow, and the other two-thirds among the children, except that the eldest son shall have a double portion. All amercements and fines, not expressly regulated by law, to be imposed at the discretion of the court. No justice of the peace, who hath set upon or voted in any cause, to have any voice in the court to which appeal is made. Parties appealing, to give security ; and in criminal cases they shall also give security for good behavior until the matter is decided. No arrest to be made on the Sabbath, or day of humiliation for the death of Charles the First, of blessed memory, or the anniversary of the restoration of Charles the Second, except of rioters, felons, and persons escaped out of prison. Persons necessarily attending courts, to be exempt from arrest. All arrests, writs, warrants and proclamations to be in the name of his majesty. All assessments to be made by the constable and eight overseers of the parish, proportionable to the estates of the inhabitants, and justices of the peace to be exempt from assessments during their continuance in office, payments to the church only excepted. Persons of known ability when imprisoned, to pay for their support, till the second day of the next session after their arrest, and longer if there be a concealment of property. To rebuke an officer with foul words, so that he depart through fear without doing his office, shall be taken for an assault. A servant or workman convicted of assaulting his master or dame, to be imprisoned. No foreigner or stranger to have attachment against an inhabitant without giving security for costs. No justice of the peace, sheriff, constable or clerk of the court while in office, to be attorney in any case, unless assigned by the court on request. No christian to be kept in bond slavery or captivity, except persons adjudged thereto by authority, or such as have willingly sold or shall sell themselves. Every town to set out its bounds within twelve months after they are granted, and once in three years the ancientest town shall give notice to the neighboring towns to go the bounds betwixt their towns, and to renew their marks ; the time for preambulation to be betwixt the 20th and last of February, under the penalty of five pounds for neglect thereof ; and owners of adjoining lands to go the bounds betwixt their lands once a year, if requested, under penalty of ten shillings. No person to follow the business of brewing beer for sale, but those skilled in the art. The name and surname of every inhabitant in the several parishes to be registered ; and the minister or town clerk shall truly and plainly record all marriages, births, and burials in a book to be provided by the church-wardens. No body to be buried, except in public places, and in the presence of three or four of the neighbors, one of whom shall be an overseer of the parish. Persons punishable with death, are those who shall in any wise deny the true God and his attributes ; those who commit any wilful and premeditated murder ; he who slays another with a sword or dagger, that hath not any weapon to defend himself ; those who lay in wait ; poisoning, or any other such wicked conspiracy ; lying with any brute beast [and the beast to be burned] ; man-stealing ; taking away life by false and malicious testimony ; denying his majesty's right and title to his crown or dominions ; treacherously conspiring or publicly attempting to invade or surprise any town or fort within this government, or resisting the king's authority by arms ; children above the age of 16, and of sufficient understanding, smiting their natural father or mother, unless thereto provoked or forced in self defence. Married persons committing adultery with a married man or woman, or any single person having carnal connection with a married man or woman, both to be grievously fined and punished, as the governor and council, or court of assize shall think meet, not extending to life or member. Any man lying with mankind, as he lieth with a woman, both to be put to death, except he or she be under 14, or be forced. Cattle and hogs to be marked with the public mark of the town and the private mark of the owner: and horned beasts to be marked upon the horn. Every cause of £5 or under to pay a tax of 2s. 6d.; if £10, 5s.; from £10 to £20, 10s.; and for every £10 more, 2s. 6d.

Whereas the public worship of God is much discredited for the want of painful and able ministers to instruct the people in the true religion, and for want of convenient places capable to receive any assembly of people in a decent manner, for celebrating God's holy ordinances, ordered that a church shall be built in the most convenient part of each parish, capable to receive and accommodate 200 persons. To prevent scandalous and ignorant pretenders to the ministry from intruding themselves as teachers, no minister shall be admitted to officiate within the government, but such as shall produce testimonials to the governor, that he received ordination either from some protestant bishop or ministers within some part of his majesty's dominions, or the dominions of any foreign prince of the reformed religion; upon which testimonials the governor shall induct the said minister into the parish that shall make presentation of him. Ministers of every church to preach every Sunday, and pray for the King, Queen, Duke of York and the royal family; and to marry persons after legal publication or license. No person to be molested, fined or imprisoned, for differing in judgment in matters of religion, who profess christianity. Church-wardens to report twice a year of all profaneness, sabbath breaking, fornication, adultery, and all such abominable sins. No person employed about the bed of any man, woman or child, as surgeon, midwife, physiciau or other person, shall exercise or put in practice any art contrary to the known rules of the art in each mystery or occupation. Courts of sessions to be held three times a year, and continue three days. The constable to whip or punish any one, when no other officer is appointed to do it. All sales and alienations of property, to be by deed or last will and testament. No condemned person to be executed within four days after condemnation, and the person executed to be buried near the place of execution. A woman causelessly absenting herself from her husband, and refusing to return, shall forfeit her dower. Every parish minister is enjoined to pray and preach on the anniversary of the deliverance from the gunpowder treason, Nov. 5, 1605; on the 30 Jan., to manifest detestation of the barbarous murder of Charles I. in 1649; and on the 29th of May, the birth day of Charles II. of blessed memory.

If any person commit fornication with any single woman, they shall both be punished, either by enjoining marriage or corporal punishment, at the discretion of the court. Persons guilty of perjury to stand in the pillory three several court days, and render double damages to any party injured thereby. Apprentices and servants absenting themselves from their masters without leave, to serve double the time of such absence. Every town to have a marking or flesh-brand for horses. No ox, cow, or such like cattle, to be killed for sale or for private use without notice given thereof to the town registrar. No person to be a common victualler, or keeper of a cook-shop or house of entertainment, without a certificate of his good behavior from the constable and two overseers of the parish; nor suffer any one to drink excessively in their houses after nine o'clock at night under the penalty of two shillings and six-pence. No purchase of land from the Indians shall be valid without a license from the governor, and the purchaser shall bring the sachem or right owner before him, to confess satisfaction. No one to sell, give, or barter, directly or indirectly, any gun, powder, bullet, shot, or any vessel of burden, or row-boat [canoes excepted] with any Indian, without permission of the governor, under his hand and seal: nor sell, truck, barter, give or deliver any strong liquor to an Indian, under penalty of forty shillings for one pint, and in proportion for any greater or lesser quantity; except in case of sudden extremity, and then, not exceeding two drams.

To be father, brother, uncle, nephew, or cousin-german to any party in a trial, shall exempt a juror from serving, if objection be made before he is sworn, but not afterwards. No person to reveal the dissenting vote of a juror on arbitration, under the penalty of ten shillings. Every town, at its own expense, shall provide a pair of stocks for offenders, and a pound for cattle, besides prisons and pillories in places where courts of sessions are held. The value of an Indian coat, to be given to any one who shall bring the head of a wolf to any constable upon Long Island, provided it be killed upon the island.

The court of sessions in each county shall take the proof of wills, which, with the wills, are to be transmitted to the "office of records" at New York, when the executors shall receive a copy thereof, with a certificate of its being allowed, attested under the seal of office.

The town marks for horses upon Long Island shall be as follows: for Easthampton, A; Southampton, B; Southold, C; Seatacot, D; Huntington, E; Oyster Bay, F; Hempstead, G; Jamaica, H; Flushing, I; Newtown, L; Bushwick, M; Brooklyn, N; Flatbush, O; Flatlands, P; New Utrecht, Q; Gravesend, R. At this early period the present town of Riverhead was included in Southold, and the town of North Hempstead, in Hempstead.

CONGRATULATION UPON THE ENACTMENT OF THE DUKE'S LAWS.*

" March 1, 1665.

" To his Royal Highness the Duke of York :

" We the deputies elected from the several towns upon Long Island, assembled at Hempstead in general meeting, by authority derived from your royal Highness under the Honorable Colonell Nicolls as deputy governor, do most humbly and thankfully acknowledge to your royal Highness the great honor and satisfaction we receive in our dependence upon your royal Highness, according to the tenor of his sacred Majesty's patent, granted the 12th day of March, 1664; wherein we acknowledge ourselves, our heirs and successors for ever, to be comprised to all intents and purposes, as therein is more at large expressed. And we do publicly and unanimously declare our cheerful submission to all such laws, statutes, and ordinances, which are or shall be made by virtue of authority from your royal Highness, your heirs and successors for ever: As also that we will maintain, uphold, and defend, to the utmost of our power and peril of us, our heirs and successors for ever, all the rights, title, and interest, granted by his sacred Majesty to your royal Highness, against all pretensions or invasions, foreign and domestic; we being already well assured that in so doing we perform our duty of allegiance to his Majesty, as freeborn subjects of the kingdom of England, inhabiting in these his Majesty's dominions. We do farther beseech your royal Highness to accept of this address, as the first fruits in this general meeting, for a memorial and record against us, our heirs and successors, when we, or any of them, shall fail in our duties. Lastly, we beseech your royal Highness to take our poverties and necessities, in this wilderness country, into speedy consideration; that, by constant supplies of trade, and your royal Highness's more particular countenance of grace to us, and protection of us, we may daily more and more be encouraged to bestow our labors to the improvement of these his Majesty's western dominions, under your royal Highness; for whose health, long life, and eternal happiness, we shall ever pray, as in duty bound."

DUKE OF YORK TO LIEUTENANT BROCKHOLES.*

[New York Entries, CLI, 38.]

Lieutenant Brockholes.

Since my arrivall here I have had an acct of ye result of divers meetings of my Comrs touching ye state of affayres at New Yorke, but untill I come to London [wch I doubt will not be till this ship is sailed], I cannot perfect those resolucons wch I shall take thereupon; only for ye p'sent, in confirmacon of wt my Secry lately wrote to you I send ys to tell you that I intend to establish such a forme of governmt at New Yorke as shall have all ye advantages & privileges to ye inhabitants & traders there, wch His Mats other plantacons in America doe enjoy, particularly in ye chooseing of an Assembly, and in all other things as nere as may be agreeable to ye laws of England. But yⁿ I shall expect y^t the Countrey of New Yorke and its Dependencyes shall provide some certaine fonds for ye necessary support of ye governmt and garrison, and for discharging ye arreares wch are or shal be incurred since ye obstrucons y^t have lately beene to the collection of ye publique revenue there. Wherefore you are to use all dilligence to induce ye people there of best note and estates, to dispose y^m selves and their friends to a cheerfull compliance in this point, and you may assure y^m y^t wt soever shal be thus rayسد, shal be applyed to those publique uses. For I seeke ye common good and protection of ye countrey and ye increase of their trade, before my advantages to my selfe in ys matter. By the next shipping I intend you shall heare further from mee. I am &c.

DUKE OF YORK TO GOVERNOR ANDROS.†

[New York Entries, CLI, 17.]

First yⁿ. touching Generall Assemblies wch ye people there seeme desirous of in imitacōn of their neighbour Colonies, I thinke you have done well to discourage any mocōn of y^t kind, both as being not at all comprehended in yor Instructions nor indeed consistent wth ye forme of governmt already established, nor necessary for ye ease or redress of any greivance y^t may happen, since y^t may be as easily obtained, by any peticōn or other addresse to you at their Generall Assizes [wch is once a yeare] where the same persons [as Justices] are usually present, who in all probability would be their Representatives if another constitucōn were allowed. (April 6, 1675.)

OBSERVACONS UPON THE CHARTER OF NEW YORK.‡

[New York Papers, I, 288.]

- Charter. That the Inhabitants of New York shall be governed by and according to the Laws of England.
- Observation. This Priviledge is not granted to any of His Mats Plantations where the Act of Habeas Corpus and all such other Bills do not take Place.

* N. Y. Colonial Documents, III, 317.

‡ New York Colonial Documents, III, 357.

- Chart. Sheriffs and other Officers of Justice to be appointed with like power as in England.
- Obs. This is not so distinctly granted or practiced in any other Plantation.
- Char. That the Supream Legislative Authority shall remain in the Governor, Council and the People mett in a Gen^l Assembly.
- Obs. The words The People met in a General Assembly are not used in any other Constitution in America; But only the Words General Assembly.
- Char. The Exercise of the Chief Magistracy and Administration of the governmt shall be in the Gov^r assisted by a Council; with whose advice and consent he shall and may govern and rule the said Province according to the laws established.
- Obs. If this oblige and restrain the Gov^r from doing anything without the Council it is a greater restraint than any other Gov^r is subject to.
- Charter. That according to the usage and practice of the kingdom of England there shall be a sessions of a Generall Assembly to be called to meet once in 3 Years or oftner.
- Observation. This is an Obligation upon the government greater than has been ever agreed to in any other Plantation. And the grant of such a privilege has been rejected elsewhere, notwithstanding a Revenue offered to induce it.
- Char. Which Representatives of the Province with the Governor and his Council shall be the supream and only legislative power of the said Province.
- Obs. Whether this does not abridge the Acts of Parliament that may be made concerning New York.
- Char. That all Bills agreed upon by the said Representatives shall be presented by them to the Governor and Council for the time being for their Approbation and Consent.
- Obs. This seems to take away from the Governor and Council the power of framing Laws as in other Plantations.
- Char. Which Bills so approved shall be deemed a Law for the space of two years unless the Lord Proprietor shall signify his dissent within that time. That in case the Lord Proprietor shall confirm the Laws within that time, they shall continue in force untill repealed by the Assembly. That in Case of Dissent or Determination of two years they shall be voyd.
- Obs. This Term of years does abridge the King's power, and has been thought inconvenient in other Plantations, and is different from Colonel Dungan's Instructions.
- Chart. No person shall be admitted to sitt in the Assembly untill he hath taken the Oaths of Allegiance and Fidelity to the Lord Proprietor.
- Obs. This must be altered at present.
- Chart. And by his submission and peaceable behaviour hath demonstrated his affection to the Government.
- Obs. This seems to be restrained by what follows.
- Chart. That the Assembly shall with the Consent of the Governor judge of undue elections, and of the Qualifications of the Representatives; And with the like consent to purge their house, and expell any member as they shall see occasion.
- Obs. This may be inconvenient, and is not practiced in some other Plantations.
- Char. That the forfeiture for not making due Entries shall be applied, one third to the Lord Proprietor, one third to the Governor and one third to the Informer.
- Obs. The application to the Gov^r is usuall.
- Char. That all Christians shall enjoy Liberty of Conscience, so they do not disturb the peace.
- Obs. This is practised in the Proprieties.
- Char. That every publick Minister upon Long Island shall be maintained according to subscriptions: That all Contracts made in New York for the maintenance of the severall ministers shall be made good.
- Obs. This is agreeable to the Practice of New England, but not of his Ma^{ty} other Plantations.
- Endorsed. Observations upon the Charter of New York.

INSTRUCTIONS TO GOVERNOR DONGAN.*

[New York Entries, 1, 108.]

INSTRUCTIONS TO OUR TRUSTY AND WELBEL^d THOMAS DONGAN ESQ^r OUR GENERAL AND GOV^r IN CHIEF IN AND OVER OUR PROVINCE OF NEW YORK AND THE TERRITORYS DEPENDING THEREON IN AMERICA. GIVEN AT OUR COURT AT WINDSOR THIS 29th DAY OF MAY 1686 IN YE SECOND YEAR OF OUR REIGN.

With these our Instructions you will receive our Commission under Our Great Seal of England, constituting you our Captain General and Gov^r in Chief of Our Province of New York and the Territorys depending thereon in America.

* New York Colonial Documents, III, 369.

1. Whereupon you are forthwith to call together the members of our Council for that our Province, by name Anthony Brokholes, Frederick Phillips, Stephanus van Courtland, Lucas Santen, John Spragg, Jervas Baxter, and John Young Esquires.

2. At which meeting after having published in usual manner Our said Letters Patents constituting you Our Captain General & Gov^r in Chief of our said Province & Territorys.

3. You shall take care yourself and alsoe administer to each of y^e members of y^e Council as well the Oath of Allegiance, as y^e Oath for the due execution of their places and Trusts.

4. And you are to communicate unto Our said Council, from time to time, such & soe many of our Instructions as you shall find convenient for our service to bee imparted unto them.

5. And Our further will and pleasure is that the members of our Council shall & may have & enjoy freedom of Debate & Vote in all things to bee debated of in Council.

6. And altho, by our Cômmission aforesaid we haue thought fit to direct that any Three of our Counselors make a Quorum; It is nevertheless Our will & pleasure that you doe not act with a Quorum of less than Five Members unless in case of necessity.

7. And that wee may bee always informed of the names of persons fit to supply y^e vacancies of Our Council in New York.

8. You are to transmit unto us & to y^e Lords of our Privy Council appointed a Committee of Trade & fforeign Plantations, with all convenient speed, the names and characters of six persons Inhabitants of Our said Province and Territorys, whom you shall esteem the best qualified for that Trust. And soe from time to time when any of them shall dye, depart out of our said Colony or become otherwise unfit, You are to supply y^e first number of six persons by nominating others to us in their stead.

9. And you are from time to time to send us & our Committee of Trade & Plantations y^e names & qualittys of any members by you put into Our said Council by y^e first conveniency after yo^r soe doing.

10. And in the choice and nomination of the members of our Council as also of the Principal Officers, Judges, Assistants, Justices & Sherifs, you are always to take care that they bee men of estate and abilities and not necessitous people or much in debt, & that they bee persons well affected to Our Government.

11. You are not to suspend y^e members of Our Council without good and sufficient cause. And in case of suspension of any of them, you are forthwith to transmit unto us & to our Committee for Trade & fforeign Plantations yo^r reasons for soe doing, together with y^e charges & proofs against the said persons, & their Answer thereunto.

12. And whereas wee have been presented with a Bill or Charter passed in y^e late Assembly of New York, containing several franchises, privileges, & Immunitys mentioned to be granted to the Inhabitants of our sd province. You are to Declare Our Will & pleasure that y^e said Bill or Charter of Franchises bee forthwith repealed & disallowed, as y^e same is hereby Repealed, determined & made void. But you are nevertheless with our said Council to continue the Dutys & Impositions therein mentioned to bee raised untill you shall with the consent of the Council settle such Taxes and Impositions as shall be sufficient for y^e support of our Governm^t of New York.

Whereas our intention tended only but to the preservation of the protestant religion, and the fort of this City, to the end that we may avoid and prevent the rash judgment of the world, in so just a design, we have thought fitt to let every body know by these public proclamation, that till the safe aryvell of the ships that wee expect every day from his royall Highness the prince of Orange with orders for the government of this country in the behalf of such person as the said royal highness had chosen and honoured with the charge of a governor, that as soon as the bearer of the said orders shall have let us see his power, then and without any delay we shall execute the said orders punctually; declaring that we do intend to submit and obey, not only the said orders, but also the bearer thereof committed for the execution of the same. In witness whereof we have signed these presents, the 3d of June 1689.

DONGAN'S CHARTER.

Thomas Dongan, Captain-General, Governor and Vice-Admiral of New York and its dependencies, under his Majesty James the Second, by the grace of God, of England, Scotland, France and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, Supreme Lord and Proprietor of the colony and province of New York and its dependencies in America, &c. To all to whom these Presents shall come, greeting: Whereas the Honorable Richard Nicoll, Esq. formerly governor of this province, upon application to him made by the inhabitants of Newtown, on Long Island, in the year of our Lord sixteen hundred sixty-six, did grant unto them a liberty or licence under his hand, bearing date the three and twentieth day of June, in the same year, therein authorizing and empowering them to make what purchase they should think fit of the lands situate between Mespat Kills and the head of Flushing creek, on Long Island, aforesaid, and which tract of land the said inhabitants long before had been and then were settling and improving; And Whereas the inhabitants of Newtown, in pursuance of the said licence, in the same year, did, in due form of law, purchase of and from the Indian natives all the said tract of land situate between Mespat Kills and Flushing creek aforesaid, together with all and singular the appurtenances to the same belonging or in any wise appertaining, to hold unto the said inhabitants of Newtown, their heirs and assigns for ever, as in and by the said recited licence, and a certain deed or writing under the hand and seal of Pomwaukon, the Indian owner of the said tract of land and premises, bearing date the 9th day of July, in the said year of our Lord, sixteen hundred sixty-six; And Whereas the said Richard Nicoll, upon farther application made to him by the said inhabitants of Newtown, in consideration of the premises, and for divers other good causes and valuable considerations, by virtue of the power and authority in him then being by force of his commission from and under his said Majesty, then his Royal Highness, James, Duke of York and Albany, &c., did, in and by a certain patent under his hand and seal, bearing date the sixth day of March, sixteen hundred sixty-six, grant and assure to Capt. Richard Betts, Capt. Thomas Lawrence, Capt. John Coe, John Burroughes, Ralph Hunt, Daniel Whitehead, and Burger Joost, as patentees for and on behalf of themselves and their associates, the freeholders and inhabitants of Newtown aforesaid, their heirs, successors and assigns, all that the said tract of land herein mentioned to have been purchased from the Indian natives as aforesaid, bounded on the east by Flushing creek and a line to be drawn from the head thereof due south, extending to the south side of the hills; on the north by the Sound; on the west by the said Mespit creek or kills, and a line to be drawn from the most westerly branch thereof due south, extending unto the south side of the said hills; and on the south by a straight line to be drawn from the south point of the said west line, amongst the south side of the said hills, until it meets with the said east line forementioned to extend from the head of Flushing creek as aforesaid, as also all that one third part of a certain neck of meadow called Seller Neck, situate, lying and being within the bounds of Jamaica, upon the south side of Long Island, as also liberty to cut what timber within the bounds of Jamaica aforesaid they should have occasion for, for the fencing of the said neck, and to make and lay out to themselves what highway or highways they should think fit, for their free and convenient egress and regress, to or from the aforesaid neck or parcel of meadow, together with all and singular the havens, harbors, creeks, quarries, woods, meadows, pastures, marshes, waters, rivers, lakes, fishing, hawking, hunting, and fowling, profits, commodities, emoluments, hereditaments, and appurtenances to the said tract of land and premises belonging or in anywise appertaining, To Hold unto the said patentees and their associates, their heirs, successors, and assigns for ever, at and under such duties and acknowledgements as then were or thereafter should be established by the laws of this government under the obedience of his Royal Highness, his heirs and successors; and further, in and by the said patent the said Richard Nicoll did ratify, confirm and grant unto the said patentees, their associates, their heirs, successors and assigns, all the privileges belonging to any town within this government; and that the place of their habitation continue and retain the name of Newtown, by which name and style to be distinguished and known in all bargains, sales, deeds records, and writings whatsoever, as in and by the said patent remaining upon record, relation being thereunto had, may more fully and at large appear; And Whereas the said patentees and the present freeholders and inhabitants of the said town of Newtown, hereafter named, have, according to the custom and practice of this province, made several divisions, allotments, distinct settlements and improvements of several pieces and parcels of the above recited tract of land within the limits above recited, at their own proper cost and charge; And Whereas the present inhabitants and freeholders have made application unto me by William Lawrence, Joseph Sackett, John Way, and Content Titus, persons deputed by them, for a more full and ample confirmation of the above said tract or parcel of land and premises contained in the aforesaid patent; Now, for a confirmation unto the present freeholders and inhabitants of the said town of Newtown, their heirs and assigns, in the quiet and peaceable possession and enjoyment of the aforesaid tract of land and premises, Know Ye, that I, the said Thomas Dongan, in consideration of the premises, and for divers other good and lawful considerations, by virtue of the commission and authority in me now being, from and under his said Majesty, and power in me residing, I have ratified, confirmed and granted, and by these presents do ratify, confirm and grant unto Captain Richard Betts, Thomas Stevenson, Gershom Moore, Jonathan Hazard, Samuel Moore, Daniel Bloomfield, Caleb Leverich, Edward Stevenson, Joseph Sackett, Samuel Scudder, Robert Field, Sen., Thomas Wandell, John Ketcham, Thomas Pettit, John Way, Robert Field, Jun., Jonathan Strickland, John Smith, Josias Furman, Sen., George Wood, Sen., Nathan Fish, Edward Hunt, Jeremiah Burroughs, Richard Betts, Thomas Betts, John Scudder, Jun., Jonathan Stevenson, Thomas Case, John Alburtus, James Way, Cornelis Jansen, Abram Joris, John Coe, Samuel Fish, Joseph Burroughs, William Osborn, John Burroughs, Thomas Robinson, Jane Hays, Jacob Reeder, John Reeder, Richard Owen, Wouter Gysbertsen, John Pettit, Thomas Morrell, John Roberts, Isaac Swinton, Elias Doughty, Thomas Lawrence, William Lawrence, John Lawrence, William Hallett, Sen., William Hallett, Jun., Samuel Hallett, Hendrick Martensen, Robert Blackwell, John Parcell, William Parcell, Joris Stevensen, Thomas Parcell, Steven Jorissen, John Bockhout, Engeltie Burger, Thomas Skillman, John Woolstoncroftes, Jan Jansen Fyn, Jane Rider, Peter Bockhout, Johannes Lourense, Richard Alsop, John Allene, John Denman, John Rosell, Hendrick Barent Smith, Henry Mayle, Sen., Henry Mayle, Jun., Joseph Reed, John Reed, Joseph Phillips, Theophilus Phillips, Roelof Pietersen, Benjamin Severens, Gershom Hazard, Anthony Gleane, Jacob Leonardsen vander Grift, Luke Depaw, Francis Way, John Wilson, Nathaniel Pettit, Moses Pettit, John Furman, Stoffel Van Laer, Samuel Ketcham, John Ramsden, Rynier Willemisen, Abraham Rycke, Jan Harcksen, Philip Ketcham, Benjamin Cornish, Francis Combs, Isaac Gray, Josias Furman, Jun., Henry Sawtell, Thomas Etherington, Content Titus, Lambert Woodward, Nathaniel Woodward, Joseph Reeder, Jeremiah Reeder, John Bull, John Fish, John Moore, Thomas Morrell Jun., the present freeholders and inhabitants of the said town of Newtown, their heirs, successors and assigns for ever, all and singular the before recited tracts, neck and parcels of land and meadows mentioned and set forth limited and bounded as aforesaid, by the afore recited patent together with all and singular a certain neck or parcel of land called Plunder's Neck, situate likewise on the south side of Long Island, having on the east Jamaica limits, on the west a small brook, as also all and singular the houses messuages, tenements, fencings, buildings, garden, orchards, trees, woods, underwoods, pastures, feedings, common of pastures, meadows, marshes, lakes, ponds, creeks, harbors, rivers, rivulets, brooks, streams, easements, and highway or highways, as also all and singular the islands, mines, and minerals [royal mines only excepted],

ISLAND OF NASSAU.‡

April, 10, 1693, the name of Long Island was changed to the "Island of Nassau," an alteration which arose from political vanity, and was neither popular, or generally adopted. The act, although it is believed never, explicitly repealed, was suffered to become obsolete by disuse.

The words of this act are as follows:—

"Be it Enacted by the Governor, and Council, and Representatives, convened in General Assembly, and by the authority of the same, That the Island commonly called and known by the Name of Long Island, shall from henceforth be called the Island of Nassau; and that after the Publication hereof, all their Majesties loving Subjects are hereby required, in all Grants, Patents, Deeds, Conveyances, Bargains of Sale, Bills, Bonds, Records, and other Instruments in Writing, that shall hereafter be made, granted, conveyed, bargained, sold, and executed, for or concerning the said Island, or any Part or Place, within the same, or in any County thereof, to call and denominate the said Island in all such deeds and Escripts, as aforesaid, the Island of Nassau; any Thing contained in any former Act to the Contrary hereof in any wise notwithstanding."

† New England Historical Genealogical Register, XX, 1872, 253. Mar. 1637, In re Anne Hutchison, among the approvers of the remonstrance of Boston were John Sanfoard, Richard Cooke, John Biggs, Edward Bates, John Compton; of Ipswich, Mr. Foster. Spark's American Biography, XVI, New Series.

‡ Maidstone is in the west centre of Kent County. Cranbrooke is about twelve miles due south from it, while Loose, Linton, and Horsmonden are about on the same line going south from Maidstone to Cranbrooke. Langley is east of the line, and Harrietsham east again of it, both near Loose. Brenchley is west, and Stapelhurst east of the line, about parallel to Horsmonden. Tenderden is southeast of Cranbrooke, with Wittersham south of Tenderden, and Lydd, once a seaport, is still farther to the southeast, almost to Dengeness Head. Sadomi is doubtless an error in copying.

§ Rachel Bigg's will dated November 17, 1646, Suffolk Wills, I, 89. Children: John, of Maidstone, d. 1641; Smallhope, d. before 1641; a daughter m. Hopestill Foster; a daughter m. Peter Masters; a daughter m. John Stowe (of Roxbury).

† I trace from Lewis Moore, of Rocky Hill, N. J., by a paper bearing date 1772. It consists of three affidavits by as many persons who knew Lewis Moore and his family. These are attested by the then Mayor of the City of New York and by the then Governor of the Province of New York, to which are attached the seals of both city and province. The seal sent you is a copy of one my grandfather owned and which after his death came into the possession of one of my uncles. He died among strangers and the original has been lost. I have a miniature portrait of John Moore, of Bombay, date about 1770, also one of his brother William Moore, dated 1777, and one of John W., a son of William, about 1818. (The seal is like the one on the cover of this book. J. W. M.)

§ Tradition—Emmor Moore's father (possibly Emmor himself) kept store near the Brandywine, in Pennsylvania, and was well off. He failed on account of the depreciation of Continental money. Emmor, and possibly his father, removed to Westmoreland Co. One child was born there, John, and possibly all were. The family afterward removed to Eastern Ohio and Emmor died there 1810. During the battle of Brandywine 16 wounded soldiers were carried to Emmor Moore's father's house.

 His will, dated Nov., 1668, mentions John (who receives a double portion), Thomas, "if he be alive and demand the same," the sum of 5 shillings, Samuel 1/3, John having 2/3, etc. Writer supposes his wife was Elizabeth Wilde, of Salem. Calls himself Richard Moore, of Lin (Lynn).—Boston Transcript.

CAPT. WILLIAM MOORE, New York. Capt. William Moore¹† m. (1) Margaret Fean, (2) Nov. 29, 1685, at New York, Anna Jaros (i. e., Anna, daughter of John), widow of Gozen Stephenson (George), by her first husband, she had a son John Stephenson, b. before 1685, who was afterward called John King; by her second husband, William Moore, she had Hannah, who was married; she had a third husband (Jonnantell) and had three daughters, leaving some property in N. Y.; Gozen Stephenson was a Dutch settler in the Dutch section of Middleburgh (Newtown).

WILLIAM MOORE, Pennsylvania. My own ancestors, as far as I can trace, were among those who were involved in the Rebellion of the Earl of Argyle, and after his execution in 1685, fled, or were banished to the London colonies in Ulster. There, in 1689-90, the first ancestor of my given name "William" was born in Londonderry, or near it, just before or during the siege. The name, of course, indicates the politics and the adhesion of the Argyle rebels to the Orange rebels. A family tradition handed down from father to son in a direct line, is that the young namesake of the Prince of Orange starved for want of nourishment, was supposed to be dead, when a woman who had lost her child took him to her breast and cherished him back to life. As soon as his parents, reduced to utter poverty, could gather themselves together, they went to America, early in the 18th century, and landed with a shipload, probably of Redemptioners, at New Castle on the Delaware. Fortunately the father was a blacksmith and soon found work on a farm belonging to Wm. Steele, Jr., a part of Penn's Manor of Steyning, and occupied by his sister, a Mrs. Donnel then, or soon, a widow. The son of William¹, Jacob² by name, b. 1730, m. Widow Donnel and carried on her business. In 1772, by his will Sept. 15, Wm. Steele, Jr., conveyed to his brother-in-law, Jacob, and sister, Hannah Moore, the property on which they were living in Mill Creek Hundred, New Castle Co., Del., and which is still in the possession of the family. Jacob Moore² and Hannah Moore had Andrew³, b. 1768; William³, b. Dec. 28, 1770, d. Aug. 25, 1818; Mary³ m. Theo. Thomas, b. 1772; Andrew³ settled in Belmont Co., Ohio, 1802, and had a large family. William Moore³ m. Rachel Bouldin, New Castle Co., May 31, 1796, and had Jacob⁴, M.D. Univ. of Penna., b. Apr. 28, 1797, d. May 5, 1829; Nathan B.⁴, b. Jan. 19, 1799, d. May 10, 1837; Levi B.⁴, b. Jan. 24, 1803, d. July 29, 1869; Andrew⁴, b. Jan. 13, 1805, d. 1879; Wm. Steele⁴, b. May 17, 1807, d. Mch. 21, 1860; Thomas J.⁴, b. Oct. 7, 1809, still living; Mary J.⁴ (Eastburn), b. Nov. 11, 1813, still living. Jacob Moore⁴, M.D., m. Dec. 1818, Sarah Sharp Faris, and had Anna⁵, b. Nov. 25, 1819, still living; Elizabeth H.⁵ (Shields), b. May 5, 1821, still living; Wm. Eves⁵, b. Apr. 1, 1823, d. —; Jacob Faris⁵, b. Feb. 20, 1826, d. Feb., 1888. William Eves Moore⁵, Yale 1847, D.D., LL.D., m. Sept. 19, 1850, Harriet F. Foot (Rev. George, Newark, Del.), and had George Foot⁶, Yale 1872, D.D., Professor of Hebrew, etc., at Andover Theological Seminary; Edward C.⁶, Marietta 1877, D.D., Pastor Cent. Cong. Church, Providence, R. I., m. Nov. 9, 1887, Eliza C. Brown (J. Crosby, of N. Y.), and had a daughter⁷; Henry McL. W.⁶, Marietta 1882, M.D., Prof. of Bacteriology, Starling Medical College, Columbus, O.; Charles Albert⁶, Yale 1886, Pastor Cong. Church, Rockland, Maine; Frank Gardner⁶, Yale 1886, Ph.D., Assistant Professor in Latin at Dartmouth College, N. H.; Frederick A.⁶, Marietta 1890. George Foot⁶ m. Apr. 25, 1878, Mary S. Hanford, and had Albert H.⁷, b. May 13, 1883, student in Phillips Academy, Andover. Two of the sons of William Moore³ went to Illinois in 1836, and left large families, who are settled in Illinois, Missouri, and Texas. The above was given by the Rev. Dr. William E. Moore, the permanent clerk, who was the Moderator of the famous Revision Assembly, which met at Saratoga in 1890. On the motion of Dr. Howard Crosby, of New York, and seconded by Dr. Herrick Johnson, of Chicago, he was elected by acclamation. Dr. Moore was born at Strasburg, Penn., in 1823, was graduated from Yale College in 1847, and was a private student in theology while principal of the Fairfield Seminary, in Connecticut. He was licensed to preach in 1850, and began his pastoral life in the First Presbyterian Church, of West Chester, Penn., where he remained from 1850 to 1872, when he accepted a call to the Second Church, of Columbus, Ohio, which he also served twenty-two years. In April, 1894, on the completion of his seventieth year, he resigned his pastorate, and since that time has been acting as pastor emeritus. Dr. Moore has prepared four digests of the General Assembly, "The New School Digest," in 1861, "The Digest of 1873, after the Reunion," "The Digest of 1886, after the Adoption of the Book of Discipline," and "The Digest of 1898." In addition to his other faithful work for the Presbyterian Church, Dr. Moore served as a member of the committees which formed the Book of Discipline, and which prepared a revision of the Confession of Faith and the Consensus Creed, the latter committee having been raised during his term as Moderator. He was also a member of the Council of the Pan-Presbyterian Alliance, in 1877, 1888, and 1892. Marietta College gave him the degree of S.T.D. in 1873, and Lake Forest added the title of LL.D. in 1892. In speaking of his work recently to a friend, Dr. Moore said, with characteristic modesty: "My public work for the Church is about done. How well done the Master will decide. He has been a good Master, and his Church has honored me more than I deserve."*

ELY FAMILY. The emigrant ancestor of this family was Nathaniel Ely, who died at Springfield, Dec. 25, 1675. He probably came to this country in 1634. The late Col. Chester gives strong reasons for believing that Nathaniel, of Springfield, was a son of Rev. Nathaniel Ely and grandson of Rev. George Ely, vicar of Tenterden in Kent, from 1571 to 1615. He gives the families of both Rev. George Ely and his son Nathaniel. Nathaniel, son of the latter, was probably born in 1602. Col. Chester says: "I cannot in my own mind resist the conviction that he was identical with the Nathaniel Ely who appeared in New England about 1634. Of course, there is no absolute proof, but this group of facts is strongly suggestive."²

Ann Renaudet, † July 13, 1741); Josiah³ m. Deborah Ring, Trenton, N. J. The Moore in the name Moore Furman² is evidently a family name, for his seal attached to official papers bears the same crest as that of the Moores of Ipswich, England. He began business as a merchant in Trenton. He was a trustee of the Presbyterian Church of that place, 1760-4. Soon after the latter date he removed to Pittstown and purchased real estate in and around the place. He built the stone grist-mill, kept store near where Mr. Sylvester Probasco's house stands, and kept a grain distillery and a hand-wrought nail factory in the basement of the old frame house which stood, till lately, near the mill. A large business was done in grain, flour, whiskey and hand-wrought nails, and heavily loaded wagons were kept on the road between Pittstown and Lambertton (now South Trenton), the head of water carriage to Philadelphia. He lived in the "Old Red House" which stood where is now Mr. Porter C. Little's residence. He was Judge of the Court of Common Pleas 1777-1785, a Justice of the Peace 1781 and 1786, and a Deputy Commissary of the Revolution, which position he resigned Sept. 20, 1780. His storage of army supplies was kept in a house where that of Mr. W. Henry Smith stands. In Vol. VIII of Original Manuscript Letters in the Library of the American Philosophical Society in Philadelphia are five or six of his letters dated from Pittstown, 1779, and in Vol. IX is one dated from the same place, Nov. 8, 1779. These letters relate chiefly to commissary business. There is a credible tradition that Gen. Washington staid over night with him one or twice at Pittstown. About 1786 or 1787 he removed to Philadelphia, leaving his business at Pittstown in charge of Benjamin Guild and his son John W. Furman. A little later he returned to Trenton, and was again chosen as trustee of the Presbyterian Church, which office he continued to hold until his death. He was the first Mayor of Trenton by appointment of the Legislature on its incorporation in 1792, and was a Presidential Elector in Horn, his sister, is dead and has left three children who draws 1/3 of 1/11 of the whole or 1/3 of £400, is £133 6 8 each, £400. Anne Forman, his sister, is dead and has left six children who draws 1/6 of 1/11 of the whole or 1/6 of £400, is £66 13 4 each, £400. Elizabeth Mott, his sister, dead, has left six children who are entitled to draw 1/6 of 1/11 of the whole, or 1/6 of £400, that is £66 13 4 each, five of these children are alive and draw £333 6 8. One of Elizabeth's children is dead and has left eight children, minors, who draw 1/8 of one of her children's shares or 1/8 of £66 13 4, which is £8 6 8 each, equal to £400. Estimated value of the land, £4400. The above calculation is made upon the supposition that the children and grandchildren of the several persons dec. will draw equal shares, but as there are males and females the proportion of the males were greater and that of the females less. Calculation by D. Frazer, Esq. Paper in the collection of Dr. Henry Race, Pittstown, N. J.) Sarah Emley, b. 1721, d. 1779, aet. 68, graveyard, hence not in above calculation.

of the Minutes of Conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church: John Potts, the subject of this biographical notice, was born in Hunterdon County, New Jersey. Of his early history, conversion to God, and call to the ministry, we have but little satisfactory information. He commenced his itinerant labours in 1812, under the direction of a presiding elder. In the following year he was admitted on trial in the Philadelphia annual conference, and appointed to Freehold circuit. He subsequently filled some of the most important appointments in the different sections of this then extended conference, as may be seen by recurring to the minutes, in all of which he prosecuted the duties of his high vocation with acceptance and more than ordinary success. His last field of labour was the South Philadelphia district, to which he was appointed as presiding elder at the conference of 1834. Here his versatility of ministerial and business talent was seen and acknowledged. He presided in the quarterly conference with dignity, preached to the edification of the church and the awakening and conversion of sinners, and counseled both ministers and members with ability and fidelity. In this important and responsible office he added greatly to the amount of valuable service he had rendered to the cause of God, and acquired for himself additional esteem and affection from his brethren and friends. On this field he also fought his last conflict and gained his last signal and complete victory. At the conference for 1836 he was violently attacked with disease, which soon affected his lungs, and continued its ravages until it terminated his useful life on the 22d of September, 1837. His sufferings for nearly eighteen months were constant, and much of the time severe. Through grace, however, he was enabled to bear all with patience and resignation. In the last part of his sickness, especially, he abounded in the strong consolations of the gospel. He perfectly understood his condition, and knew that his end was drawing near. He conversed about his departure with perfect freedom and composure. About three weeks before his death he told a friend his wish respecting his funeral and the place of his interment, and desired him to make the arrangements accordingly, and when informed that he had done so, expressed a satisfaction that his last temporal business was finished. The last three days of his life were days of unmitigated physical agony. To use his own words, "It seemed as if his flesh was all on fire." But during the whole time his mind was perfectly serene and happy. During the last day, after his extremities were cold in death, he frequently repeated the expression, "So shall we ever be with the Lord." A short time before his death, observing his companion standing by his bed and weeping, he addressed her with much tenderness, as follows: "O, my dear wife, we shall soon meet again." And then, as if he already felt so much of eternity that time dwindled into comparative nothingness, added, "soon, soon," repeating the word four or five times. After he had remained with his eyes closed for some time, he opened them, and said with feebleness, but with distinctness, "This is the valley of the shadow of death, but I go through fearing no evil." A friend present repeated, "Thy rod and thy staff, they comfort me." He nodded his head in the affirmative, and slept in death. O how transcendent the moral beauty and sublimity of such a death-bed scene! Here was the joy of triumph when engaged in the dreadful conflict. Here was the peace of heaven amid the dying strife of earth. Here was the Christian with his feet upon the neck of the king of terrors, calmly dispossessing himself of his fleshly garment, and with majesty and glory taking his egress from this state of probationary warfare, and ascending to the enjoyment of the rich rewards of immortality, for which he had so long and so successfully contended. In giving a summary of the character of our deceased brother, we observe his excellences were many. As a friend, he was sincere and constant, as a husband and a father, affectionate and faithful, as a Christian, consistent and devoted, and as a minister, talented and useful. Such were the character and death of our departed Brother Potts. Let us cherish his memory and his virtues, let us imitate his example and emulate his piety, and may God grant that we may die his death and that our last end may be like his!

The following is his record from the Minutes of Philadelphia Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church: 1813, admitted on trial and appointed to Freehold under Wm. Mills; 1814, remained on trial and was appointed to Sussex under Jos. Osborn; 1815, admitted into full connection and ordained deacon and appointed to Northampton; 1816, deacon elect appointed to Essex and Staten Island; 1817, appointed to Caroline, Chesapeake District; 1818, made elder, sent to Union Church, Phila.; 1819, sent to Bergen; 1820-1, to Burlington; 1822-3, to Wilmington; 1824-5, to Trenton and Bloomsbury (S. of Trenton); 1826-7, to Bridgeton; 1828-9, to Salem; 1830-1, to Morristown; 1832-3, to Paterson; 1834-5-6, Presiding Elder of South Phila. District; 1836-7, superannuated; 1837, Sept. 22, died. Text used at the funeral of Rev. John Potts: "And Pharaoh said unto Jacob how old art thou? And Jacob said unto Pharaoh the days of the years of my pilgrimage are an hundred and thirty years: few and evil have the days of the years of my life been and have not attained unto the days of the years of the life of my fathers in the days of their pilgrimage," Gen. xlvii, 8 and 9.

We* have the opportunity of exhibiting the sentiments taught by the Methodists 70 years ago. Visiting the rooms of the His. Soc. of the Phila. Conference, we found some copies of the first paper ever published in this part of the country, one of the predecessors of the Christian Advocate, and looking it over we found a funeral sermon preached by the Rev. John Potts, occasioned by the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Edmonds, Aug. 28, 1825, and at our request the Rev. Alexander Wiggins, A.M., custodian of the library, made a copy of the discourse. It is so brief and so well composed that we herewith print it, omitting only the remarks relating to the deceased and to the joys of heaven. To every line of that discourse we subscribe, and are glad to present it as almost a perfect model of composition: Funeral sermon by the Rev. John Potts, occasioned by the death of Mrs. Elizabeth Edmonds, August 28, 1825: "To die is gain."—Phil. i : 21. We shall (1) inquire who those are to whom death will be gain; (2) what they will gain; and (3) make some remarks on the character of our deceased sister. Agreeable to this arrangement we shall attempt a definition of those characters to whom death will be gain, and in doing this we shall assume the position that the provisions of the Gospel are adequate to the spiritual wants of all mankind, and that eternal salvation, through the merits of a Saviour, is absolutely attainable by every child of Adam. To suppose the contrary would be to suppose that the Gospel system is both irrational and cruel, irrational in requiring that of man as the condition of salvation which is utterly impossible for him to perform, and cruel in dooming him to hell for the non-performance of that which it is impossible to do; and I would further observe that that which a man is absolutely unable to do (no matter whether this inability be natural or moral) never can be prescribed to him as the condition of his salvation, without supposing a predetermination in the divine mind that he should perish forever. But this cannot be. The repeated and positive declarations of the word of God, all that we behold of the divine wisdom and benevolence in the works of creation, all our own conceptions of the fitness of things, together with all the best feelings of our nature, forbid the preposterous and horrible supposition that the God of Love will consign a poor worm of earth to the never ending tortures of hell for not performing impossibilities. (1) After these remarks you will not be surprised that I rank sincere heathens among the heirs of immortal bliss, among those to whom death will be gain. It is certainly a cruel divinity that damns pagan nations to hell en masse; a divinity the farthest from the benevolent religion of Jesus, which teaches us that in every nation he that feareth God and worketh righteousness is accepted with him. For myself I have no doubt that many who have lived and died without having ever heard the name of Jesus will sit down with the children of their common Father in the kingdom of glory, in consequence of the improvement of that light that enlighteneth every man that cometh into the world, of that grace that bringeth salvation to all men. (2) The idiot, who never possessed the capacity to obey the Gospel, or to reject its proffered blessings, will be entitled to eternal salvation, agreeable to the tenor of this Gospel, which secures all its promised blessings to every one that does not personally reject them. This the man who never possessed reasoning powers never could do. (3) Death is gain to those who die in infancy. To spend a moment in supporting the truth of this position would be to offer an insult to the feelings and good sense of my audience. A man that would indulge in a doubt on this subject must have the feelings of a brute and the heart of a fiend. (4) To the Christian believer death will be gain. By the Christian believer is here intended the man who has been convinced of the evil nature and the dire effects of sin, of the turpitude of his own crimes and the corruption of his nature, and who has in consequence of this conviction made an humble and earnest application to Him who is able to save to the uttermost all that come to God through Him; who has obtained redemption in the blood of Jesus, even the forgiveness of his sins, and in whose heart divine love is the ruling principle, prompting him to the faithful discharge of every social, relative, and religious duty. But I forbear, the Christian character has so often been delineated in this place that I conceive any further observations upon it at the present to be unnecessary. Suffice it to say that to this character death will be gain on the condition of his faithful perseverance in the path of Christian duty to the end.

[If this be true, there is no need of a future probation, except in the system of those who deny that human life in any event is sufficiently long to admit of a determinate choice in those who possess the human faculties, and live to an age of responsibility, and also to admit of spiritual regeneration, a proposition which, if accepted, would carry with it the conclusion that the system revealed in the Bible is inconsistent or unintelligible or impracticable or untrue, according to the notions which individuals may entertain of the teachings of its various parts.—EDITOR.] Rev. John Potts left a daughter and possibly other children.

THOMAS WILLETT, afterwards first Mayor of New York, arrived, whilst yet a young man, at Plymouth, in 1629, from Leyden in Holland, where he had been sojourning with other Puritans. He was sent the following year to Penobscot to superintend a trading house, but returned soon after and engaged in the carrying trade between the New England Colonies and New Amsterdam, where he is found possessing some land interests in 1645. He was, in subsequent years, an active friend to the Dutch, whom he more than once seasonably notified of the designs of the English. He was a Magistrate of Plymouth from 1651 to 1664, when, at the request of Colonel Nichols, he accompanied the expedition against the Dutch Colony. On the change of the charter of the City of New York to an English form, in 1665, Captain Willett was appointed its first Mayor, and held that office again in 1667, in the course of which year, 'tis presumed, he returned to New England and settled at Rehoboth or Swansey (now in the town of Seeconck), Mass., where he died on the 3d of August, 1674.* A plain monument marks the spot where his ashes repose.†

George Muirheid (aged 17), Uriel Titus, John Stevenson, and John Taylor, went to Elizabethtown during the war, on service, alone. Col. Seely was in command, refused them pay and rations, but finally attached them to Captain Updike's company. They served out for their month in twenty days, and were honorably discharged. Deacon James Hunt was a brave soldier, killed a British soldier half a mile west of Pennington, in 1776. Benjamin Mershon saw a British soldier enter Thomas Burrowes's house, and having laid his gun by the fence, followed him in and took the soldier's gun from him, and took him prisoner. On the morning of December 26, 1776, John Muirheid, John Guild, and David Lanning escorted Gen. Washington and his army from the Eight mile ferry to the north end of Trenton.‡
